Pltfs. brought an action to recover a sum which they had paid in effecting the discharge which they said should have been paid by defts. Defts. refused to pay on the ground that by the custom of the port of Hull the expense in question should be borne by the shipowners: —Held: the custom relied on by defts. was inconsistent with the language of the charterparty & was not admissible in order to decide upon whom the expense in question should rest.—REDERI AKT. practice of the mill for many years to make deductions for work not done with reasonable care & skill, the deductions not exceeding in amount the loss sustained by the employers & often not being exacted. A similar usage existed in the bulk of the mills carrying on the Lancashire weaving trade, though some of the mill owners were trying to do without deductions :—Held : the established practice in defts.' mill resulted in the incorporation in the contract of employment of pltf. as of all other weavers employed at the mill of a term enabling the employers to make a deduction, not exceeding the actual or estimated loss occasioned, from the specific sum payable for each piece of cloth woven, if the workman did not exercise reasonable care & skill in weaving the cloth.

A usage in the Lancashire weaving mills allowing an employer to make at his discretion deductions from wages for bad work, not exceeding a certain defined limit, is neither unreasonable nor uncertain ; & the fact that it at present exists at about 85 per cent. only of the mills does not prevent it from being a good legal usage on the ground of want of universality (per CUR.).—SAGAR v. RIDEHALGH (H.) & SON, LTD., [1931] 1 Ch. 310 ; 100 L. 635b. Gamble in futures—Whether gaming contract.]—Pltfs. were cotton merchants who (inter alia) transacted business in the cotton market on behalf of members of the public who wished to gamble in cotton futures. Only members of the Liverpool Cotton Association are permitted to buy & sell cotton futures on the Liverpool market, & by the regulations of the assocn. pltfs., who were members, when buying on behalf of a customer, were required to enter into a contract with a selling member of the assocn., binding themselves on the terms of a printed contract which they were obliged to use. Pltfs. then filled in another printed form, under which in form they sold to the customer at the same price at which they had bought with, in addition, an amount for brokerage. A duplicate of this sale note, in the form of a bought note from the customer to pltfs., was sent to the customer at the same time for signature & return. Deft. requested pltfs. to deal in cotton futures on his behalf, & pltfs. duly carried out the transactions set out above. In an action to recover sums owing in respect of certain transactions deft. contended that as there was a contract made by pltfs. directly with deft. of purchase & sale as principals & as there was an express understanding that there should be no question of deliveries on either side, but only an eventual payment of differences, the claim was one in respect of gaming & wagering contracts & was therefore unenforceable at law :—Held : (1) the true relationship between the parties was that of principal & broker, & there was no gaming or wagering contract between them ; (2) pltfs. were entitled to recover the sums claimed.—WOODWARD v. WOLFE, [1936] 3 All E. 703a. Usage as to arbitration.]—Pltfs. sold to defts. a quantity of paraffin wax under a contract providing, "any dispute arising under this contract to be settled by arbitrators in London in the usual way." A claim was made by defts. against pltfs., & the arbitrators, being unable to agree, appointed an umpire by a document headed, "the use of this form constitutes a submission to the rules of the assocn.," i.e. the London Oil & Tallow Trades Assocn. The umpire awarded that defts.' claim failed & that they were to pay the costs of the arbitration. The rules of the assocn. provided for an appeal to an appeal committee, defts. claimed a right of appeal. Pltfs. thereupon brought an action against defts. to recover the costs of the arbn., & the evidence was that in the trade in paraffin wax the usual way of settling a dispute by arbn. was to appoint arbitrators who could appoint an umpire whose decision would be final :—Held : the heading did not apply & the umpire was really appointed in pursuance of the original agreement as to arbn. & not under the rules of the assocn., & pltfs. were entitled to recover.—PALMER & Co., LTD. v. PILOT TRADING CO., LTD. In Nov. before any of pltf.'s cottou had been taken by the mill, defts. repudiated the contract. Pltf. sued defts. for damages :—Held : the breach being anticipatory the damages recoverable were not confined to the extra cost which pltf. had paid to the other millers for ginning such cotton as he had tendered to defts., but were the estimated loss of profit to pltf. by reason of the contract not being carried out; pltf. was not bound to buy cotton & have it ginned at other mills under his obligation to mitigate the damages.—RAMGOPAL v. DHANJI JADHAVJI BHATIA (1928), L. If the co. acceded to the exchange, it was agreed, that in case the nephew died or resigned before the expiration of the four voyages, pltf. should succeed him; as a further inducement to pltf. to resign the command of the M., deft. undertook to procure a beneficial alteration in the destination of the E., & the person who negotiated the affair on the part of pltf. undertook (as he asserted, without pltf.'s knowledge) to pay deft. £2,000 if pltf. should refuse to resign. The exchange was approved of by the co., & the destination of the E. altered. Pltf. & nephew sailed on their respective voyages. Pltf. became bkpt. on his return from his voyage in the E., & the nephew died in the course of his second voyage in the M. Deft. having refused to appoint pltf. to succeed him was sued in assumpsit for breach of agreement, & the value of a voyage having been proved to vary from £4,000 to £8,000, the jury gave £7,500 damages. 114a. —— Admiralty cases.]—Damages must be the direct & natural consequence of the breach of obligation complained of. The law is the same in this respect with regard both to contract & to tort, subject to the qualification that, in the case of the former, the law does not consider too remote damage which may be reasonably supposed to have been in the contemplation of the parties when the contract was made. Speaking generally, the measure of damages is the same in Admiralty as at common law.—THE EDISON, [1932] P.

Pltf. claimed damages under Fatal Accidents Act, 1846 (c. 93), for negligence causing the death of his wife :—Held : pltf. would establish a cause of action if he established that the death of his wife resulted from the shock occasioned by negligence involved in the running away of the lorry, that the shock resulted from what pltf.'s wife either saw or realised by her unaided senses & not from something which some one told her, & that the shock was due to a reasonable fear of immediate personal injury either to herself or to her children.—HAMBROOK v. STOKES BROTHERS, [1925] 1 K. 149 iv. —— ——.]—A man & a woman to whom he was engaged were knocked down by a motor omnibus. The man was struck by the omnibus & received considerable physical injury. The woman did not appear to have been actually struck, & she received no direct physical injury, but she suffered severely from shock. In an action of damages at her instance the judge directed the jury that, if by the fault of defts. pursuer had suffered nervous shock through apprehension for her own safety, they were entitled, in assessing damages, to include any aggravation of that shock occasioned by the fact that her companion was involved in the catastrophe. The jury found that pursuer had suffered personal injury resulting in nervous shock involving apprehension for her own safety, aggravated by anxiety for the safety of her companion, & awarded damages :—Held : in the circumstances the jury could not be asked to discriminate between the amount of shock suffered by pursuer due to apprehension for her own safety & the amount due to anxiety for her companion.—CURRIE v. WARDROP, [1927] S. She averred that the lost manuscripts were the sole copies of the compositions in question, & that she had the sole right to publish, perform, or issue mechanical reproductions, & to obtain copyright thereof. The compositions had cost pursuer about £2,000, but she averred that, through her concert party, they had acquired a reputation among the public which had greatly enhanced their value, & she further averred that she would have made substantial profits from the lost music in respect of copyright royalties, publication & sale, & disposal of performing & mechanical rights, apart from the use of it by her concert party : —Held : (1) pursuer's averments as to loss of contingent profits from copyright royalties, publication & sale, & disposal of performing & mechanical rights, were irrelevant ; (2) the measure of her damages in respect of the lost music was the cost of its replacement as nearly as might be, ascertained either by the market price of actual replacement, or by consideration of the commission which would have to be paid to composers of music of the class to which the lost compositions belonged. —REAVIS v. CLAN LINE STEAMERS, LTD., [1926] S. 176a. —— Withdrawal of appointment as school outfitters.]—The authorities at a convent school informed the parents of their scholars that the girls must wear certain clothes, that these could only be obtained from pltf., a dressmaker, & that the girls must be in possession of the clothes by Apr. 21. Pltf. was informed that these instructions had been given to the parents. No formal appointment was given to pltf. in writing & nothing was said as to the duration of the appointment. Pltf. ordered dress materials from deft. co., telling them that she had an appointment to supply these clothes at the school & that they were wanted by Apr. 21. Pltf. was not ready to supply all the parents' demands by Apr. 21, & on Apr. 28 the Mother Superior wrote to pltf., that on that ground & on the ground of defects in some of the clothes supplied, no further orders would be placed with her. Pltf. claimed damages against deft. co. (inter alia) for loss of her appointment as school outfitter, on the ground that there was a breach of contract by not keeping dress material in stock, so causing delay in delivery to pltf. by deft. co., & that this delay caused the Mother Superior to write her letter of Apr. 28:—Held: by SCRUTTON, L.J. & SLESSER, L.J., the damages for loss of appointment were not in the contemplation of both parties to the contract, & so were too remote. On the facts, by GREER, L.J. & SLESSER, L.J., accepting the finding of the trial judge that there was a contract between pltf. & deft. co. that the latter should get & maintain a stock of certain dress materials ready for pltf., whenever she chose to give an order, although it was admitted that deft. co. did not get & maintain such a stock, the loss of pltf.'s appointment was not due to this breach, but to pltf.'s own failure to obtain in time the material elsewhere.—SIMON v. PAWSON & LEAFS, LTD. In an action for breach of contract the jury awarded to pltf. over & above her salary already paid, damages for loss of reputation through her not being employed to play the part:—Held: as there was an express agreement to advertise pltf. this necessarily implied an obligation to give pltf. an opportunity of acting, & pltf. was entitled, in addition to her salary already paid, to the damages awarded by the jury for loss of reputation.—MARBÉ v. GEORGE EDWARDES (DALY'S THEATRE), LTD., [1928] 1 K. Resp. objected that the part assigned to him was not one of the three leading comedy parts &, on the refusal of applts. to recast him, declined to appear in the play & sued applts. for damages for breach of contract. At the trial of the action before a judge & jury the jury found for resp. for £1,000 damages for loss of publicity & for three weeks' salary & judgment was entered accordingly. allow him to perform at the ... on Palladium under the agreement. ... sued defts. claiming damages for breach of contract, including loss of publicity & ... At the trial counsel for pltf. ... to the jury that pltf. had thereby ... fered damage to his reputation. The judge in summing up the case told the jury that they must put some figure upon the loss of publicity because pltf. was not allowed to perform at the Palladium. He did not refer in his summing-up to the option in the contract. The jury returned a verdict for pltf. for the salary he had lost & £1,000 for loss of publicity. On appeal by defts.: —Held: (1) damage to a reputation already existing by not allowing an actor to appear in accordance with his contract was not a matter which could be taken into consideration by a jury in assessing damages for breach of contract. What had to be taken into consideration was whether if the actor had been allowed to appear that appearance would have given him an enhanced reputation. That distinction had not been explained to the jury by the judge, & therefore there would have to be a new trial on the question of damages; (2) pltf. had under the contract no absolute right to appear at the Palladium; defts. had an option as to the halls at which he should appear; in assessing damages for the breach of a contract which defts. could at their option perform in alternative ways it must be assumed that defts. would perform it in the way most beneficial to themselves & not in the way that would be most beneficial to pltf.; & as there had been no direction by the judge with regard to this there must be a new trial on this ground also.—WITHERS v. GENERAL THEATRE CORPN., LTD., [1933] 2 K. 227a. —— Several sub-sales.]—Defts. sold skins to pltfs., who resold to a sub-vendee. That sub-vendee sold to a second sub-vendee, who sold one of the skins, which had been made into the collar of a fur coat, to a third sub-vendee. The third sub-vendee sold to a woman who wore the coat & developed dermatitis on the face in consequence of antimony contained in the skin. In each sale the vendor knew the particular purpose for which the goods were required by the purchaser, & there was an implied warranty that the goods were reasonably fit for such purpose. The ultimate purchaser brought an action for breach of contract against her supplier, the third sub-vendee. The third sub-vendee defended the action, & in so doing acted reasonably ; but in the result the ultimate purchaser recovered damages & costs against him. The third sub-vendee, who had incurred certain additional costs in connection with the action, claimed to be reimbursed by the second sub-vendee, & after some resistance, incurring further costs, the second sub-vendee paid. The second sub-vendee then claimed against the first sub-vendee, who after some dispute incurring further costs, also paid. The first sub-vendee claimed against pltfs., who, after taking advice, occasioning further costs, paid. Pltfs. sued defts. for breach of contract, claiming as damages the damages recovered by the ultimate purchaser, the costs on both sides in that action, & the costs of the intermediate actions :—Held : pltfs. were entitled to recover the damages which might reasonably be supposed to have been in the contemplation of the parties at the time of the contract ; the parties must have contemplated that damages would be claimed, if there were a breach of contract of the kind that had occurred, by parties separated by several contractual steps from each of the immediate parties to each of the contracts along the line ; pltfs.' damages should include (1) the damages recovered by the ultimate purchaser, (2) the costs on both sides in that action, inasmuch as it was reasonably defended, & (3) the costs of the intermediate actions, in so far as they were reasonably incurred.—

287a. —— ——.]—On the morning of Nov. 22, 1922, the P., the S. A., & the S. were moored by their sterns to the quay in Valetta Harbour, Malta, in the order named from east to west, & the vessels had their anchors down forward. There was a strong wind blowing from E.N.E. & there was a swell in the harbour. At 8 a.m. the P. dragged her anchors & the fore part of the vessel fell down upon the S. A. & remained in contact with her. In endeavouring to get free from the S. A. the P. broke away from her moorings & fell bodily upon the S. A. & parted her moorings, & the S. A. in turn fell down upon the S. & cast her adrift. The S. A. & the S. then manœuvred in the harbour under their own steam to keep away from the shore & brought up heading to the wind. Twenty minutes later the S. got under the starboard quarter of the S. A., when the revolving propeller of the S. A. struck the S., with the result that the S. was sunk & the propeller was damaged. The P. was clear of both ships at the time. In an action by the S. A. against the P., there being no appeal from the decision of the President that the P. was liable for the earlier collisions, the only questions now at issue was whether she was also liable for the final collision between the S. A. & the S. The President, acting on the advice of two of the Elder Brethren of the Trinity House, found that the final collision was directly caused by the negligence of the P., but his decision was reversed on appeal. The nautical assessors in the Ct. of Appeal advised (a), agreeing with the Elder Brethren, that there was no fault on the part of the S.; & (b), differing from the Elder Brethren, that the master of the S. A. was guilty of want of reasonable care in not stopping his engines in time to avert the collision :—Held : the final collision was not directly caused by the negligence of the P., but that the action of the S. constituted a novus actus interveniens, the S. A. having failed to prove that the S., in acting as she did, was free from blame.

Per Lord SUMNER. The miscalculation of the master of the S. A. in not stopping his engines sooner also broke the chain of causation.—SINGLETON ABBEY S.S. OWNERS v. PALUDINA S.S. OWNERS, THE PALUDINA, [1927] A. C. 16; 95 L. J. P. 135, H. L.

d i. —— —— Serious injury.]—$12,000 damages held not excessive for a comminute fracture of the skull by a bullet fired by a constable of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.—WILSON v. MAINLAND, [1933] 2 D. L. R. 539; 6 M. P. R. 482; 59 C. C. C. 385.—CAN.

d ii. —— —— Absence of provocation.] — In an action for assault in which pltf. appealed for a larger amount for both special & general damages it was proved that deft. had assaulted pltf. twice. There was evidence of provocation for the first assault but none for the second, which was committed when pltf. was lying on the ground as the result of the first: —Held: the general damages should be increased from $50 to $500 & the special damages by an item of $11.35. — GUILLET v. CHARLEBOIS, [1935] 3 W. W. R. 438.—CAN.

d iii. —— Trespass—Abusive conduct.]—An appeal from a judgment whereby pltf., in an action for trespass, was awarded vindictive damages in addition to special damages:—Held: in view of deft.'s persistence in trespassing in defiance of pltf.'s requests to desist, his violent & abusive conduct towards pltf., & the particularly injurious & malicious manner in which certain of the trespasses were committed, the allowance of vindictive damages was justified & the amount thereof should not be reduced.—SPENCER v. GRANT, [1928] 1 D. d iv. —— —— Violent behaviour.]—A city corpn., constructing a sewer, expropriated an easement over pltf.'s land for that purpose. Deft. contracted with the corpn. to construct that part of the sewer which ran through pltf.'s land. In performing his contract, deft. did not confine himself to that part of the land which was subject to the easement, but unlawfully cut down trees & deposited sand & silt upon the land outside the part subject to the easement, & thereby depreciated the value of the land:—Held: the amount of damages in such an action as this may be indefinitely enhanced by evidence of violent & arrogant conduct on the part of deft.—PAFFARD v. CAVOTTI, [1929] 1 D. L. R. 111; 63 O. L. R. 171.—CAN.

d v. —— —— High-handed behaviour.]—In an action for damages for trespass founded on the wrongful seizure of a motor car which pltf. had bought from deft. under a conditional-sale agreement:—Held: because of the high-handed conduct of deft. which injured pltf.'s feelings, the trial judge was justified in awarding exemplary damages.—GRIFFITHS v. FORDYCE MOTORS, LTD., [1930] 2 W. 352 i. Sale of goods—Refusal to accept.]—Unless a purchaser has by the contract of sale a right to repudiate, he cannot repudiate the sale. If he does so, the vendor may sue the purchaser for the price, or re-sell the article; & if by such sale he incurs a loss, then the purchaser must make it good. But the vendor must take into consideration such payments as the purchaser may have made on account.—FOSTER v. HEINTZMAN & CO., [1923] 4 D. L. R. 166.—CAN.

354 i. —— Anticipatory breach.]—Where there had been a breach of contract by defts.:—Held: pltfs. were entitled to nominal damages only, as when pltfs. found that defts. would not carry out the contract, they should have gone into the market & done the best they could with a similar contract.—CAMPBELL v. MAHLER (1919), 43 O. 380 xiii. —— Goods manufactured or partly manufactured.]—In respect of goods manufactured or partly manufactured & ready or partly ready for delivery, before defts. repudiated their contract:—Held: plffs. were entitled to recover, as damages for breach of contract, a sum equal to the contract price of the finished or partly finished goods, less their value at the time of or within a reasonable time of the breach.—HAMILTON GEAR & MACHINE Co. v. LEWIS BROTHERS, [1924] 3 D. sd. Wrongful eviction of lessee.]—In regard to damages recoverable by a wrongfully evicted lessee, the case is governed by the general rule applicable to all breaches of contract, namely, that the party wronged is, so far as money can do it, to be placed in the same situation, with respect to damages, as if the contract had been performed. Compensation to the lessee will not be confined to the value of the unexpired term, but will include all loss naturally resulting from the eviction.—HAACK v. MARTIN, [1927] 3 D. L. R. 19; [1927] S. sh. Breach of contract to summerfallow.]—A lessee under a crop-payment lease broke his covenant to summerfallow. The lessor, who had the work done at his own expense, contended that the delay in doing it would reduce the crops to be grown & claimed damages on that head:—Held: since it was impossible to say with any degree of certainty that the crops in the subsequent years would be less than they would have been had deft. performed his covenant, such damages could not be awarded.—UGLUM v. TORKELSON, [1930] 3 W. Pltf. gave a bond conditioned to replace 5 per cent. stock on a given day. After that day government gave the holders of that stock an option, to be paid off at par, or to commute their stock for 3 per cents. Pltf. expressed to deft. a wish to have the stock replaced, that he might be paid at par, but no wish to take 3 per cent. stock :—Held : he was not entitled to recover the price of so much 3 per cent. stock as he might have obtained in exchange for the 5 per cents.—M'ARTHUR v. SEAFORTH, LORD (1810), 2 Taunt. 257 ; 127 E. 404e. ——.]—The true measure of damages in an action for not re-delivering shares lent to deft. upon a contract to return them on a given day, is, not the market-price at the time of the breach, but the market-price at the time of the trial.—OWEN v. ROUTH & OGLE (1854), 14 C. 408a. Option to purchase—Profit on resale lost by improper withdrawal.]—Pltf., having an option from deft. to purchase a freehold house for £4,000, agreed to sell the property to S. for £4,500, & then wrote accepting deft.'s offer to sell the house. In the meantime deft. had sold the property to B. for £4,000 :—Held : as specific performance of the contract was impossible by reason of deft.'s own act, pltf. was entitled to recover from deft. as damages £500, the difference between the price at which the property was offered to pltf. & that at which pltf. contracted to sell it.—GOFFIN v. HOULDER (1920), 90 L. J. Ch. 488 ; 124 L. T. 145.

411a. Contract to print bank-notes—Unauthorised use of plates.]—A firm of printers employed by the Bank of Portugal to print a series of bank notes known as Vasco da Gama 500 escudo notes delivered to the Bank 600,000 notes which were put into circulation in Portugal. Subsequently, in breach of their contract of employment, the printers delivered to one M., the head of a band of criminals, 580,000 notes of the same type, printed from the original plates or from plates made from the same die, in the belief that he had the authority of the Bank. M. & his associates introduced these false notes into Portugal & put a large number of them into circulation. The Bank on discovering that unauthorised notes were in circulation issued notices withdrawing the whole of this issue of Vasco da Gama notes & undertaking, within a limited time, to exchange all notes of this type presented to the Bank for other notes. The Bank had an exclusive licence to issue bank notes as legal tender in Portugal, but the amount of the notes to be issued was controlled by law. At all material times the currency was inconvertible. In an action by the Bank against the printers for breach of contract defts. maintained (a) that the loss suffered by the Bank was due to their own voluntary action in paying the unauthorised notes ; (b) that the loss to the Bank was limited to the cost of printing & paper in regard to the new issue :—Held : (1) the loss arose naturally from the breach of contract ; (2) the proper measure of damages was the exchange value expressed in sterling of the genuine currency given in exchange for the spurious notes, together with the cost of printing the genuine notes withdrawn.

(3) Where the sufferer from a breach of contract finds himself in consequence of that breach placed in a position of embarrassment the measures which he may be driven to adopt in order to extricate himself ought not to be weighed in nice scales at the instance of the party whose breach of contract has occasioned the difficulty. It is often easy after an emergency has passed to criticise the steps which have been taken to meet it, but such criticism does not come well from those who have themselves created the emergency. The law is satisfied if the party placed in a difficult situation by reason of the breach of a duty owed to him has acted reasonably in the adoption of remedial measures, & he will not be held disentitled to recover the cost of such measures merely because the party in breach can suggest that other measures less burdensome to him might have been taken (Lord MACMILLAN). — BANCO DE PORTUGAL v. WATERLOW & SONS, LTD., WATERLOW & SONS, LTD. v. BANCO DE PORTUGAL, [1932] A. 412a. Continuation of contract depending on third party.]—Defts. agreed in writing to purchase from pltfs. all the stores that they required in the United Kingdom for their vessels, pltfs.' profits on the net price invoiced by the manufacturers to pltfs. to be discussed every six months, & the agreement was to remain in force as long as another agreement between a third co. & defts. continued. This other agreement had been previously made on the same day, but it was not signed till the following day, & it was to remain in force for ten years unless certain payments were sooner made. After observing the agreement with pltfs. for five months defts. repudiated it :—Held : as the continuation of the agreement between pltfs. & defts. for more than six months depended on the volition of a third party, & as the agreement contained nothing to prevent defts. from buying their stores outside the United Kingdom, pltfs. were entitled only to damages in respect of a period of one month.—FRANCO-BRITISH SHIP STORE CO., LTD. v. COMPAGNIE DES CHARGEURS FRANÇAISE (1926), 42 T. There was a delay of 30 weeks by pltfs. in delivering & erecting the recovery plant ; & in an action by them claiming the agreed price defts. counterclaimed for damages for delay, the actual loss which they suffered having considerably exceeded the "penalty" of £20 for each of the 30 weeks :—Held : the sum of £20 a week was agreed damages & was the only sum that defts. were entitled to recover.—CELLULOSE ACETATE SILK CO., LTD. v. WIDNES FOUNDRY (1925), LTD., [1933] A. 422 iii. ——.]—Acting under the provisions of the Diamond Cutting Act, 1919, the Govt. of the Union of South Africa, by the Under-Secretary for Mines & Industries, on May 28, 1928, entered into an agreement with certain diamond cutters whereby in effect the cutters undertook to set up a diamond cutting industry in the Union & within a period of six months to erect & complete a diamond cutting factory or factories, to provide the necessary machinery therefor, & to conduct all necessary operations in connection therewith. The contract was for five years, & the cutters, by clause 14, undertook to deposit with the Union, if so required, a total guarantee of £10,000, which sum, according to the agreement, was to be considered as liquidated damages & to be paid to the Union in the event of the cutters' failure to carry out the obligations imposed on them under the agreement. The agreement was ratified by Parliament & the full guarantee was called for, & the cutters arranged with applt. assurance co. to give the Union a guarantee for £10,000. The cutters, in pursuance of the agreement, proceeded to erect a factory, but on Dec. 31, 1931, they repudiated the agreement & closed down the factory. In Mar. 1932, the business of the cutters was sequestrated as insolvent by the Supreme Ct. of South Africa. On a preliminary point arising on a claim by the Union against applt. assurance co. as guarantors :—Held : on the construction of the Roman Dutch law, as at present developed, the sum claimed was a penalty & actual proved damage (up to the total sum guaranteed) could alone be recoverable in respect of it, & therefore it would fall to the Union to prove damage & to give before trial such particulars thereof as might be asked for & as the appropriate ct. in South Africa might see fit to allow.—PEARL ASSURANCE CO., LTD. v. UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA GOVERNMENT, [1934] A. ——.]—Deft., who had been placed upon the "stop list" of pltfs., entered into a "price-maintenance" agreement with them that he would not sell their goods at prices lower than those set out in printed schedules from time to time issued by them. The agreement contained a clause that for every breach thereof by deft. he would pay to pltfs. the sum of £15 as liquidated damages in respect of each sale. Deft. committed breaches of the agreement & an action was brought for an injunction & to recover £165 as agreed & liquidated damages in respect of 11 such breaches. At the trial the learned judge held that the disparity between the price of the article sold & the sum to be paid as damages prevented such damages from being liquidated damages & were a penalty:—Held: the only question to be considered was whether the sum claimed as liquidated damages was a fair pre-estimate of the damage likely to flow from the breach, & not unconscionable. 487a. —— —— ——.]—By a contract dated Oct. 19, 1928, pltf. agreed to sell to deft. all her right, title, & interest in a licensed house known as T. of which she was the licensee. The contract provided that the purchase-money should be paid "on or about" Nov. 10, 1928, & that deft. should forfeit the deposit of £120 which he had paid if he should fail to fulfil his part of the contract; also that either party refusing to comply with or neglecting to perform any part of the agreement should pay to the other, on demand, the sum of £200. On Oct. 8, 1928, deft. had given to the brewers who were the freeholders of T. references which they had accepted by Oct. 10. He went to the magistrates' clerk & signed the ordinary notices on reference to a request for a temporary transfer on Nov. 10, & for full transfer on Dec. 8. At least a week before Nov. 10 deft. knew that he would be unable to complete the purchase of T. unless he could raise a loan. His brokers acting in the matter sent him a notice to attend on Nov. 10. He did so, & first saw the brewers, telling them that he could not complete, & that the notice of application for transfer would have to be withdrawn & another one given. He then arranged with pltf. that completion should take place on Dec. 8. Deft., however, did not attend to complete. On Dec. 22 deft. stated that he would complete on Jan. 30. 648a. ——.]—An appeal from a judge trying a case without a jury is a rehearing by the Ct. of Appeal with regard to all the questions involved in the action, including the question what damages ought to be awarded. But the Ct. of Appeal will be disinclined to reverse the finding of a trial judge as to the amount of damages merely because they think that if they had tried the case in the first instance they would have given a lesser sum. In order to justify reversing the trial judge on the question of the amount of damages it will generally be necessary that the Ct. of Appeal should be convinced either that the trial judge acted upon some wrong principle of law, or that the amount awarded was so extremely high or so very small as to make it, in the judgment of the Ct. of Appeal, an entirely erroneous estimate of the damage to which pltf. is entitled.

Deft. pleaded that the words complained of, which concerned a confidential report which deft. had received from Australia, had been published on privileged occasions without malice towards pltf. & under a sense of duty in the honest belief that they were true. In the action which was tried before the Lord Chief Justice & a special jury the jury found that pltf. & deft. were not jointly interested in the business enterprise on Aug. 15, 1932, & on Aug. 27, 1932, & further that deft. was not actuated by malice on the first occasion but was actuated by malice on the second occasion & they awarded £5,000 damages. Deft. appealed on the ground that the damages were excessive of that the verdict was against the weight & evidence, & by an amendment which he

370a. Uncertain whether one party alive—Execution by others—Subsequent refusal to concur.]—A family arrangement for the division of an estate entered into in the absence or without the knowledge of one of the parties or persons interested in & affected thereby is not binding on any of the parties unless his concurrence is subsequently obtained. On the death of W. M. without having made an effective will, & leaving his five brothers his next of kin, four of them joined with a niece in executing a deed of family arrangement, whereby the niece, who had been living with W. M. & his wife, who predeceased him, & for whom W. M. desired to make provision, was to be given an equal one-fifth share with the four brothers. The fifth brother T. M. was not a party to the deed, as at the date thereof he had not been heard of for over twelve years, and it was uncertain whether he was living or dead. Since the date of the deed the whereabouts of T. M. had been discovered, and he refused to concur in it :—Held : the arrangement was not binding on any of the parties thereto.—Re MORTON, MORTON v. MORTON, [1932] 1 Ch. 505 ; 101 L. J. M., the female deft., while the vice-president of a co., signed a document by which she personally guaranteed payment of the co.'s indebtedness to pltf. bank. On the faith of said guarantee & of a similar guarantee by her husband the bank gave up a guarantee of another person & continued to make advances to the co. M. never intended to sign, & did not know she was signing, a personal guarantee ; she did not read the document or make any inquiries about it & was not informed of its contents, but thought she was signing a co. form as an official of the co. for the co. :—Held : although there was no fraud or misrepresentation involved & M. did not exercise reasonable care in signing the guarantee, & although the bank had acted upon it, she was not liable thereon. 812a. —— ——.]—Under an agreement dated May 6, 1912, applt. corpn. agreed to supply certain additional water to resp. council if the council required it, subject to the right which the corpn. retained of drawing water not exceeding 250,000 gallons "a day," at "a pro rata charge as is £540 for 450,000 gallons subject to measurement" ; the agreement also provided that certain water rights of the council under prior agreements should be preserved. Under those agreements the council were entitled to draw water from land of the corpn. during terms expiring in 1945 at annual rentals of £250 & £290. Other water rights granted under the agreement of May 6, 1912, were made payable for by the council at the same rate as was paid by the council under the prior agreements. In June, 1934, the council wished to take the benefit of the agreement for the supply of additional water, but contended that the charge for the same therein expressed should be amended so as to be read as "a pro rata charge as is £540 per annum for 450,000 gallons per diem subject to measurement." The council brought this action for a declaration that the clause should so be read :—Held : the principle of construction laid down by COLERIDGE, J. in Shore v. Wilson, 9 Cl. & F. 355, at p. 525, that where language was used in a deed which in its primary meaning was unambiguous such

The terms of the agreement are to be drawn partly from the written document & partly from all the surroundings of the written document, such as the nature of the transaction with regard to which the document is brought into life ; (3) the Crown is not bound by the error or inadvertence of its officers, nor by any deliberate intention of its officers without proper authority to alter the terms of a written agreement.—R. v. PEAT FUELS, LTD., [1930] Ex. Indeed, it is competent to the ct. to disregard the literal meaning if the words are sufficiently flexible to bear that interpretation. primary meaning must be taken conclusively to be that in which the writer used it, was qualified by that learned judge by excepting the case in which the primary meaning was excluded by the context & was not sensible with reference to the extrinsic circumstances in which the writer was placed at the time of writing. In Neale v. Neale, 79 L. T. 629, the Ct. of Appeal objected only to extrinsic evidence being introduced where the words of the document only admitted of one meaning; the primary meaning in the present case was excluded by the context, & was therefore not decisive. In proper cases, if necessary, words could be supplied to give effect to the obvious & apparent purpose of the document where the language as a whole carried with it the meaning sought to be attached to it. Therefore the words "per annum" & "per diem" must be read into the clause in question.—SHIPLEY URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL v. BRADFORD CORPN., [1936] Ch. 375, 399; (1936), 105 L. J. 1735a. Incorporation of guarantee clause—Identity of clause uncertain—Clause not available.]—Pltfs., a ship-repairing co., requiring a new intermediate pressure cylinder for the engines of a steamer which they had contracted to repair, obtained a quotation from defts., marine engineers. At the head of defts.' letter was a printed notice, "All offers are subject to our usual strike & guarantee clauses, accidents, etc." Pltfs. ordered the cylinder, but after it had been delivered & fitted it was found to be defective. A new cylinder was subsequently supplied by defts., but owing to the delay pltfs. were not able to complete the repairs in accordance with their contract with the shipowners & had to pay them damages. In an action to recover the amount of the damages defts. alleged that the contract for the supply of the cylinder was made subject to "our usual" guarantee clause & that their guarantee clause provided (inter alia) that "the contractors shall not in any case be liable for any detention of the vessel or other consequential damages howsoever arising" :—Held : as it was not clear what guarantee clause was incorporated, since the clause suggested by defts. was the clause in their usual engine agreement which was drawn to meet the case of engines being supplied to a shipowner & not to meet such a case as the present, & as it was not proved that defts. had made it clear that they intended to limit their liability, pltfs. were entitled to recover.—ALISON (J. Letter from town clerk—Reference to resolution of corporation to pay costs.]—The chief clerk of a hospital conducted by deft. corpn. wrote a letter to the proper quarter in respect of the conduct of the steward of the hospital, as a result of which the steward was dismissed. The steward thereupon brought an action for libel against the chief clerk, who approached certain solrs. with a view to their acting for him. The chief clerk was not in a position to pay the costs of an action. The solrs. received a letter from the town clerk of deft. corpn. in the following terms : "As I understand that you are acting for [the chief clerk] in this action, I beg to inform you that the Town Council . . . confirmed the recommendation of the health committee . . . to assist [the chief clerk] in paying or contributing to his costs in defending the action." Shortly before the trial of the action, upon the advice of counsel, & after consulting the town clerk, a settlement was effected, the chief clerk consenting to judgment against him with costs & undertaking to withdraw his allegations :—Held : the terms of the letter were not too vague to be enforced & there was a contract by the corpn. to pay the whole of the solrs.' costs, or such part thereof as was not obtainable elsewhere, & the fact that the action was settled did not relieve the corpn. from its liability.—ARMSTRONG, TAYLOR & WHITTAKER v. OLDHAM CORPN., [1937] 2 All E. The deed was registered under the Hong Kong Land Registration Ordinance, 1844, with a memorial which, as required by the Ordinance, was verified on oath & gave full particulars of the deed, including the receipt. In 1929 B. mortgaged a half interest in the property to applt. as security for an advance of $25,000; the mtge. was registered under the Ordinance. Before the advance was made, applt.'s solr. inspected the registered memorial of the deed of 1917, but he did not demand production of the original. B., unknown to applt. or his solr., was a son of resp. Resp. brought an action claiming to be entitled to the property freed from the mtge. By his evidence, which the cts. in Hong Kong accepted as reliable after an objection to its admissibility, resp. stated that the name A. was an alias for himself, that there was no consideration for the deed of 1917, & that it had remained in his possession, no beneficial interest being intended to be conveyed to his son B.:—Held: the action failed, both because resp.'s evidence was inadmissible to contradict the plain terms of the deed, & because the registered memorial estopped resp. from alleging a trust; having regard to the full particulars contained in the statutory memorial, there was no negligence in not having required production of the deed itself.—TSANG CHUEN v. LI PO KWAI, [1932] A. 4a. Right of Crown to legislate for protectorate—Notwithstanding grant of territory within protectorate.]—The legislative authority over the territory of a Crown Protectorate belongs to the Crown & is controllable only by the Imperial Parliament.

Under the Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1890 (c. 37), the prerogative power of legislation in respect of Protectorates is exercised by Orders in Council, & these Orders have statutory effect. A grant of land in a Protectorate by the Crown is an executive & not a legislative act, & cannot by itself impose a fetter on the legislative power of the Crown. Where therefore by a subsequent Order in Council the Crown has exercised legislative powers in respect of the land previously granted, the legislative power so exercised is valid. The doctrine of derogation from grant cannot be applied in the case of a grant by the Crown so as to deprive it of its paramount right to legislate for the Protectorate in which the subject of the grant is situate. The Crown cannot renounce or fetter its legislative authority by the mere fact that in the exercise of its prerogative it makes a grant of land within the territory over which the legislative authority exists.—NORTH CHARTERLAND EXPLORATION CO. 10a. —— ——.]—An extension of British jurisdiction in a British protectorate by Orders in Council may be referred to an exercise of power by an act of State, unchallengeable in any British ct., or to statutory powers given by Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1890 (c. 37), under which the jurisdiction acquired by the Crown in a protected country is indistinguishable in legal effect from that acquired by conquest. The Crown cannot, except by statute, deprive itself of freedom to make Orders in Council, even such as are inconsistent with previous Orders.

Before the conquest & annexation of the South African Republic Swaziland was an independent native State, treated as a protected dependency of that Republic, by which it was administered under a Convention made in 1894 between Great Britain & the Republic. The Convention provided for the preservation of native law, & the agricultural & grazing rights of the natives. The annexation did not extend to Swaziland. Subsequently under Orders in Council certain lands in Swaziland were expropriated to the Crown, to the extinguishment of the use & occupation of them by natives under native law, certain lands being allotted exclusively to the natives :—Held : the Orders in Council were effective, even if they were not within the powers recognised by the Convention.—SOBHUZA II. v. MILLER, [1926] A. Applt., as common informer, brought an action to recover penalties under the Order from resp., who he alleged had sat and voted after his seat had become vacant under its provisions by reason of his having a pecuniary interest in a contract with the Govt. In 1928, after the action had been brought, but before its trial, an amending Order in Council was made providing that the action should be dismissed ; it also amended the Order of 1923 so as to except the office held by the respondent from its operation :—Held : the Order of 1928 was valid, having regard to the power reserved by the Order of 1923, & was an effective defence to the action, although it was retrospective in its operation.—ABEYESEKERA v. JAYATILAKE, [1923] A. C. 260 ; 101 L. J. P. C. 40 ; 146 L. T. 193. 48 T. L. R. 71 ; 75 Sol. Jo. 884, P. C.

20a. Power of expropriation in mandated territory.]—By the Mandate for Palestine, dated July 24, 1922, the Council of the League of Nations, acting under art. 22 of the Covenant of the League, entrusted to Great Britain the administration of Palestine. Art. 2 of the Mandate provided that Great Britain should be responsible for "safeguarding the civil & religious rights of the inhabitants of Palestine irrespective of race & religion." In 1923 an Order in Council authorised the High Comr. for Palestine to promulgate such ordinances as might be necessary for the peace, good order, & government of the country, & were not inconsistent with the Mandate. The High Comr. promulgated an ordinance expropriating certain spring for the purpose of supplying water to Jerusalem, with certain provisions for compensation.

In an action by the owners of the springs the Supreme Ct., sitting as a ct. of first instance, held that the ordinance was ultra vires, on the ground that it was inconsistent with the Mandate in that the provisions for compensation were inadequate. Special leave to appeal was granted, all questions of jurisdiction being left open. An Order in Council had made provision for appeals to the Privy Council, but only from orders of the Supreme Ct. sitting as a Ct. of Appeal:—Held: (1) the appeal was competent, since the jurisdiction under the Mandate was jurisdiction in a foreign country within the description in the preamble to Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1890 (c. 37); (2) it was the right & duty of the ct. to consider whether the ordinance was consistent with the Mandate, but art. 2 had been misconstrued, & the ordinance was valid; (3) art. 2 did not mean that in every case of expropriation for a public purpose full compensation must be given. Natural justice required that in the absence of exceptional circumstances, fair provision should be made for compensation, but that depended not upon civil right, but upon the principles of sound administration, & it was not within the province of the ct. to consider whether an ordinance was within those principles. Further, the ordinance did make adequate provision for compensation.—JERUSALEM-JAFFA DISTRICT GOVERNOR v. SULEIMAN MURRA, [1926] A. C. 321; 95 L. J. P. C. 46; 134 L. T. 609; 42 T. L. R. 299, P. C.

In 1923 applts. not having then constructed any works, the provincial Govt. granted to resps. a lease of the water power & bed of the river within limits which overlapped those referred to in applts.' letters patent. Applts. brought an action against resps., claiming a declaration that applts. had a vested right in the river to construct dams, & an injunction:—Held: the action failed, since the letters patent contained no grant of a proprietary right in, or power to take possession of, any part of the river or its bed.—UNITED MANUFACTURING CO. v. ST. There must be an "emergency" to justify the exercise of the power; the power can only be exercised for the peace & good government of British India or any part thereof; the Ordinance must not go beyond the power of the Indian Legislature to make laws. There being nothing in the language of sect. 72 to indicate that the Governor-General's opinion on the points referred to above is to be taken as final, the initial presumption is that a ct. of law will have jurisdiction to go into such matters if it becomes necessary to do so, in order to determine any question properly coming before it for decision.—DES RAJ v. R. The said Law of 1921 is not void under sect. 12 of the Act of 1890 so far as it is repugnant to the Waste Land Rules, 1865 (Berar), because the Acts, Orders & Regulations referred to in that sect. are Acts, Orders & Regulations applying to British subjects & do not include the said rules of 1865, which did not purport so to apply. naval forces which it provided & maintained. An Imperial Order in Council made in 1899 under Colonial Fortifications Act, 1877, recited an agreement by which the Government of New South Wales were to erect buildings & carry out works, partly on Garden Island, & the Imperial Government agreed that when the buildings & works were completed & the sites " conveyed, granted, or dedicated in perpetuity for the use of Her Majesty's navy in the same way as Garden Island had been," the Imperial Government would surrender certain lands which were not within 1855 Act, s. 2; the Order then, in consideration of the agreement, vested the lands in the Government of New South Wales. In 1923 the Minister administering the Crown Lands Consolidation Act, 1913 (N.S.W.), acting under sect. 25 of that Act, revoked the dedication of Garden Island :— Held: the recital in the Order in Council of 1899 did not preclude the Minister from revoking the dedication in the manner provided by the Act of 1913, & the revocation was effectual under sect. 25 of that Act, although the notice did not state the manner in which it was proposed to deal with the island. Judgment of the High Ct. affirmed, subject to the declaration made, that resp. State was entitled to possession of Garden Island, being varied to a declaration, in the words of Crown Lands Consolidation Act, 1913, s. 25, that by virtue of the revocation the island had become Crown lands within that Act, & liable to be dealt with in accordance therewith.—AUSTRALIA COMMONWEALTH v. NEW SOUTH WALES STATE, [1929] A. 91a. Enactment preventing King in Council from granting leave to appeal—Criminal case.]—Sect. 1025 of the Criminal Code of Canada, if & so far as it is intended to prevent the King in Council from giving effective leave to appeal against an order of a Canadian ct. in a criminal case, is invalid. The legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada as to criminal law & procedure, under British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), s. 91, is confined to action to be taken in Canada. Further, an enactment annulling the royal prerogative to grant special leave to appeal would be inconsistent with Judicial Committee Acts, 1833 (c. 41) & 1844 (c. 69), & would be invalid under Colonial Laws Validity Act, 1865 (c. 63), s. 2. The royal assent to the Criminal Code could not give validity to an enactment which was void by Imperial statute; exclusion of the prerogative could be accomplished only by an Imperial statute.

According to the well-settled practice of the Judicial Committee His Majesty is advised to intervene in a criminal case only if it is shown that, by a disregard of the power of legal process, or by some violation of natural justice, or otherwise, substantial & grave injustice has been done.

Applt. was convicted in Alberta of an offence under Govt. Liquor Control Act of Alberta, which did not incorporate sect. 1025 of the Criminal Code of Canada, & of an offence under Canada Temperance Act, R. S. Can., 1906 (c. 152). For each offence he was sentenced to a fine, & in default imprisonment. The Supreme Ct. of Alberta, rejecting contentions as to the construction & invalidity of the material sects., affirmed the convictions, but gave leave to appeal to the Privy Council. The Crown petitioned the Judicial Committee to quash the appeals as incompetent, having regard to sect. 1025. Applt. petitioned for special leave to appeal. The petitions were heard with the appeals :—Held: (1) each appeal was in a " criminal case " to which sect. 1025 applied, so far as it was valid; (2) in the absence of argument to the contrary, sect. 1025 prevented the Appellate Div. from giving effective leave to appeal: (3) sect. 1025 did not exclude the prerogative 108a. —— —— Question of substance, not of form.]—(1) The Parliament of Canada cannot, by purporting to create penal sections under head 27 of the above sect., appropriate to itself exclusively a field of jurisdiction in which, apart from that procedure, it could exert no legal authority; if, when examined as a whole, legislation in form criminal is found, in aspects & for purposes exclusively within the provincial sphere, to deal with matters committed to the provinces, it cannot be upheld as valid.

Reciprocal Insurance Act 1922, of Ontario, authorised any person to exchange, through the medium of an attorney, with persons, whether in Ontario or elsewhere, reciprocal contracts of insurance, subject to provisions as to licences & other conditions; & it was provided that actions in respect of such contracts might be maintained in the cts. of the province. A Dominion Act of 1917 inserted in the Criminal Code (R. S. Can. 1906, c. 146), sect. 508c, by which it was made an indictable offence for any person to solicit or accept any insurance risk except on behalf of a co. or assocn. licensed under Insurance Act, 1917, of Canada. In answer to questions referred by the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario to the Appellate Div.:—Held: (2) the Act of 1922 was intra vires the province, since (a) its provisions were capable of receiving a meaning according to which, whether enabling or prohibitive, they applied only to persons & acts within the territorial jurisdiction of the province, & (b) although it might incidentally affect aliens & dominion cos., it did not deal with them as such, but was an Act dealing with contracts of insurance; (3) the making & carrying out of contracts licensed pursuant to the Act were not rendered illegal, or otherwise affected, by Criminal Code, s. 508c; that sect. was invalid, since, in substance though not in form, it was in regulation of contracts of insurance, subjects not within the legislative competence of the Dominion; (4) the answers under (2) & (3) would be the same if any of the persons subscribing to a reciprocal insurance contract was (a) a British subject not resident in Canada immigrating into Canada, or (b) an alien. In so answering this question no opinion was expressed as to the competence of the Dominion Legislature to enact Insurance Act, 1917, ss. 11 & 12 (1), whereby restrictions were placed upon aliens & British cos. in the matter of carrying on insurance business in Canada; but sect. 12 (2) was held to be invalid in relation to the subject of immigration.—A.-G. 121a. —— —— Safeguarding navigation of river obstructed by bridge included.]—British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), s. 91 (10), gives to the Parliament of the Dominion exclusive legislative authority over navigation & shipping, & sect. 92 (10) excludes from the jurisdiction of the provincial legislatures railways & other works extending beyond the limits of the province, & any works which, although wholly situate within the province, have been declared by the Parliament of Canada to be for the general advantage of Canada. In the case of two railway bridges, one of them authorised by dominion statute, which fell within the exception :—Held : (1) the right & power of safeguarding the navigation of the river passing under & alleged to be obstructed by them was also in the hands of the Dominion; (2) the rights & powers of the Dominion were not affected by the provisions of a treaty entered into between Great Britain & the United States in 1842, the Ashburton Treaty, which proceeded on the assumption that the Govt. of New Brunswick had power to make regulations as to the navigation of the river in question, there being no undertaking or guarantee, either to the United States or to New Brunswick, that such powers should remain unaltered for all time, & the change made being wholly consistent with the treaty.—A.-G. The Railway Board made an order declaring its power to grant an application by first resp. for running rights over applts.' line, with permission to construct a short track joining it :—Held : the Railway Board had power to grant the application, since applts.' line was part of a system of railways operated together, & connecting one province with another, & it was within the legislative authority of the Dominion under British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), s. 92 (10) (a).—LUSCAR COLLIERIES v. MCDONALD, [1927] A. 128b. —— Insurance Act, 1927, ss. 11, 12, 65, 66 —Validity.]—By sect. 11 of the Insurance Act of Canada, R. S. C., 1927, c. 101, a licence was made necessary from the Minister of Canada for any Canadian co. or any alien to carry on insurance business within Canada, &, by sect. 12, a licence was also required for any British co. or subject not resident in Canada who immigrated into Canada to carry on insurance business, & sects. 65 & 66 imposed penalties for insuring without such licences. The Special War Revenue Act, R. S. C., 1927, c. 179, imposed taxation on persons who insured with insurers so prohibited. British & foreign insurers obtained licences under the Quebec Insurance Act, & the Govt. of Canada required them to take out licences under sects. 11 & 12, & attempted to recover taxes from persons who had insured with them under the Special War Revenue Act. The Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec referred to the ct. the questions : " (1) Is a foreign or British insurer who holds a licence under the Quebec Insurance Act to carry on business within the Province obliged to observe & subject to sects. 11, 12, 65, 66 of the Insurance Act of Canada, or are those sections unconstitutional as regards such insurer ? (2) Are sects. 16, 20 & 21 of the Special War Revenue Act within the legislative competence of the Parliament of Canada ? Would there be any difference between the case of an insurer who has obtained or is bound to obtain under the Provincial law a licence to carry on business in the Province and any other case ? " :—Held : the answers must be to the first part of question 1, " No " ; & to the second part, " Yes " ; to the second question in both branches, " No." The conduct of insurance had been declared to be exclusively subject to Provincial law, & the Insurance Act of Canada, 1927, was not properly framed alien legislation within sect. 91 of the British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), & therefore was not within the legislative powers of the Dominion, neither was that Act properly framed law as to immigration within the meaning of sect. 95 of the Act of 1867. The taxation imposed by the Special War Revenue Act was void in that the tax was linked up with a Dominion licence which had already by this decision been held illegal.—Re INSURANCE ACT OF CANADA, [1932] A. 130e. Criminal Code, s. 1036 (1)—Disposal of fines—Intra vires.]—Assuming, without deciding, that the term "royalties" in British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), s. 109, includes fines imposed for infractions of the criminal law, any right conferred by sect. 109 on the Province of Ontario to claim fines as "royalties" extends only to such fines as have not been otherwise appropriated by competent authority, & the Parliament of Canada, having by sect. 91, head 27, exclusive authority as to the criminal law, is competent to direct that fines shall be otherwise appropriated, & in what manner. Parliament therefore had power to enact the proviso to sect. 1036 (1) of the Criminal Code of Canada directing that in the Province of Ontario fines are to be paid over to a municipal or local authority bearing, in whole or in part, the expense of administering the law under which the fine was imposed.—TORONTO (CITY) CORPN. v. R., [1932] A. The Dominion could employ its own executive officers to carry out legislation which was within its constitutional authority. It was unnecessary to discuss whether the legislation was intra vires also under sect. 91, head 2 (the regulation of trade & commerce), but the Judicial Committee did not assent to a contention that the power under that head was confined to the furtherance of a general power which the Dominion possessed independently of it. —PROPRIETARY ARTICLES TRADE ASSOCN. v. A.-G. 130g. Aviation—Exclusive power of Dominion Legislature.]—The whole field of legislation in relation to aerial navigation in Canada belongs to the Dominion.

Having regard to (a) sect. 132 of the British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), which gives to the Parliament & Govt. of Canada all powers necessary or proper for performing the obligations of Canada, or of any Province thereof, under treaties between the British Empire & foreign countries, (b) the fact that an international Convention of 1919, a treaty under sect. 132, covered almost every conceivable matter relating to aerial navigation, & (c) the further powers of the Parliament of Canada under sect. 91, heads 2 (trade & commerce), 5 (postal services) & 7 (military & naval services), substantially the whole field of legislation in regard to the subject belongs to the Dominion. Any small portion not vested in the Dominion by specific words in the Act of 1867 is not so vested in the Provinces, & necessarily belongs to the Parliament of Canada under its authority to make laws for the peace, order and good government of Canada. Further, the subject of aerial navigation, & the fulfilment of Canadian obligations under sect. 132, are matters of national interest & importance; aerial navigation is a class of subject which has attained such dimensions as to affect the body politic of the Dominion. Consequently, the Dominion powers under sect. 132 in relation to the obligations under the Convention were exclusive powers, & the Parliament of Canada had authority to enact the Aeronautics Act, R. S. C., 1927 (c. 3), s. 4, & the Air Regulations, 1920, respecting the licensing of pilots, navigators, etc., & the regulation & licensing of all aircraft, aerodromes & air stations.—Re AERONAUTICS IN CANADA (REGULATION & CONTROL OF), [1932] A. 130i. Special War Revenue Act, 1922, s. 17—Validity.]—There is only one Crown, but by legislation assented to by the Crown revenue & property vested in the Dominion are distinguished from revenue & property vested in a Province. There are two separate statutory purses; in each the ingathering & expending authority is different.

By sect. 17 of the (Dominion) Special War Revenue Act, 1915, as amended in 1922, but since repealed, liability to the Crown for the excise taxes thereby imposed was to rank for payment in priority to all other claims of whatsoever kind save administration expenses. By sect. 1357 of the R. S. Que., 1909, all sums due to the Crown in respect of Provincial taxes are to constitute a privileged debt ranking after law costs. By sect. 16 of the Interpretation Act (R. S. Can., 1906, c. 1) no provision in any Act is to affect the Crown unless it is expressly stated therein that the Crown is to be bound thereby. In a bkpcy. in the Province of Quebec the assets were insufficient to discharge both a sum due for tax under the Dominion statute above mentioned & a sum due for Provincial taxes: —Held: that it would have been competent to the Parliament of Canada under the British North America Act, 1867, s. 91, head 21 (bankruptcy), or head 3 (taxation), to enact the statute of 1915 so as to prejudice the rights of the Province, but having regard to sect. 16 of the Interpretation Act the statute had to be read as though it provided that the priority enacted should not operate so as to diminish any right of the Crown in any Province; the result was that the two debts would run pari passu as claimed by the Province.—Re SILVER BROS., LTD., A.-G. 130k. Radio communication—Exclusive power of Dominion Legislature.]—The Parliament of Canada has exclusive legislative power to regulate & control radio communication in Canada.

Great Britain, Canada, & other Dominions & Colonies, having entered separately into a convention on the subject with foreign countries, the Parliament of Canada, under the general powers conferred upon it by sect. 91 of the British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), to make laws for the peace, order, & good government of Canada, had in relation to the obligations under the convention power similar to that which it would have had under sect. 132 if the convention had been a treaty between the British Empire as an entity & foreign countries. The legislative power of the Dominion extended to inter-provincial radio communication on the same grounds that it extended to inter-provincial aeronautics, & because the matter was within "telegraphs" & "works & undertakings connecting the Provinces with any other, etc.," subjects which sect. 92, head 10 (a), excepted from the authority of the Provincial legislatures, & sect. 91, head 29, brought within the Dominion authority.—Re RADIO COMMUNICATION IN CANADA, A.-G. 130l. Natural Products Marketing Act—Ultra vires.]—Natural Products Marketing Act, 1934, of the Parliament of Canada, as amended by Natural Products Marketing Act Amendment Act, 1935, which provided (inter alia) for the establishment of a Dominion Marketing Board whose powers included powers to regulate the time & place at which, & the agency through which, natural products to which an approved scheme related should be marketed, & to determine the manner of distribution, & the quantity, quality, grade or class of the product that should be marketed by any person at any time, was ultra vires of the Dominion Parliament.

The provisions of the Act, in addition to dealing with the regulation of foreign export & inter-Provincial trade, also covered transactions in any natural product which were completed within the Province & which had no connection with inter-Provincial or export trade. The regulation of "trade & commerce" by the Dominion under head 2 of sect. 91 of the British North America Act, 1867, did not permit the regulation of individual forms of trade or commerce confined to the Province, & the legislation in question, therefore, in so far as it related to matters which were in substance local & Provincial & affected "property & civil rights," a subject-matter exclusively reserved to the Provincial Legislature under head 13 of sect. 92 of the British North America Act, was beyond the competence of the Dominion Parliament.

The whole texture of the Act was inextricably interwoven & neither sect. 9, which dealt with inter-Provincial or export trade, nor Part II., which was a genuine exercise of the Dominion legislative authority over criminal law, could be contemplated as existing independently of the main legislation & must fall with it as being in part merely ancillary to it.—A.-G. FOR BRITISH COLUMBIA v. A.-G. FOR CANADA, Re NATURAL PRODUCTS MARKETING ACT, [1937] A. C. 377; 106 L. J. P. C. 64; 156 L. T. 311; 53 T. L. R. 330; 81 Sol. Jo. 235, P. C.

130m. Criminal Code, sect. 498A—Intra vires.]—Held: the sect. was in toto intra vires of the Parliament of Canada under sect. 91, head 27, of British North America Act, 1867—"The Criminal Law, . . ." There was no reason for supposing that the Dominion were using the criminal law as a pretence or pretext for invading the Provincial legislative field, or that the legislation was in pith & substance only interfering with civil rights in the Province.

The only limitation on the plenary power of the Dominion to determine what should or should not be criminal was the condition that Parliament should not in the guise of enacting criminal legislation in truth & in substance encroach on any of the classes of subjects enumerated in sect. 92 of the British North America Act. It was no objection that it did in fact affect them, for if it was a genuine attempt to amend the criminal law it might obviously affect previously existing civil rights.

There was no other criterion of "wrongness" than the intention of the Legislature in the public interest to prohibit the act or omission made criminal.

There seemed to be nothing to prevent the Dominion, if it thought fit in the public interest, from applying the criminal law generally to acts & omissions which so far were only covered by Provincial enactments.—A.-G. FOR BRITISH COLUMBIA v. A.-G. FOR CANADA, Re CRIMINAL CODE, SECT. 498A, [1937] A. C. 368; 106 L. J. P. C. 34; 156 L. T. 308; 53 T. L. R. 340; 81 Sol. Jo. 255, P. C.

130n. Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act—Intra vires.]—By Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act, 1934, of the Parliament of Canada, as amended by the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act Amendment Act, 1935, a procedure was provided whereby (inter alia) a farmer who was unable to meet his liabilities as they became due might make a proposal for a composition, extension of time or a scheme of arrangement to his creditors. If the proposal was not accepted by the creditors the matter was referred to a Board of Review to formulate a proposal. If the creditors or the debtor declined to approve the Board's proposal the Board might nevertheless confirm it, & it was thereupon binding on the creditors & the debtor:—Held: that the Act was genuine legislation relating to "bkpcy. & insolvency" & was accordingly intra vires of the Dominion Parliament under sect. 91, head 21, of the British North America Act, 1867.

The statutory conditions of insolvency which enabled a creditor or a debtor to invoke the aid of the bkpcy. laws, or the classes to which those laws applied, were not intended to be stereotyped under head 21 of sect. 91 of the British North America Act so as to confine the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada to the legislative provisions then existing as regarded those matters.

Legislative provisions as to compositions, by which bkpcy. was avoided, but which assumed insolvency, were properly within the sphere of bkpcy. legislation.—A.-G.

130o. Employment & Social Insurance Act—Ultra vires.]—Employment & Social Insurance Act, 1935, of the Parliament of Canada, which in substance provided for a system of compulsory unemployment insurance throughout Canada, was ultra vires of the Dominion Parliament. In pith & substance the Act was an insurance Act affecting the civil rights of employers & employed in each Province & was accordingly within the exclusive competence of the Provincial Legislatures under sect. 92, head 13, of the British North America Act, 1867, which provided that "In each Province the Legislature may exclusively make laws in relation to . . . (13) Property & civil rights in the Province."

The Act did not purport to deal with, & could not be supported on the ground of, any special emergency arising from the degree of unemployment in Canada at the relevant date.

The other parts of the Act were so inextricably mixed up with the insurance provisions of Part III. that it was impossible to sever them, & the whole Act was therefore ultra vires & invalid.—A.-G. FOR CANADA v. A.-G. FOR ONTARIO, Re EMPLOYMENT & SOCIAL INSURANCE ACT, [1937] A. C. 355; 106 L. J. P. C. 37; 156 L. T. 307; 53 T. L. R. 332; 81 Sol. Jo. 215, P. C.

130p. Weekly Rest in Industrial Undertakings Act—Ultra vires.]—Weekly Rest in Industrial Undertakings Act, 1935, the Minimum Wages Act, 1935, & the Limitation of Hours of Work Act, 1935, of the Parliament of Canada, which in substance gave effect to draft conventions adopted by the International Labour Organisation of the League of Nations in accordance with the Labour Part of the Treaty of Versailles, 1919, & ratified by the Dominion of Canada, were ultra vires of the Parliament of Canada & invalid in that the legislation related to matters coming within the class of subject "Property & civil rights in the Province" which was assigned exclusively to the Legislatures of the Provinces by head 13 of sect. 92 of the British North America Act, 1867.

The legislation could not be justified under sect. 132 of British North America Act, which provided that the Parliament of Canada should have "all powers necessary or proper for performing the obligations of Canada or of any Province thereof, as part of the British Empire, towards foreign countries, arising under treaties between the Empire & such foreign countries," because the obligations under the ratified conventions were not the obligations of Canada as part of the British Empire, but of Canada by virtue of her new status as an international juristic person, & they did not therefore arise under a treaty between the British Empire & foreign countries.

Jurisdiction to legislate for the purpose of performing the obligations of a Canadian treaty does not reside exclusively in the Parliament of Canada: In re The Regulation & Control of Aeronautics in Canada, [1932] A. C. 54, & In re The Regulations & Control of Radio Communication in Canada, [1932] A. C. 304, do not afford a warrant for the contrary view.

For the purposes of the distribution of legislative powers between the Dominion & the Provinces under sects. 91 & 92 there is no such thing as treaty legislation as such. The distribution is based on classes of subjects, & as a treaty deals with a particular class of subject so would the legislative power of performing it be ascertained. No further legislative competence was obtained by the Dominion from its accession to international status & the consequent increase in the scope of its executive functions. There was no existing constitutional ground for stretching the competence of the Dominion Parliament so that it became enlarged to keep pace with enlarged functions of the Dominion executive. If the new functions affected the classes of subjects enumerated in sect. 92 legislation to support the new functions was within the competence of the Provincial Legislature only; if they did not, the competence of the Dominion Legislature was declared by sect. 91 & existed ab origine. The Dominion could not, merely by making promise to foreign countries, clothe itself with legislative authority inconsistent with the constitution which gave it birth.

Further, the present legislation was not concerned with matters of such general importance as to justify the overriding of the normal distinction of powers in sects. 91 & 92.

Lastly, in totality of legislative powers, Dominion & Provincial together, Canada was fully equipped to legislate in performance of treaty obligations, but the legislative powers remained distributed, & if in the exercise of her new functions derived from her new international status Canada incurred obligations, they must, so far as legislation was concerned, when they dealt with Provincial classes of subjects, be dealt with by the totality of powers—by co-operation between the Dominion & the Provinces.—A.-G. 130s. Dominion Trade & Industry Commission Act.]—Sects. 15 (2), 16, 17, & 23 to 26, inclusive, of Dominion Trade & Industry Commission Act, 1935, of the Parliament of Canada, which was passed for the purpose of giving effect to certain recommendations contained in the Report of the Royal Commission on Price Spreads, were intra vires of the Dominion Parliament. Sects. 20, 21 & 22 of the Act, so far as they were applicable to such of the enactments, or to offences created by such of the enactments, enumerated in sect. 2 (h) of the Act as might be intra vires, were not ultra vires.

Sect. 18 of the Act, which provided that the words "Canada Standard" or the initials "C. S." should be a national trade mark, vested in His Majesty in right of the Dominion, & that the application of that national trade mark to any commodity warranted it to conform to the relevant Dominion commodity standard, & sect. 19, by which any producer or manufacturer or merchant was given permission to apply the national trade mark to any commodity provided it conformed to the appropriate statutory specification, were intra vires of the Dominion Parliament under head 2 of sect. 91 of the British North America Act, 1867, "the regulation of trade & commerce." The substance of that legislation was to define a national mark, & to give the exclusive use of it to the Dominion so as to provide a logical basis for a system of statutory licences to producers, manufacturers & merchants. The method adopted in sect. 18 was to create a civil right of a novel character, but there seemed to be no reason why the legislative competence of the Dominion Parliament should not extend to the creation of juristic rights in novel fields if they could be brought fairly within the classes of subjects confided to Parliament by the constitution.—A.-G. In answer to questions referred by the Governor-General, namely: (1) whether the legislature of Manitoba had authority to enact c. 17 of its statutes for 1923, entitled "An Act to provide for the collection of a tax from persons selling grain for future delivery," & (2), if the Act was ultra vires in certain parts, then in what particulars it was ultra vires:—Held: the Act was wholly ultra vires, since in many transactions to which it related the person paying the tax would indemnify himself at the expense of others, & it was not possible to assume that the legislature intended to pass it in a truncated form.—A.-G. all other employees in the Province.

The tax is a direct tax on employees in respect of that portion of their income which consists of wages, & the legislation is therefore valid under head 2 of sect. 92 of British North America Act, 1867, which enumerates " direct taxation within the Province in order to the raising of a revenue for Provincial purposes " as within the exclusive powers of Provincial Legislatures.

Applt. was an " employee " within the meaning of sect. 2 (1) (b) & (d) of the Act of 1933, & the Dominion Govt. was his " employer " within the meaning of sect. 7 of the Act, which provides that in the case of wages paid without deduction of the tax " by his employer " the employee shall forthwith pay the tax. That provision does not impose any duty on any employer outside the Province, & the comprehensive meaning of the term " employer " is free to operate. It is not ultra vires of the Provincial Legislature to provide that if a wage-earner within the Province receives his wages from an employer outside Province without deduction of tax, the wage-earner shall himself pay the tax, whether the outside employer is the Dominion Govt. or any one else.

The provisions of sects, 4, 5 & 6 of the Act, however, by which the duties of deduction, of accounting, of making returns & of keeping records are imposed upon " every employer " under penalties, do not apply to the Dominion Govt.

Lastly, there is here no conflict between the Dominion & Provincial income tax legislation. Both income taxes may co-exist & be enforced without clashing, & there is therefore no room for the application of the 142b. —— —— ——.]—Under B. N. A. Act, 1867, sect. 92, head 2, a Province is not entitled to impose taxation payable on the death of a person therein domiciled in respect of his personal property locally situate outside the Province, but is entitled to impose taxation on persons domiciled or resident within the Province in respect of the transmission to them under the Provincial law of personal property so situate. Personal property outside the Province cannot be treated for the above purpose as within it by an application of the principle mobilia sequuntur that principle relates to the law governing the devolution of personal property, not to its local situation.

If a Provincial statute imposing succession duties makes the exor. personally liable for the duties the taxation is indirect & therefore invalid; that rule is not confined to the case of property within the Province.

Upon the true construction of Succession Duties Act of Alberta the exor. is made personally liable for the duties, & as to personal property outside the Province the duties are imposed upon the property itself, not upon its transmission. Consequently, as to property within the Province the taxation is invalid, because it is not direct, & as to personal property outside the Province it is invalid, both because it is not direct & because it is not within the Province.—Alberta Provincial Treasurer v. Kerr, [1933] A. 164a. ——.]—Lord's Day Act (R. S. Can., 1906, c. 153) made it a punishable offence to run or conduct Sunday excursions "except as provided by any provincial Act or law now or hereafter in force." An Act passed by the legislature of Manitoba in 1923 to amend Lord's Day Act of that province, enacted that it should be lawful to run or conduct Sunday excursions to resorts within the province. Sunday excursions were not unlawful by the laws of England existing in 1870, which were part of the law of Manitoba by 51 Vict. c. 33 (Dom.) :—Held : the Manitoba statute of 1923 being merely permissive, & not dealing with a matter brought within the criminal law, was competent to the provincial legislature under British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), s. 92, heads 13, 16 ; &, that being so, the Act was a provincial Act "now or hereafter in force" within Lord's Day Act of Canada ; it was unnecessary to consider whether the Act of 1923 could be justified as Dominion legislation by delegation or reference.—LORD'S DAY ALLIANCE OF CANADA v. A.-G. 165 xi. —— Provincial legislation as to foreign companies.]—(1) Since the provincial Legislature's jurisdiction with respect to Dominion cos. is limited, it cannot delegate to an official an unfettered discretion which it does not itself possess. Therefore the power given the registrar by sect. 135 of Companies Act, 1929 (Alta.), which requires certain information to be given by a foreign co. when applying for registration, cannot apply to a Dominion co.

(2) The latter part of sub-sect. (1) of sect. 145 of said Companies Act & sub-sect. (2) of sect. 145, dealing with prospectuses, are invalid with respect to Dominion cos.

(3) A provision that foreign cos. shall pay such fees for registration as may be prescribed by order in council is invalid with respect to Dominion cos., since the fees being subject to order in council, may be altered at any time & may be increased so as to make it practically impossible for foreign cos. to come into the province at all & in that way prevent a Dominion co. from carrying on its business in the province.

(4) Requirements of a provincial

Act for the payment of fees by foreign cos. & the furnishing of statements & returns are valid with respect to Dominion cos. if reasonable & uniform & if not such as to prevent such cos. from carrying on business in the province.

(5) Sect. 141 of Companies Act, 1929 (Alta.), requiring the painting, affixing & legible printing of a co.'s name, can be interpreted as intended, although not so expressed, to apply only to transactions within the province & to that extent it is valid with respect to Dominion cos.—Re ROYALITE OIL CO., LTD., [1931] 1 W. —— Provincial legislation as to Dominion companies.]—See No. 165 xi, ante.

165 xii. —— ——.]—The basic idea underlying the Confederation scheme is that there shall be co-ordinate governments, the Dominion on the one hand & the provinces on the other, dividing between them all legislative power in Canada, the one not subordinate to the other, but each enjoying sovereign power within its own field of legislative competency as fixed & limited by the B. N. A. Act. A provincial Legislature may enact laws, province-wide, of general application in respect of any of the subjects enumerated in sect. 92, & in so doing may completely paralyse all activities of a Dominion trading co., provided that in enacting such laws it does not enter the field of co. law & in that field encroach upon the status & powers of a Dominion co. as such. An enactment of a provincial Legislature, limited in direct effect by provincial boundaries, which relates to a particular trade or business carried on within its boundaries, regardless of whether or not that trade or business is carried on by natural persons or cos., is valid; but the moment that a provincial Legislature legislates concerning cos. as such, then, if such legislation constitutes regulation or impairment or sterilisation of the powers & capacities which the Dominion has conferred, the legislation is invalid. Such last-mentioned legislation is not saved by the fact that all kinds of cos., provincial as well as Dominion, are aimed at without special discrimination against Dominion cos. The distinction between provincial enactments affecting Dominion cos. that are of general application & those that may be termed co. law is this: In the former case there is no attempt to interfere with powers validly granted to the co. by the Dominion nor with the status of the co. as such. The circumstance that because of the general laws of the province the co. may not exercise those powers does not destroy or impair the powers. In the latter case the enactment prohibits or imposes conditions upon the exercise of the powers of Dominion cos. as such. It is aimed at & affects Dominion co. powers as distinguished from being aimed at & affecting a trade or business in the province which Dominion cos. may happen to be engaged in in common with provincial cos. & natural persons. In the one case the legislation has to do with a provincial matter, Dominion cos. being only incidentally affected; in the other case the legislation is aimed either at Dominion cos. or at all cos., which includes Dominion cos., & so the province with power to legislate only as to provincial cos. must be said to have entered the Dominion field. Coal Miners' Wages Security Act, 1928 (Alta.), as amended by 1930 (c. 23), s. 2, is intra vires, even with respect to Dominion cos. operating coal mines in the province & shipping coal therefrom to places outside the province. It is legislation provincial in character applicable to all mine owners, whether cos. or natural persons; it does not affect the status and powers of Dominion cos. as such; & it does not encroach upon the Dominion's power to regulate "trade & commerce" as judicially defined.—R. v. ARCADIA COAL CO., LTD., [1932] 1 W. 176a. —— Protection of denominational schools—Meaning of Protestant.]—The Quebec Legislature in 1903 passed an Act, 3 Edw. 7, c. 16, which provided that persons professing the Jewish religion should, for school purposes, be treated as Protestants & have the same rights & privileges; that their children should have the same right of education as Protestant children; & that school taxes paid by them should go to the support of the Protestant schools. Under statutes of Lower Canada consolidated in 1861 by 24 Vict., c. 15, there were outside the cities of Quebec & Montreal (the rural area) common schools & dissentient schools, & within those cities | Roman Catholic separate schools & Protestant separate schools. British North America Act, 1867, by s. 93, conferred on Provincial Legislatures exclusive power to make laws in relation to education, but, by proviso 1, preserved "any right or privilege with respect to denominational schools which any class of persons had by law," & by proviso 2 enacted that privileges conferred by law on separate Roman Catholic schools in Upper Canada should be extended to dissentient schools of Roman Catholics & Protestants in Quebec:—Held: (1) the word "Protestant" in the statutes consolidated in 1861 could not be construed as "non-Catholic," & so as including Jews; & the Protestant community, though divided for certain purposes into denominations, was itself a denomination & capable of being regarded as "a class of persons" within British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), s. 93 (1); (2) having regard to the provisions of the Act of 1861 as to management & control, the dissentient schools in the rural area, & the separate schools in the two cities, had rights & privileges within

177a. —— Separate schools—Roman Catholic separate schools—Courses of study & grades of education in—Right to share in legislative grants.]—The trustees of a Roman Catholic separate school in Ontario, by a petition of right, claimed that certain Acts of the legislature of Ontario, & regulations made thereunder, were ultra vires, in that, & so far as, they prejudicially affected rights which the suppliants asserted that Roman Catholics had by law at Confederation in respect of separate schools, & which consequently were preserved by sect. 93 (1) of the B. N. A. Act, 1867. They claimed: (a) the right to establish & conduct courses of study & grades of education such as are conducted in continuation schools, collegiate institutes, & high schools; (b) the right of supporters of Roman Catholic separate schools to exemption from rates for the support of continuation schools, collegiate institutes, & high schools not conducted by their own board of trustees; (c) that separate schools were entitled under the Separate Schools Act, 1863, to share on the basis therein enacted, in all legislative grants for common schools, including all grants for the support of secondary schools; they prayed for judgment for the difference between the sum which they would have received out of the legislative grant for 1922 if their contentions were right, & the amount paid to them:—Held: statutes passed before Confederation gave to the educational authorities full power to regulate separate schools, including power to determine the courses of study & grades of education therein; also, the fund in which separate schools were entitled to share as enacted by Separate Schools Act, 1863, s. 20, excluded moneys "otherwise appropriated by law," as expressed in the Common Schools Act, 1859, s. 106, & that it was not ultra vires after Confederation to make new appropriations, although they diminished what otherwise would have come to the separate schools. That consequently suppliants' claim failed in law, but that it was open to them to appeal under sect. 93 (3) of B. N. A. Act, 1867, to the Governor-General in his quasi-administrative capacity even if the legislation complained of was ultra vires, since the words "any Provincial authority" in that sub-section included the Provincial legislatures.—ROMAN CATHOLIC SEPARATE SCHOOL TRUSTEES v. R., [1928] A. Sect. 22 of 1870 Act authorises the provincial legislature exclusively to make laws in relation to education so as not to "prejudicially affect any right or privilege with respect to denominational schools which any class of persons have, by law or practice in the province, at the Union":—Held: the 1890 Act, which abolished the denominational system of public education established by law since the Union, but which did not compel the attendance of any child at a public school, or confer any advantage in respect of attendance other than that of free education, & at the same time left each denomination free to establish, maintain, & conduct its own schools, did not contravene the above proviso; & accordingly certain bye-laws of a municipal corpn. which authorised assessments under the Act were valid.—WINNIPEG CITY v. BARRETT, WINNIPEG CITY v. LOGAN, [1892] A. It was evident that the potatoes were not tagged, as the regulations of the Board required them to be. The potatoes were thereupon seized & sent to the Board's warehouse to be sold. Pltfs. obtained an interim injunction restraining the Board from preventing pltfs. transporting potatoes on the highways for marketing without complying with the regulations:—Held: what the Board had done was within the authority given it by said Act, as amended, & that said authority was not, as applicable to the facts of this case, ultra vires of the province; & therefore the appeal should be allowed.—CHUNG CHUCK & MAH LAI v. GILMORE, [1936] 3 W. of a superior district or county ct., so as to make the appointment invalid under sect. 96 of the Act in that it is not by the Governor-General, & the tribunal consequently incompetent. At confederation compensation was assessed by comrs., appointed by the Superior Ct. under an Act of 1864, who did not act as judges of any ct. referred to in sect. 96; they were a legal commission or authority within sect. 129, so that the legislature of Quebec under that section, combined with sect. 92, head 13, had exclusive authority to repeal the Act of 1864 & to assign the assessment of compensation to the present commission, the alteration in the mode of appointment being a matter of procedure within the legislative competence. As by art. 429 awards made thereunder are to be final & not open to appeal, they can be questioned only for want of jurisdiction.—MARTINEAU (O.) & SONS, LTD. v. MONTREAL (CITY), [1932] A. Security Frauds Prevention Act, 1930 (Alta.).]—Security Frauds Prevention Act, 1930, of Alberta, provided that no person might trade in securities unless he was registered with the approval of the A.-G.; a corpn. could be registered, & in that case its officials did not need registration. In effect, the Act precluded a public co. from selling its shares unless it did so through a registered person or was itself registered. By sect. 9 the A.-G., or his delegate, could examine any person or co. to ascertain whether any "fraudulent act," which was very widely defined, had been, was being, or was about to be, committed. The Act imposed penalties for breaches of its provisions, & by sect. 20 made it an offence to commit any "fraudulent act" not punishable under the Criminal Code of Canada:—Held: the Act was within the scope of the powers of the Provincial legislature under sect. 92 of the British North America Act, 1867. It was not invalid in relation to Dominion cos., as it did not wholly preclude them from selling their shares unless they were registered, but merely subjected them to competent provisions applying to all persons trading in securities. Nor was it, as a whole, a colourable attempt to encroach upon the legislative power of the Dominion as to the criminal law; so far as sect. 20 was invalid as so encroaching it was clearly severable.—LYMBURN v. MAYLAND, [1932] A. 179a. Trade disputes.]—Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1907, of Canada, provided that upon a dispute occurring between employers & employees in any of a large number of important industries in Canada the Minister for Labour for the Dominion might appoint a board of investigation & conciliation. The board was to make investigations, with power to summon witnesses & inspect documents & premises, & was to try to bring about a settlement; if no settlement resulted, they were to make a report with recommendations as to fair terms, but the report was not to be binding upon the parties. After a reference to a board, a lock-out or strike was to be unlawful & subject to penalties:—Held: the Act was not within the competence of the Parliament of Canada under British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3); it clearly was in relation to property & civil rights in the provinces, a subject reserved to the provincial legislatures by sect. 92 (13), & was not within any of the overriding powers of the Dominion Legislature specifically set out in sect. 91; the Act could not be justified under the general power in sect. 91 to make laws "for the peace, order, & good government of Canada," as it was not established that there existed in the matter any emergency which put the national life of Canada in anticipated peril.—TORONTO ELECTRIC COMRS. v. SNIDER, [1925] A. 181a. Sect. 4 (3), however, which provided that upon a vacancy occurring among the judges of the Appellate Div. or of the High Ct. h (p. 447) ii. ——.]—An action having been brought against the Commonwealth in the Supreme Ct. of Victoria & judgment having been [illegible]onwealth, on appeal that under Judiciary , s. 39 (2) (a), the only right of appeal was to the High Ct. The Full Ct., on the ground that sect. 39 (2) (a) was ultra vires, rejected the contention, & then heard the & dismissed it. On the hearing of an application by pltf. to the Full Ct. for leave to appeal to the Privy Council pursuant to the Imperial Order in Council of Jan. 23, 1911, the Full Ct., accepting as binding on it the decision that sect. 39 (2) (a) was invalid, made an order granting the leave asked. On appeal to the High Ct. from the order granting leave:—Held: on the hearing of the appeal to the Full Ct. a question arose as to the limits inter se of the constitutional powers of the Commonwealth & those of the State of Victoria, within sect. 74 of the Constitution & sects. 38A, 40A of the Judiciary Act; under sect. 40A the cause was removed to the High Ct., &, therefore, the Full Ct. had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal or to make the order granting leave to appeal to the Privy Council. Whether the Full Ct. had or had not jurisdiction to entertain the appeal, sect. 39 (2) (a) of Judiciary Act is a valid exercise of the power conferred by sect. 77 (iii.) of the Constitution, & therefore the Full Ct. had no jurisdiction to make the order granting leave to appeal to the Privy Council.—THE COMMONWEALTH v. KREGLINGER & FERNAU, LTD. & BARDSLEY (1926), 37 C. A dispute between an organisation of employees & a Minister of the Crown for a State acting under a Statute of that State as an employer which, if it existed between the organisation & a private employer, would be an industrial dispute within sect. 51 (xxxv.), is such an industrial dispute.—AMALGAMATED SOCIETY OF ENGINEERS v. ADELAIDE S.S. c (p. 448) ii. —— ——.]—Held: the educational activities of the States carried on under the appropriate statutes & statutory regulations of each State relating to education did not constitute an "industry" within sect. 4 of Commonwealth Conciliation & Arbn. Act, 1904–1928; the occupation of the teachers so employed was not an "industrial" occupation, & the dispute which existed between the States & the teachers employed by them was therefore not an "industrial dispute" within sect. 51 (XXXV.) of the Constitution. — FEDERATED STATE SCHOOL TEACHERS ASSOCN. OF AUSTRALIA v. VICTORIA (1929), 41 C. L. R. 569.—AUS.

c (p. 448) iii. —— ——.]—Held: the words in the Constitution, sect. 57 (XXXV.) "extending beyond the limits of any one State" as applied to a dispute mean that the dispute is one "existing in two or more States" or, in other words, "covering Australian territory comprised within two or more States." To constitute an industrial dispute there must be disagreement between people or groups of people who stand in some industrial relation upon some matter which affects or arises out of the relationship. Such a disagreement may cause a strike, a lock-out & disturbance & dislocation of industry, but these are the consequences of the industrial dispute & not the industrial dispute itself, which lies in the disagreement. Upon this conception of an industrial dispute, it cannot extend beyond the limits of any one State unless in each of two or more States, at one time, the disagreement exists between people or groups who stand in some industrial relation. — CALEDONIAN COLLIERIES, LTD. v. AUSTRALASIAN COAL & SHALE EMPLOYEES' FEDERATION (1930), 42 C. 186b. Interference with freedom of inter-State trade.]—*Sect. 92 of Commonwealth of Australia Constitution Act, 1900, which provides that trade, commence & intercourse among the States shall be "absolutely free," binds the Parliament of the Commonwealth of Australia equally with the States. The language of the sect., which is quite general & is in terms not subject to any exception or limitation, affords no countenance for the contrary view: it is the declaration of a guaranteed right. By "free" is meant freedom as at the State frontier or barrier, the crucial point in inter-State trade, or freedom in respect of goods passing into or out of the State, & in every case it is a question of fact whether there is an interference with this freedom of passage. On that interpretation of "free" in sect. 92, Dried Fruits Act, 1928–35, of the Commonwealth Parliament & Dried Fruits (Inter-State Trade) Regulations, 1934, made pursuant thereto, which either prohibit inter-State trade entirely if there is no licence, or partially prohibit it if a licence is granted in accordance with the Act & Regulations, contravene sect. 92 of the Constitution & are invalid.—JAMES v. COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA (No. 2), [1936] A. 191a. Reform of Legislative Council—Creation of electoral college—Validity.]—The legislature of New South Wales amended the Constitution Act, 1902 (as already amended) by Act 2 of 1933, entitled the Constitution Amendment (Legislative Council) Act, 1932, & by Act No. 5 of 1933, entitled the Constitution Further Amendment (Legislative Council Elections) Act, 1932. Act No. 2 of 1933 provided that the members of the Legislative Council, instead of being nominated by the Governor for life, should be elected for a period of twelve years by the members of the Legislative Council & the Legislative Assembly, voting at sittings of the respective houses by secret ballot; also, that there should be omitted from the Act of 1902, s. 16, which provided for the Governor being authorised by the Crown to summon the members by an instrument under the Great Seal. The Act of 1902 was further amended by inserting sect. 17A, which provided by sub-sect. (6) that the elections should be held & conducted "as may be provided by law," & by adding to sect. 7A a sub-sect. (7), which provided that where that phrase was used in the Act the law might be made as if sect. 7A (requiring a referendum) was not in force. The Bill for Act 2 of 1933 had been approved upon a referendum. Act 5 of 1933 provided for the conduct of elections held under Act 2 of 1933. The Bill, which had been passed by both houses when Act 2 of 1933 came into force, was not submitted to a referendum:—Held: (1) objections raised by applt. to the validity of the Acts were not sustainable as to Act 2 of 1933; (2) it was competent to the legislature to make the Legislative Council elective, & to provide a special electoral body; the members of the two houses when voting were not exercising the functions of members of their respective house; (3) the Bill had been duly submitted to the electors upon the referendum although no copy of it had been put before each elector, & although the electoral comr. had not inserted in the notification of the receipt of the writ a copy 192a. Bill relating to abolition of Legislative Council—Condition precedent to presentation.]—The Constitution Act, 1902, enacted by the legislature of New South Wales, was amended in 1929 by adding sect. 7A, which provided that no Bill for abolishing the Legislative Council should be presented to the Governor for His Majesty's assent until it had been approved by a majority of the electors voting upon a submission to them made in accordance with the section; & that the same provision was to apply to a Bill to repeal the section. In 1930 both houses of the legislature passed two Bills, one to repeal sect. 7A & the other to abolish the Legislative Council. By Colonial Laws Validity Act, 1865 (c. 63), s. 5, the legislature of the State had full power to make laws respecting the constitution, powers & prodecure of the legislature, provided that the laws should have been passed in such "manner and form" as might from time to time be required by any Act of Parliament, letters patent, Order in Council, or colonial law in force in the colony:—Held: the whole of sect. 7A of the Constitution Act, 1902, was within the competence of the legislature of the State under Colonial Laws Validity Act, 1865 (c. 63), s. 5; the provision that Bills of the nature stated must be approved by the electors before being presented was a provision as to "manner & form" within the proviso; & accordingly the Bills could not lawfully be presented unless & until they had been approved by a majority of the electors voting.—A.-G. 234b .Bechuanaland Protectorate — Magistrates' Court—Limited to criminal matters.]—By a proclamation issued in 1891 pursuant to Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1890 (c. 37), Magistrates' & other cts. were established in the Bechuanaland Protectorate. By clause 8 the jurisdiction of the cts. was not to extend to any matter in which natives only were concerned, unless exercise of the jurisdiction was necessary in the interests of peace, or for the prevention or punishment of acts of violence. By clause 9 where jurisdiction was exercised the decision was to follow the laws & customs of the natives concerned, unless those laws & customs were incompatible with peace, order, & good government. Three natives were parties to an armed & murderous attack upon their tribal chief. As punishment the chief, after consulting & with the approval of his native council, caused their houses to be burnt. The action of the chief was in accordance with the custom of the tribe in the case of an armed rebellion. Two of the natives were convicted by a Magistrate of attempted murder, & sentenced to imprisonment; the sentences were reduced, as the houses of the accused had been burnt. Subsequently the three natives brought civil suits in the Magistrates' ct. against the chief for damages in respect of the house burning, & the chief counter-claimed:—Held: the ct. had no jurisdiction in the civil suits having regard to clause 8 of the proclamation, as the matter was one in which natives only were concerned, & there was no evidence of the probability of any further breach of the peace or acts of violence.

He was tried summarily before a police magistrate, who on Mar. 20, 1933, found him guilty on both charges & sentenced him to nine months' imprisonment with hard labour in respect of the first charge & to six months' imprisonment with hard labour in respect of the second charge, the sentences to run concurrently. Sect. 45 of the Supreme Ct. Ordinance gave every comr. in criminal matters jurisdiction for summary trial where a person was charged with an offence punishable by imprisonment not exceeding six months, & where any person was charged with an offence punishable upon summary conviction, & where any person was charged with an offence which, if proved, could be adequately punished with imprisonment for not more than six months. Sect. 46 gave power to the Chief Justice by special order to authorise an increased jurisdiction to be exercised by a comr., & to revoke such special order, but no such revocation should prejudice the issue of a new special order to the same commissioner. By an order dated Feb. 24, 1928, purporting to be made under sect. 46 the Chief Justice authorised all police magistrates & comrs. to inflict punishment of imprisonment for a term not exceeding twelve months:—Held: sect. 46 of the Supreme Ct. 238a. Rule of English law as to parliamentary control of revenue—Application in New Zealand.]—It is a principle of the British constitution, inherited in the constitution of New Zealand, that no money can be taken out of the Consolidated Fund into which the revenues of the State have been paid, except under a distinct authorisation by Parliament itself; a payment made without that authority is illegal & ultra vires, & the money, if it can be traced, can be recovered by the Govt.

An agreement made in 1913 provided (inter alia) that the Minister of Railways of New Zealand, representing the Crown, should pay to applts. £7,500 when applts. granted a lease to B. & Co. The making of the agreement had been authorised by an Act of 1912, which empowered the Minister, without further appropriation, to pay to applts. out of the Public Works Fund such sum as might be payable in accordance with the agreement. Owing to an alteration in the scheme to which the agreement related, the Minister did not require applts. to grant the lease, & it was not granted. Nevertheless the £7,500 was paid by the Minister of Railways to applts. in 1914 out of a vote included in the Public Works Schedule to the Appropriation Act for the year, & the Controller & Auditor-General passed the sum as being so payable: —Held: as the lease had not been granted the payment of the £7,500 was not authorised by the Act of 1912, & it was recoverable by the Govt. & could be deducted from a larger sum admittedly due to applts.—AUCKLAND HARBOUR BOARD v. R., [1924] A. 265a. Recognition of existing proprietary rights—Effect of proclamation.]—After a sovereign State has acquired territory, either by consent, or by cession under treaty, or by the occupation of territory theretofore unoccupied by a recognised ruler, or otherwise, an inhabitant of the territory can enforce in the municipal cts. only such proprietary rights as the Sovereign has conferred or recognised. Even if a treaty of cession stipulates that certain inhabitants shall enjoy certain rights that gives them no right which they can so enforce. The meaning of a general statement in a proclamation that existing rights will be recognised is that the Govt. will recognise such rights as upon investigation it finds existed. The Govt. does not thereby renounce its right to recognise only such titles as it considers should be recognised, nor confer upon the municipal cts. any power to adjudicate in the matter.

Applts. brought a suit for a declaration that they were proprietors of certain lands situated within territory which in 1860 had been ceded to the British Govt. under a treaty :—Held : upon the facts, & applying the above principles, the suit failed.—VAJESINGJI JORAVARSINGJI v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA (1924), L. 270. Add the following para. :—

There is no authority for saying that the Roman-Dutch law of Holland, which was in force in Ceylon at the date of its conquest by the British, & has not since been abrogated, empowered the subject to sue the Government. Since the conquest a very extensive practice of suing the Crown has sprung up & been recognised by the legislature :—Held : therefore, such suits are now incorporated into the law of the land. Further, where the Crown is pltf. & defts. sue in reconvention, the ct. is not bound to give separate judgments, but may set off the amount awarded to defts. against that awarded to the Crown, & give judgment for the balance.—HETTIHEWAGE SIMAN APPU v. QUEEN'S ADVOCATE (1884), 9 App. Cas. 571, P. 283a. Lagos—Validity of native custom.]—If the occupier of a dwelling in one of the native compounds at Epetedo, Lagos, asserts a right therein inconsistent with the lawful rights of the chief, the chief is entitled by native law & custom to evict not only the offending occupier but also those of his relatives who have supported or sided with him against the chief. The custom, thus limited as to the relatives liable to be evicted, is not repugnant to natural justice, equity & good conscience so as to be one from which judicial sanction must be withheld. The Judicial Committee were not prepared, without further argument, to uphold the custom so far as it was stated to include a right to evict all the relatives ; that extension was not necessary for the decision of the case. A chief should not proceed to eviction without obtaining from the ct. a declaration of forfeiture ; if he does so he will be required very strictly to justify his conduct if it is called in question in subsequent proceedings.—IDEWU INASA v. SAKARIYAWO OSHODI, [1934] A. Native custom originally barbarous—Recognition by court on modification.]—(1) The Governor of Nigeria, purporting to act under the Deposed Chiefs Removal Ordinance, ordered applt. to leave a specified area, & upon his failing to comply ordered his deportation to another place in the Colony. Applt. applied to the Supreme Ct. of Nigeria for a writ of habeas corpus, contending (a) that he was not a native chief ; (b) that he had not been deposed ; (c) there was no native law or custom which required him to leave the area, & consequently the conditions did not exist entitling the Governor to make the orders :—the powers of the Governor under the Ordinance were purely executive & it was the duty of the ct. to investigate the questions raised by applt.'s contentions & to come to a judicial decision thereon.

(2) The Governor can make a deportation order under sect. 2 (2) of the Ordinance without previous proceedings before a magistrate.

(3) A native custom which originally was barbarous, & therefore one to which a ct. could not give effect, may have become recognised by the native community in a milder & acceptable form without losing its essential character of custom, but the ct. cannot itself transform a barbarous custom into a milder one.—ESHUGBAYI ELEKO v. NIGERIA GOVERNMENT (ADMINISTERING OFFICER), [1931] A. 345a. Canada—United Church of Canada—Decision not to enter union—Subsequent decision to enter in accordance with provincial legislation—Invalid.]—By an Act to come into force on June 10, 1925, the Dominion legislature incorporated the United Church of Canada so as to give effect to an agreed basis of union between the Presbyterian, Methodist, & Congregational Churches throughout Canada. The congregations of the uniting Churches were to become congregations of the United Church, & their property was to vest therein. By sect. 10, however, if any congregation voted at a meeting held within six months before June 10, 1925, not to enter the union it was not to be affected by the Act, &, by sect. 4 (c), it was to be deemed not to have become a member of the United Church. The legislature of Nova Scotia had passed an Act, to come into force upon the United Church being incorporated, enacting that property of uniting congregations in the Province should vest in the United Church. Sect. 8 (a) provided that if a congregation, at a meeting held within six months after the incorporation, voted not to enter the union its property was not to be affected, but that if the congregation decided later to enter the union the Act was to apply to it & its property. A Presbyterian congregation in Nova Scotia voted at a meeting held within six months before June 10, 1925, not to concur in the union, but at a meeting held within six months after that date voted to enter the United Church :—Held : as by the Dominion Act which incorporated the United Church of Canada the effect of the earlier vote was that the congregation was not a constituent member of that body, it could not by virtue of Provincial legislation become a member, nor could its property vest upon the footing that it was so ; further, that the later vote could not be treated as a decision to apply to the United Church for admission, with the effect that, if the application was acceded to, its property vested therein under s. 8 (a). The earlier vote, however, did not necessarily for ever debar the congregation from entering the United Church, as the Dominion Act recognised that a non-concurring congregation might become a member at a later time, though the Dominion legislature at present had not provided means whereby a later union could be effected.—ST. s i. —— Requisites of conversion to Hinduism.]—In the Indian Succession Act (XXXIX. of 1925), the term " Hindu " is used in a theological, as distinguished from a national or racial sense. A person of non-Hindu origin can become a Hindu by conversion. Membership of a caste is not a necessary pre-requisite for being a Hindu. It is a question of fact in each case whether a given person is a Hindu or not. A European does not become a Hindu merely because he professes a theoretical allegiance to the Hindu faith, or is an ardent admirer & advocate of Hinduism, & its practices ; but if he resides long in India, abdicates his religion by a clear act of renunciation, & adopts Hinduism by undergoing formal conversion, gives up, along with Christianity, his Christian name & deliberately assumes a Hindu name, marries, in accordance with Hindu religious rites, a person who is a Hindu by race & religion, & cuts himself off from his old environments, & takes to the Hindu mode of life, in such a case the Ct. may justly come to the conclusion that he is a Hindu within Indian Succession Act. sg. South Africa—Property originally vested in Lord Bishop of Cape Town as trustee—Appointment of new trustee.]—Petitioners, who were churchwardens & members of Trinity Church, Cape Town, applied for an order appointing trustees to administer the trusts attaching to the property upon which the church was built. The property in question was transferred on Nov. 7, 1849, to " the Lord Bishop of Cape Town & his successors in the said See as trustees in perpetuity, for ecclesiastical use in connection with the Church of England in this colony." Notice of the application had been given to the present Archbishop of Cape Town & the Registrar of the Diocese of Cape Town, who were cited as resps. on an objection in limine taken by resps. the ct. held that inas much as there was no natural person filling the office of Lord Bishop of Cape Town as it existed in 1849, the trusteeship was vacant. The objection in limine was accordingly overruled, & the matter postponed to allow resps. to place further evidence before the ct., further evidence having now been produced on affidavit :—Held : (1) assuming that Act No. 3 of 1873 had no application in the present case, the ct. had power under the common law on failure of original trustees to appoint trustees ; (2) the Lord Bishop of Cape Town was originally a bare trustee & no more, the congregation of Trinity Church, as the beneficial owners of the property, had sufficient interest in the property to entitle them to make the present application, & appets. being duly authorised by the congregation to make the application accordingly had locus standi to apply ; (3) the decision in Merriman v. Williams (Foord, 203), that the Church of the Province of S. A. was not part of the Church of England was unaffected by the fact that the former church had adopted a new canon, No. 34, providing for a final appeal in matters of faith & doctrine to a consultative body of which the Archbp. of Canterbury is president, & that therefore the ct. was bound to hold the Church of the Province of S. religious association from the Church of England; (4) though the Crown had refused to exercise its power of appointment of bishops in self-governing colonies or dominions & had left the churches in such countries to organise themselves as voluntary assocns., nothing had been placed before the ct. to show that the Crown had delegated its power of appointment in the Cape Province to the Church of the Province of S. A., or that it had recognised the persons appointed bishops of Cape Town by that church as legal successors to the Lord Bishops of Cape Town created by the Letters Patent of 1847 or 1853; (5) in none of the cases of Re Trinity Church (4 S. C. 174), Cape Divisional Council v. Bishop of Cape Town (4 S. C. 485) & an order of 1886 authorising Bishop West-Jones to mtge. Trinity Church, had the ct. recognised bishops elected by the Church of the Province of S. A. as successors to the Lord Bishop of Cape Town; (6) the Legislature had not by the passing of Acts Nos. 30 (1860), 9 (1891), 11 (1891), 21 (1897), 27 (1909) recognised bishops elected by the Church of the Province of S. A. as legal successors to the Lord Bishop of Cape Town more particularly by reason of the fact that all such Acts were private bills introduced into Parliament by the parties interested; (7) no acts amounting to acquiescence or estoppels on the part of the congregation of Trinity Church so as to debar them from making the present application had been placed before the ct.; (8) as it therefore appeared that there was no living person occupying the position of trustee, it was incumbent on the ct. to appoint some fit & proper person to execute the trust under which the property was held, & in making such appointment the persons beneficially interested in the trust were the persons whose interests were mainly to be considered; (9) though the Archbp. of Cape Town was the person most nearly corresponding to the successor in title to the Lord Bishop of Cape Town, in view of certain differences between the church of which he was head, & the congregation in question, it was not desirable to appoint him trustee, but that certain trustees for the congregation in connection with other property held by it should be appointed, the appcts. to pay the costs of the application & the resps. ex officio the costs occasioned by their opposition.—DAR ROLL v. TENNANT, [1932] S. e vi. —— —— ——.]—By a document dated Mar. 10, 1821, "the British Indian Chiefs of St. Regis," 'for themselves & on behalf of their tribe, whom they represent," purported to lease to C., his heirs & assigns, certain land, part of Crown land reserved for the Indians, & not ceded or surrendered to the Crown by the Indians, on Cornwall Island in the river St. Lawrence, for 99 years, "& at the expiration thereof for another & further like period of 99 years & so on until the full end & term of 999 years shall be fully ended & completed." The Chiefs covenanted "that they are the representatives of the said tribe of St. Regis as well as trustees of their estate & as such that they have a perfect right" to make the lease. The consideration was $100 cash & a yearly rent of $10. C. entered into possession on Mar. 10, 1821, & possession was continued in successive assignees, & it was admitted in this action that deft. was in possession as assignee of whatever rights C. had under the lease. The rent was paid yearly to Mar. 10, 1920, when the Crown refused to accept further rents. From about 1875 the rent was paid to the Department of Indian Affairs, for the benefit of the Indians. 379a. West Africa—Extent of tribal lands—Validity of award.]—In an action involving the extent of the tribal lands of two neighbouring chiefs in West Africa the appellate ct. by consent referred to the final decision of a named arbitrator the question whether a tract of land shown on the survey plan belonged to pltf. or deft. The arbitrator, after hearing evidence & inspecting the disputed area, which was about 100 square miles in extent, awarded to pltf. the land on one side of a line which he drew upon the plan, being about a quarter of the whole, & awarded the rest to the deft. From his award, which referred in detail to the evidence, it appeared that he based his award upon evidence of occupation & possession of seventeen small hamlets or places; of these three were within the part awarded to deft. although the evidence mentioned was in favour of pltf.:—Held: it was competent to the arbitrator to award part of the area to the pltf. & part to deft., but the award should be set aside, because the evidence upon which it was based was not evidence of title to any area larger than that possessed nor as to any boundary, & the arbitrator had misconceived his duty under the reference in that he had based his award not upon title but upon what he considered was a fair division between the parties.—KOBINA FOLI v. OBENG AKESSE, [1934] A. was registered at the Department of Indian Affairs in 1875. There was in evidence a letter of Feb. 26, 1875, from an official of the Department to one B., an Indian, in reply to a letter from B., not produced, in terms apparently recognising rights of C. under the lease. The Crown notified deft. to give up possession at the expiration, Mar. 10, 1920, of the term of 99 years; &, deft. not complying, it took proceedings to recover possession of the land, as ungranted Crown lands reserved for the Indians:—Held: the Crown was entitled to possession. C., 1906, which provides that no deed, contract, document or writing relating to a matter under the control or direction of the Minister shall be binding upon His Majesty unless signed in accordance with the sect., does not apply to a contract which is not embodied in an instrument or instruments in writing intended to be signed by some one on behalf of the Crown. Where, therefore, a written offer for the purchase of Crown land which has come under the control of the Minister provides that the offer, if accepted by an Order in Council, shall constitute a binding contract in the terms of the offer, there is a binding contract if the Order in Council is made, whether or not it is communicated to the purchaser, provided that the Minister has consented to the contract so as to satisfy sects. 3 (2), 7 of the above Act.

(2) Although the Crown is not named in sect. 17 (7) of Ontario Judicature Act, 1881, reproduced in sect. 14 of Mercantile Law Amendment Act (R. S. Ont., 1927), the sect. prevents the Crown from treating time as being of the essence of a contract if before the Act of 1881 it would not have been so regarded in a ct. of equity in an action between subjects. The expression "the rights of His Majesty" in sect. 10 of Interpretation Act (R. S. Ont., 1927), means the accrued rights of His Majesty, & does not cover mere possibilities such as rights which, but for the alterations made by sect. 17 (7) of 1881 Act in the general law, might have accrued thereafter under some future contract.—DOMINION BUILDING CORPN., LTD. v. R., [1933] A. Subsequently agreements were made, & obtained statutory effect in 1930, whereby the Dominion transferred the Crown lands in Manitoba, British Columbia, Saskatchewan, & Alberta to those respective Provinces. The agreements each provided that the transfer should be subject to any trust existing, & to any interest other than that of the Crown, in respect of the lands; that any payments already received by the Dominion in respect thereof should continue to belong to the Dominion; & that the Province would carry out every contract to purchase or lease the land transferred, & "every arrangement whereby any person has become entitled to any interest therein as against the Crown": —Held: the obligation to refund the dues was an "arrangement" within the above cited words of the agreements, & accordingly it was binding upon the respective Provinces. —Re TIMBER REGULATIONS, REFUND OF DUES UNDER, [1935] A. 392b. Lagos—Alienation of native land—Acquiescence by chief.]—Certain lands in Lagos were granted by the British Crown as family lands to Chief Oshodi Tappa, head of the Oshodi family, in 1862. Subsequently he divided the lands into 21 compounds & appointed a head, at that date a slave, who upon emancipation later became an arota, to each compound & in 1869 the Government issued a series of Crown grants absolute in form to the various heads of the compounds so appointed. In 1913 an arota purported of himself, & without reference to the Oshodi family to convey or transfer an absolute or fee simple interest in part of his compound, & in 1927 the purchaser in 1913 claimed to be entitled to the fee simple as the result of a subsequent acquiescence by certain members of the Oshodi family. There was in fact no chief of the Oshodi family for about twenty years of the relevant period:—Held: as there was no consent by the chief & his family as a whole to the transfer, an absolute fee simple title in the property did not pass, & there was no sufficient subsequent acquiescence by the family. Gold Coast—Ownership—Exclusive jurisdiction of Divisional Court.]—After notice has been given under the Public Lands Ordinance (c. 142 of the Laws of the Gold Coast Colony) by the Colonial Secretary of the Colony of the proposed acquisition of lands for the public service the Divisional Ct. of the Gold Coast is, under the Ordinance, & particularly sects. 6 & 7 thereof, the proper tribunal to determine the amount of compensation due in respect of the lands, & also any case of disputed interest in or title to the lands.

446a. —— ——.]—The (Indian) Scheduled Districts Act (XIV. of 1874) gives the ct. of the collector power to try & determine suits of every description, & under the Act the ct. is to be considered as the district & principal ct. of original jurisdiction, & the Act gives a right of appeal from the ct. of the collector to the ct. of the Comr. as the highest Ct. of Appeal. However, the Act provides (r. 9) : "It shall be in the power of the Local Government to refer to the Board of Revenue any case in which the Comr., on appeal from the collector, may have reversed the decision of the lower ct., & the orders of the Board in such case shall be final." On a preliminary objection taken to the competence of the appeal :—Held : the effect of rule 9 was to enable the Local Government to constitute pro hac vice the Board of Revenue a ct. of second appeal with full appellate jurisdiction, but this could not affect His Majesty's prerogative to grant special leave to appeal.—SINGH (RAJA SARDA MAHESH PRASAD) v. BADRI LAL SAHU, [1936] 1 All E. 447a. By Dominion Act—Irish Free State.]—The prerogative right of appeal to His Majesty in Council from the Supreme Ct. of the Irish Free State has been effectively abrogated by the Irish Free State Constitution (Amendment) Act, 1933. The Treaty & Constituent Act scheduled to the Irish Free State Constitution Act, 1922, being parts of an Imperial Act, form parts of the statute law of the United Kingdom. Before the passing of the Statute of Westminster it was not competent for the Irish Free State Parliament to pass an Act abrogating the Treaty, because the Colonial Laws Validly Act, 1865 (c. 63), forbade a Dominion Legislature to pass a law repugnant to an Imperial Act. The effect of the Statute of Westminster was to remove the fetter which lay upon the Irish Free State Legislature by reason of the Colonial Laws Validity Act. The Irish Free State Legislature can now pass Acts nant to an Imperial Act. Petition dism —MOORE v. A.-G. FOR IRISH FREE STATE, [1935] A. C. 484 ; 104 L. J. P. C. 50 ; 153 L. T. 266 ; 51 T. L. 447b. —— Canada.]—On a preliminary objection to the competency of a petition for special leave to appeal to the King in Council from a judgment of the Ct. of King's Bench (Appeal Side) of the Province of Quebec in a criminal matter on the ground that the petition was incompetent by reason of the prohibition of appeals to His Majesty in criminal matters by the Canadian Statute 23 & 24 Geo. 5, c. 53, s. 17 :—Held : the petition was incompetent. Before the Statute of Westminster, the Canadian Legislature was subject to the limitations imposed by Colonial Laws Validity Act, 1865 (c. 63), by which legislation repugnant to an Act of the Imperial Parliament was declared void by sect. 129 of B. N. A. Act, 1867 (c. 3), & also by the doctrine forbidding extra-territorial legislation. These limitations were abrogated by the Statute of Westminister. The extent of the legislative competence conferred on the Canadian Legislature in regard to appeals to the King in Council in criminal matters must now be ascertained from its constituent Act, the B. N. A. Act, 1867 (c. 3). The right of appeal to the King in Council is a prerogative right, & the prerogative cannot be restricted or qualified save by express words or necessary intendment. Sect. 91 of the Act read with the rest of the Act, not by express words, but by necessary intendment, does invest the Canadian Legislature with power to regulate or prohibit appeals to the King in Council in criminal matters. Appeal to the King in Council is prohibited in precise words by sect. 17 of the Canadian Statute 23 & 24 Geo. 5, c. 53.—BRITISH COAL CORPN. v. R., [1935] A. C. 500 ; 104 L. J. P. C. 58 ; 153 L. In this case some of the judges had expressed a strong view that it was desirable that the matter should be considered & finally set at rest by the decision of the Judicial Committee. The question decided involved matters of great public interest & difficult questions of law :—Held : though the Board did not desire to encourage appeals from the High Ct. of Australia, or from any one of the Dominions, or enlarge the class of cases in which such appeals were entertained, this case was eminently one in which special leave to appeal to the Judicial Committee should be granted.—JAMES v. COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA (No. 1) (1935), 105 L. The appellate ct. in India made a decree dismissing the suit & refused to certify under Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, s. 110, that the case was a fit one for appeal to the Privy Council in that it would "involve, directly or indirectly, some claim or question to or respecting property" of Rs. 10,000, or upwards. Petitioner contended that he had a right of appeal under the above words of sect. 110, since if the appeal succeeded he could proceed with a suit, which had been stayed, claiming Rs. 81,000 damages under the contract :—Held : without defining the meaning of "property" as used in sect. 110 petitioner's claim upon the contract was too remote to be considered as being property

The fact that no rules have been made as to the issue of a mandamus in a criminal matter does not preclude the Supreme Ct. from exercising its full powers.

Special leave to appeal to the Privy Council was granted upon a petition alleging two grounds : (1) that the Supreme Ct. had not jurisdiction to issue a mandamus in the circumstances above referred to, & (2) that under the Criminal Code the persons indicted had not the option given by sect. 827 to be tried without a jury. Special leave was granted on the first ground ; the question whether the appeal could be entertained was reserved :—Held : the appeal should be dismissed, since the ground upon which special leave was given failed, & the second ground was merely a question of procedure & was not one upon which an appeal would be entertained.—A.-G. At the trial of two persons accused respectively of performing an illegal operation & of abetting its performance, the judge in the course of his summing-up, after stating that the person on whom the operation was alleged to have been performed was at the time unconscious under chloroform, & that what took place was a fact especially within the knowledge of the accused who were there, directed the jury that the law said that the burden of proving that no criminal operation took place was upon the accused :—Held : that direction did not correctly state the law. It is not the law of Ceylon that the burden is cast upon an accused person of proving that no crime has been committed. The facts of the case were such, however, as to point irresistibly to the guilt of the accused quite independently of that direction to the jury, & there had been no such substantial injustice, no such deprivation of the substance of fair trial, as to justify the grant of special leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council.—ATTYGALLE v. R., [1936] A. 554b. —— ——.]—Applt. was charged in Ceylon with having murdered his wife. The evidence of applt.'s servants, if believed, established that applt. was not in his wife's room immediately before her death, & there was no evidence that applt. was in his wife's room at any material time. There was strong evidence, both in letters written by deceased & of conversations, pointing to a tendency or inclination on the part of deceased to commit suicide. Although there had been quarrels, applt. had never been seen to threaten his wife with any form of physical violence. Evidence was given by a number of medical witnesses, which established that chloroform was the cause of death, but the medical evidence was completely ambiguous in its effect, with no preponderance of opinion among the doctors that the physical conditions of deceased apparent at the post-mortem were such as to be consistent only with the hypothesis of homicide. The doctors were divided in their opinions as to whether death was due to asphyxia or syncope, whether certain marks on the face of the deceased were such as would be caused by burns from chloroform, whether pressure on the face would be necessary to cause such burns & as to the behaviour of persons during the administration of chloroform. At the trial, the prosecution called all available eye-witnesses, even though their names appeared in the list of defence witnesses, & witnesses who gave evidence favourable to applt. were extensively cross-examined as to other & previous oral statements, such procedure being permissible with the leave of the judge under the Ordinance (Law of Evidence) 14 of 1895, ss. 154 & 155. In other cases evidence of what a witness had said was given apparently without previous cross-examination of the witness as to such statements. After the evidence of all the witnesses had been taken, the judge & jury with applt. & counsel went to applt.'s house where the servant witnesses were questioned further & certain experiments were conducted. The jurors were not all together, but were divided up for the purpose of the experiments, each being asked his impressions. The judge in the course of his summing up, discussing the medical evidence intimated that if the jury could not make up their minds from the doctors' evidence, it was still their duty to come to a conclusion on their own observations. The judge in giving his direction as to the facts generally said: "He (applt.) has got to explain. . . . In the absence of explanation, the only inference is that he is guilty" & finally the judge said: "the verdict, whether it is a conviction or an acquittal, I hope it will be unanimous, . . . but if you cannot agree please remember that I have got the full power to ask you to reconsider your verdict, but four to three means an unacceptable verdict. That means you have to go through the trial again. I hope you will not have this misfortune." The jury convicted by five to two, one of the five recommending the applt. to mercy. Applt. appealed :—Held : (1) there being points both for & against applt. but the greater number merely ambiguous & no medical or other circumstantial evidence justifying a conviction, no tribunal as a matter of legitimate inference could arrive at the conclusion that the applt. was guilty; (2) it is not incumbent upon the prosecution in a murder case to call every available eye-witness, & while witnesses essential to the unfolding of the narrative on which the prosecution is based must be called by the prosecution, it is undesirable that the prosecution should call witnesses & at once proceed to cross-examine them; (3) in a criminal prosecution the onus of proof is upon the prosecution & there is no obligation upon the prisoner of proving facts especially within his own knowledge; (4) where a view by the jury is necessary the statutory procedure under Criminal Procedure Code, s. 238 must be strictly followed, & any serious departure therefrom tends "to divert the due & orderly administration of the law." The procedure here followed was altogether irregular; (5) references in a summing up to the necessity for a unanimous verdict in order to prevent a new trial are apt to be misconstrued by the jury & are to be avoided.—SENEVIRATNE v. R., [1936] 3 All E. R. 36, P. C.

554c. Non-direction of jury.]—On the appeal of an applt. who had been convicted in Nigeria of stealing & false accounting it was established by reference to the shorthand record of the judge's summing-up at the trial that he did not give the jury any direction at all as to the onus of proof resting on the prosecution, or that the accused was entitled to have the benefit of a reasonable doubt: —Held: (1) such an omission was as grave an error as active misdirection on the elements of the offence, & a verdict of guilty given by a jury who had not taken that fundamental principle into account was given in a case where the essential forms of justice had been disregarded, & the conviction should be set aside; (2) the general sentence of three years' imprisonment passed on applt. was invalid, for it was applicable to each count, whereas for the offences charged in the counts for false accounting the maximum punishment was two years; (3) when the judge in chambers, in the absence of applt., varied the sentence on the record so that applt. was to receive two years' imprisonment on the counts for stealing & one year on the counts for false accounting, this was a new & different sentence passed in circumstances in which the judge had no jurisdiction to pass any sentence, & the sentence purported to have been thus passed should accordingly be set aside.—LAWRENCE v. R., [1933] A. 554f. Juror unable to understand English.]—(1) A number of accused persons in India were convicted of murder & in some cases were sentenced to death & in others to transportation for life. It subsequently transpired that at the trial one of the jury did not understand English, the language in which some of the evidence, counsel's addresses, & the judge's charge were given:—Held: on appeal, the convictions & sentences must be set aside on the grounds that the effect of the incompetence of the juror was to deny to the accused persons an essential part of the protection afforded to them by law, & that the result of the trial was a miscarriage of justice.

(2) In England the ordinary order would be in such circumstances to award a venire de novo. 561a. —— What amounts to "verbal" evidence—Ceylon Evidence Ordinance, No. 14 of 1895.]—A woman whose throat had been cut was unable to speak owing to the nature of the wound. She was fully conscious, however, & able to understand what was said to her, to make signs & to nod her head slightly. After making certain signs which, it was alleged, possibly indicated applt., she was asked the direct question whether it was the applt. who had cut her throat, & in answer to that question she nodded her head. She died shortly afterwards from asphyxia resulting from the injury to her throat:—Held: evidence as to signs made in answer to questions put to the deceased was admissible, but statements of witnesses as to what interpretation they put upon the signs were not admissible; further, the direct question to deceased whether it was applt. & her nod of assent constituted a verbal statement made by her within sect. 32 of Ceylon Evidence Ordinance, 1895, & as such was admissible in evidence under the section. There was proper & sufficient evidence of a verbal statement by deceased to the effect that it was applt. who had cut her throat.—CHANDRASEKERA (otherwise ALISANDIRI) v. R., [1937] A. 564a. Trial for murder by judge alone—Trial by jury impracticable or not permitted by local circumstances.]—Applt. was convicted of the murder of his wife, & sentenced to death upon a trial in Ashanti without a jury. By sect. 9 of Ashanti Administration Ordinance, 1902, "so far as it is practicable & local circumstances permit" the procedure, civil & criminal, in the Ashanti ct. was to be the same as in the Supreme Ct. of the Gold Coast Colony; in that ct. it was imperative by Ordinance that a trial for murder should be with a jury. The trial judge had not stated that a trial with a jury was not practicable or not permitted by local circumstances. It appeared on the appeal that there never had been trial by jury in Ashanti. The death of applt.'s wife resulted from a wound inflicted by a shot from a revolver while she & the applt. were together alone in a room. By a dying declaration she had stated that the revolver had been fired accidentally by herself in a manner which she described. The applt. in his evidence also attributed the wound to an accident by her. There was much circumstantial evidence:—Held: it should be presumed that a trial with a jury was not practicable, or was not permitted by local circumstances, & accordingly that the appeal failed so far as it was based upon want of jurisdiction; but the appeal should be allowed upon the ground that the applt. had not the substance of fair trial, & had suffered substantial & grave injustice, in that the trial judge, having come to the conclusion that the revolver had been fired by the applt., had entirely failed to consider whether the evidence justified a conviction for murder as opposed to manslaughter, & the Board ..... clearly of opinion that it did not.—KNOWLES v. R., [1930] A. C. 366; 99 L. J. P. C. 108; 143 L. T. 28; 46 T. L. R. 276; 29 Cox, C. C. 199, P. C.

640b. —— Order of High Court—On appeal from application to district judge to file award.]—An appeal to the Privy Council lies under Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, s. 109, from a decree or final order of a High Ct. made upon appeal from an order of a district judge upon an application to him to file an award in ct. The appeal is not precluded by sect. 104 (2) of the Code; that provision applies only to an appellate order of a district judge where the application has been made to a subordinate judge.—RAMLAL HARGOPAL v. KISHANCHAND (1923), L. 640d. —— Not on question of compensation for land compulsorily acquired.]—Act XIX. of 1921 has not the effect of giving a right of appeal to the Privy Council from a decision of the High Ct. upon an appeal from an award of the Tribunal appointed under Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911, assessing compensation in respect of land acquired under the provisions of that Act.—SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA v. HINDUSTHAN CO-OPERATIVE INSCE. 641a. —— Lahore High Court—Jurisdiction under special Act.]—An Act gave power to tribunal set up thereunder to decide questions which in substance concern the nature of the trusts under which the endowments of certain religious institutions were held. They also included questions of compensation for loss of office & questions as regards claims to property in respect of which the tribunal's powers were not limited by any provisions as to value. Under the Act the tribunal was given the same powers as are vested in the ordinary cts. of the country, & its proceedings were to be conducted in accordance with the ordinary rules of civil procedure of the country. The formal expression of its decision was described by the Act as a decree or order. The Act, however, provided that appeals from the tribunal were to be heard by a Div. Ct. & not by a single judge. On a preliminary objection taken to the competency of the appeal:—Held: the jurisdiction conferred upon the High Ct. was intended to include the new subject-matter as part of the ordinary appellate jurisdiction of the High Ct., & the case was within the general principle laid down by VISCOUNT HALDANE, L.C. in National Telephone Co., Ltd. v. Postmaster-General, [1913] A. C. 546, at p. 552, that "when a question is stated to be referred to an established ct. without more, it . . . imports that the ordinary incidents of the procedure of that ct. are to attach, & also that any general right of appeal from its decisions likewise attaches," & the objection could not be sustained.—HEM SINGH v. MAHANT BASANT DAS, [1936] 1 All E. A suit of the class mentioned above having been tried & decided by a native tribunal, the decision was reversed upon the evidence by the Provincial Comr., & his judgment was affirmed upon a further appeal to the Supreme Ct.:—Held: having regard to the provisions of the Ordinance the decision of a native tribunal in a matter of the above kind, being one peculiarly within its knowledge, if arrived at after a fair hearing & on relevant evidence, should not be disturbed without very clear proof that it was wrong, & in the present case there was no such proof.—ABAKAH NTHAH v. ANGUAH BENNIEH, [1931] A. 659a. —— ——.]—(1) There is no appeal as of right to His Majesty in Council from the decision of the Royal Ct. of Jersey in a criminal case. There is no trace in any legislation, or in an authoritative work, of any such right of appeal. The Ordinances of Pyne & Napper, 1591, which, in the light of present evidence, must be regarded as having been properly confirmed by Order in Council & registered, & as having become part of the law of Jersey, support the view that there is no appeal as of right in criminal matters. There is, however, no Order in Council, charter, or other instrument of authority from which it can be inferred that the Crown's prerogative right to grant special leave to appeal, & to allow an appeal, in a criminal case from Jersey has been taken away. That prerogative right still exists.

(2) The prerogative right of entertaining appeals can only be taken away by express words or the necessary intendment of a statute or other equivalent act of State.

(3) The Board treats applications for special leave to appeal in criminal cases & the hearing of criminal appeals so admitted as being on the same footing, &, in the case of misdirection, or in any other case of an alleged failure in the proper trial of a criminal case, will advise His Majesty to intervene only if there is shown to have been such a violation of the principles of justice that grave & substantial injustice has been done.—RENOUF v. A.-G. The Cour d'Héritage, a very ancient ct., had no original jurisdiction to decide as to the validity of wills disposing of immovables in Jersey, because before the Law of 1851 such disposition by will was forbidden & unknown, & there is no ground for conferring any implied jurisdiction on the Cour d'Héritage.—GILBERT v. CHING, [1936] A. 716d. Validity of statute—Whether tax of substantially same character as income tax.]—Sect. 3 of Finance Act (Northern Ireland), 1934, which provides that there shall be paid to the Exchequer of Northern Ireland by the council of every county & county borough an annual contribution, to be raised by means of the poor rate, towards the cost to the Exchequer of educational services, is within the legislative competence of the Parliament of Northern Ireland. Even assuming that under that sect. a tax is imposed on the ratepayers by the central authority, such tax is not "substantially the same in character" as income tax, which, by Govt. of Ireland Act, 1920 (c. 67), s. 21 (1), is expressly excepted as ultra vires the Parliament of Northern Ireland. It is the essential characteristic of the particular tax that is to be regarded, & the essential difference in character between income tax & rates is that the former is a tax on income generally, whereas the latter are levied in respect of the occupation of hereditaments irrespective of the ratepayer's income generally & irrespective of whether he is in fact deriving profits or gains from such occupation.—Re REFERENCE UNDER GOVT. 716e. Government of Ireland Act, 1920 (c. 57), s. 4—Interference with trade—What amounts to.]—Milk & Milk Products Act (Northern Ireland), 1934, is not a statute "in respect of" trade within the meaning of sect. 4 (7) of Govt. of Ireland Act, 1920 (c. 57), but is an Act for the peace, order & good govt. of Northern Ireland "in respect of" precautions for the securing of the health of the inhabitants of Northern Ireland by protecting them from the dangers of an unregulated supply of milk. The Act was therefore within the competence of the Parliament of Northern Ireland to enact, though its provisions preclude a person whose premises are outside Northern Ireland from obtaining a licence for the sale of Grade A, B or C milk in Northern Ireland. If, in considering whether a statute is within the competence of a subordinate legislature to pass, it is found that the substance of the legislation is within the express powers, it is not invalidated merely because incidentally it affects matters which are outside the authorised field. The legislation must not, however, under the guise of dealing with one matter encroach upon the forbidden field.—GALLAGHER v. LYNN, [1937] A. C. 863; [1937] 3 All E. R. 598; 106 L. J. P. The settlement officer found that the area in dispute was included within the boundaries of Zeita &/or Attil musha' lands, & he ordered that the entries in the Haifa land registry relating to the area in dispute be separated from the entries in respect of the lands of Hudeira, & that an observation be made in respect of such entries that in accordance with the judgment of the settlement officer those lands were held to be situated within the musha' lands of Zeita &/or Attil & were recorded as such in the Tulkarem land registry, & that a corresponding entry be recorded in the Tulkarem land registry. Applts. appealed. The competency of the appeal was challenged on the ground that the decision was not one " as to any right to land " within Land Settlement Ordinance, 1928, s. 56 (1). The Land Ct. upheld the competency of the appeal & dismissed the appeal. On appeal to the Supreme Ct., the appeal was held not to be competent & applts.' application was dismissed. Applts. appealed to the Privy Council :—Held : (1) the decision of the settlement officer was a decision as to rights to land in so far as it held that the lands of Khor al Wasa' were musha' lands ; (2) the judgment of the settlement officer was ultra vires in so far as it dealt with questions of rights to land outside the village of Hudeira, which was under settlement, & accordingly the finding that the area of Khor al Wasa', which he held to be outside the boundaries of Hudeira, was musha' land, along with the consequential entries in the land registries of Haifa & Tulkarem, was ultra vires ; (3) in defining the boundaries of the village of Hudeira, the settlement officer was entitled to find that the area of Khor al Wasa' was not in Hudeira, but his judgment ought to be varied by excluding from the findings any finding that the area was musha' land, & also the orders as to entries in the land registries. His real & personal estate amounted to less than £500 in value, & all passed under sect. 1 of Intestates' Estates Act, 1890, to his widow, who entered into & remained in possession until she died intestate. Thereupon her brother, deft., entered into possession as her heir at law. Pltf., who was heir at law of her husband, claimed possession, contending that title must be traced from B. as the last purchaser. He brought a civil bill for ejectment on the title of the premises:—Held : the widow acquired the land "otherwise than by descent," & being the last person to do so she was therefore under Inheritance Act, 1833, the purchaser from whom descent should be traced. Deft., the widow's heir at law, was therefore entitled to remain in possession of the premises.—Bradley v. McAtamney, [1936] N. I. 74.—IR.

He was, before Jan. 1, 1926, when the Law of Property Act, 1925, came into operation, tenant of one undivided ninth share in customary tail special by descent in land formerly of copyhold tenure subject to the custom of gavelkind, but at that date by virtue of sect. 128 & Sched. 12, para. 1, sub-s. (a), of Law of Property Act, 1922 (c. 16), & sect. 202 of the Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), of freehold tenure, the entirety of the land which then became vested by virtue of Part IV. of Sched. I. para. 1, sub-para. 4 of Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), in the Public Trustee, having subsequently become vested in trustees appointed in his place upon the statutory trusts mentioned in sect. 35 of Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20):—Semble : in the absence of a statutory conversion of land into personal estate, the share of T. in the land on his death descended under the Inheritance Act to the heir at common law of the body of the last purchaser & not to the heir in gavelkind of the last purchaser ; the effect of the enfranchisement having been to destroy the gavelkind custom. —Re PRICE, [1928] 1 Ch. 579 ; 97 L. e i. —— —— Effect of separation agreement.]—After being married for three months a husband & wife, then domiciled & resident in Saskatchewan, made a separation agreement under which, as varied by a subsequent agreement, he paid her $2,500 & she agreed to relinquish her rights to any & all lands then or thereafter belonging to him & in particular her rights in the homestead. She also agreed not to take any proceedings against him arising out of the marriage except divorce, & in the event of her suing for divorce that she would make no claim for alimony. The husband died leaving a will in which he was described as of Calgary, Alberta. After making certain specific bequests he left the residue of his estate to his sister. The only reference in the will to his wife was a clause releasing her from any claims which the estate might have against her :—Held : the ct. was empowered to make such allowance as it thought proper to the widow without begin hampered by the provisions of Saskatchewan Widows' Relief Act ; the widow had not so contracted in the agreement as to deprive herself of the benefit of Widows' Relief Act even if she could so contract.—Re ANDERSON ESTATE, [1934] 1 W. After living together for sixteen months they separated by agreement, but thereafter made frequent motor trips together & visits to one another, & on these trips & visits lived as man & wife. She also at regular intervals rendered household services for him without remuneration :—Held : appct. was entitled to relief under the Act, &, under all the circumstances, to substantial relief.—Re MAGI ESTATE, [1935] 2 W. appct. by her husband's will but he stated therein that his reasons for not leaving her anything by the will was that he had already provided for her by transferring certain property to her. This property had at the time of the application deteriorated in value & the rentals therefrom were being collected by the mtgee. Appct. lived in a small house at the rear of the property & had been obliged to apply to the city for relief. The cost of an annuity of $50 per month for appct. would probably be as much or more than could be realised in cash for the estate :—Held : the estate should be charged, next after debts & encumbrances & the costs of the application, with the payment of $50 per month to appct. during her lifetime & should the revenues from the estate be insufficient to provide for this payment the exors. are empowered to encroach upon the corpus of the estate for the purpose of meeting the same.—Re MCDONALD ESTATE, [1937] 2 W. e iv. —— ——.]—Application under Widows Relief Act, R. S. A., 1922. Appct. who had obtained a decree of judicial separation in 1920, had shortly thereafter returned to her husband at his request & in reliance on promises made by him which she alleged he did not keep. In 1923 she left him again & lived thereafter with her son or daughter until her husband's death in 1936, & had refused to see him or communicate with him when he was afflicted with paralysis. She had contributed $1,000 to the farming operations in 1907 & from 1893 to 1923 not only did her own house work but also worked in the fields. She was without any means & the will bequeathed her one dollar ; the residue of the estate was left to testator's sister & to charities :—Held : in view of all the evidence, that it was just & equitable that appct. should be allowed a share of the estate equal to that to which she would have been entitled had her husband died intestate.—Re WILSON ESTATE, [1937] 1 W. She was not, however, a lunatic so found by inquisition, & never had a committee or receiver. She died at the home on Feb. 1, 1929, a spinster & intestate, aged seventy-six :—Held : her real estate went to her heir-at-law under Administration of Estates Act, 1925 (c. 23), s. 51 (2), which exemption section, read with the definition section, sect. 55 (1) (viii.), was not confined to cases where a lunatic or defective had a committee or receiver.—Re GATES, GATES v. GATES, [1930] 1 Ch. 199 ; 99 L. She remained in that condition until her death in 1932. At her death all the persons who would have been interested under her will were dead, with the result that her property (which included the proceeds of sale of an undivided three-fourths share in certain freehold land) devolved as under an intestacy. Her share in the freehold land had been sold in 1923. A summons was taken out by her administrator for the determination of the question whether the proceeds of the sale of the property devolved upon her heirs at law or upon her next of kin : —Held : the capital devolved upon the heirs at law under Lunacy Act, 1890 (c. 5), s. 123 (1), & was not affected by the transitional provisions of Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), but fell within the exceptions provided for by Administration of Estates Act, 1925 (c. 23), s. 51 (2) ; & with regard to the dividends, so much thereof as had accrued before the death of testatrix devolved upon the next of kin as personal property, & so much thereof as had accrued since her death devolved upon the persons who became entitled to the real estate.—Re HARDING, WESTMINSTER BANK, LTD. v. LAVER, [1934] Ch. 271 ; 103 L. 283f. —— —— "In accordance with the general law"—Exclusion of custom of gavelkind.]—An intestate, who was, at the date of her death, a spinster of full age had, since before Jan. 1, 1926, been a person of unsound mind. She died in 1933, possessed of land in Kent which had, before 1926, been subject to the custom of gavelkind. Administration of Estates Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 51 (2), which applied to the case, requires that the land shall "devolve in accordance with the general law in force before" 1926:—Held: the requirement that the land should devolve in accordance with the general law prevented the application of the special custom of gavelkind, & the land devolved upon the heir-at-law according to the common law.—Re HIGHAM, HIGHAM v. HIGHAM, [1937] 2 All E. 283g. —— Estate tail—1925 Act, s. 51 (3)—Application to notional settlement on intestacy.]—In 1925 an infant S. inherited land as eldest son & heir of an intestate, subject to his mother's right to dower. On Jan. 1, 1926, the Settled Land Act, 1925 (c. 18), came into operation, & under sect. 1 (2) S. was treated as deriving his title under the settlement deemed to have been made by the intestate, his mother's right to dower being preserved by sect. 1 (3). On Oct. 8, 1930, S. died an infant & unmarried:—Held: Administration of Estates Act, 1925 (c. 23), s. 51 (3), applies to the case of a notional settlement on intestacy, so that S.'s interest had become an entail & ceased on his death as an unmarried infant. Consequently the estate went to S.'s younger brother as next heir of the intestate & not to S.'s mother under Administration of Estates Act, 1925 (c. 23), s. 46 (1) (iv.).—Re TAYLOR, PULLAN v. TAYLOR, [1931] 2 Ch. 242; 100 L. 283h. Distributive share—Right of murderer of intestate.]—Semble: the rule of public policy which prevents a sane murderer from taking any benefit under his victim's will prevents him also from taking a distributive share under his victim's intestacy.

In the present case the murderer was insane, but if the point arose for decision, the views of FRY, L.J., in Cleaver v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, [1892] 1 Q. B. 147, 157, 158, would probably prevail over those of JOYCE, J., in In re Houghton, No. 170, & the peremptory provisions of Administration of Estates Act, 1925 (c. 23), s. 46, would be read & construed subject to the public policy rule.—Re PITTS, COX v. KILSBY, [1931] 1 Ch. 546; 100 L. 328a. Funds appointed — Appointor illegitimate— Death of appointee in lifetime of appointor.]—Testatrix, who was illegitimate, exercised by her will a power of appointment over certain funds in favour of her husband. Her will contained the prefatory words " to the intent that this my will shall take effect whether I survive or predecease my husband." Her husband predeceased her :—Held : the presence in the will of the prefatory words was not sufficient, in the absence of a substitution of other legatees in the event of her husband predeceasing her, to show an intention, within the meaning of the authorities, that the husband's estate should take the benefit of the appointed funds. Consequently there was a lapse of those funds, &, as testatrix was illegitimate, & had never had issue, the funds became bona vacantia & went to the Crown.—Re LADD, HENDERSON v. PORTER, [1932] 2 Ch. 219 ; 101 L. In 1794 the master had reported that the lunatic had no heir-at-law or next of kin. In 1798 & 1801 the Crown made ex gratiâ grants of the funds to certain persons & obtained an indemnity in respect of the grants. In 1926 a petition was presented by persons claiming to be the next of kin of the lunatic for the payment to them of the whole of her personal estate. The parties sought a determination of the following questions : (1) whether the petition was maintainable on the assumption that no part of the funds ever came into the hands of or was dealt with by his present Majesty or his nominees or grantees or was carried to the Consolidated Fund ; (2) whether the petition was barred by any Statute of Limitations ; (3) whether in view of Petitions of Right Act, 1860 (c. 34), s. 5, suppliants could proceed without serving the petition upon the successors in title of the persons to whom the ex gratiâ grants had been made :—Held : the first question must be answered in favour of suppliants.—Re MASON, [1928] Ch. 385 ; 97 L. a i. —— —— Statutory right to sue Crown.]—When a statute gives the right to sue an officer or representative of the Crown according to the ordinary practice & procedure of the ct., it must be taken to subject the officer or representative to the compulsory process of the ct. in relation to ordinary incidents of practice & procedure, subject to any special saving or exemption.

The South Australian Harbours Board is an incorporated agent of the Crown under the Harbours Act, 1913, & is empowered to sue & be sued, & by sect. 75 (2), if default is made in the performance of any duty authorised, such actions or suits may be brought as might be brought if the contract had been made between private persons. In an action in respect of such an authorised contract pltf. applied for discovery against deft. Harbours Board :—Held : the general tenor of the Harbours Board Act, 1913, is more consistent than otherwise with the intention to subject deft. Board to the ordinary jurisdiction of the ct. with regard to discovery, & accordingly deft. was compellable to make discovery.—GONINAN (A.) & Co., LTD. v. SOUTH AUSTRALIAN HARBOURS BOARD, [1931] S. 437b. ——.]—Before the hearing of the action, an application by pltfs. that deft. be ordered to make a further & better affidavit of documents, or in the alternative, that an order be made, under R. S. C., Ord. 31, r. 19A (3), was refused by the master, on the ground that such an order would be contrary to practice. Pltfs. appealed. It appeared from certain letters that had been disclosed that there were certain letters relative to the issues in the action, as well as other documents, which had not been disclosed ; but it was contended on behalf of deft. that, since the coming into operation of the rule, it was no longer open to a pltf. in such a case to ask for a general further & better affidavit, but that he was confined to the remedy given to him by the rule. It was held by ROMER, J., that the rule did give to persons objecting to an affidavit of documents certain rights which did not exist before the rule was framed ; but that it should not be read as interfering with the rights which were possessed before it came into force ; & that it was apparent, from sources which might be — to, that the deft. had in his possession other documents not disclosed in his affidavit. Deft. was ordered to file a further affidavit. Deft. appealed to the Ct. of Appeal, where the appeal was dismissed on the ground that the service of the notice was out of due time. Deft. filed a further affidavit, whereupon pltfs. applied for a further & better affidavit before MAUGHAM, J., who made an order under R. S. C., Ord. 31, r. 19A (3), ordering deft. to state by affidavit whether the particular documents referred to by the judge, including any documents relating to distribution by deft. of samples of belting & including other specific documents, had at any time been in deft.'s possession, & if not then in his possession, when he parted with them & what had become thereof. Pltfs. appealed, by leave, to the Ct. of Appeal :—Held : the appeal should be allowed with costs in any event ; R. S. C., Ord. 31, r. 19A (3), did not cut down the powers of the ct. as expressed in the case of Jones v. Monte Video Gas Co., L. R. 5 Q. B. D. 556 ; the order of ROMER, J., must be complied with ; it was an order which was intended to be based upon Jones v. Monte Video Gas Co., & there were materials which showed that a further affidavit was necessary ; & a further affidavit must be made by deft.—REDDAWAY (F.) & Co., LTD. v. HARTLEY (1930), 48 R. 1087a. —— ——.]—Notwithstanding a statement in deft.'s answer that a deed of conveyance, the production of which is sought by pltf. for his inspection, is his title deed, & does not in any manner evidence pltf.'s title, the deed will be ordered by the ct. to be produced if it appear on the face of the answer that its contents may prove material to pltf.'s case.

A partition was made, prior to the reign of King Henry VIII., of an ancient manor, by dividing it into two reputed manors, to which divers tenements were respectively allotted in severalty, but a considerable portion of waste lands of the original ancient manor continued undivided, the property of the two lords of the reputed manors, as tenants in common. The information stated that part of deft.'s ancient freehold tenements, situate within one of the reputed manors, consisted of uninclosed lands, & that some portion thereof was waste land held of the ancient manor, & that of such the informant was tenant in common with the deft.; deft. admitted, by his answer, that there were such waste lands, but stated that the same were allotted, & formed part of deft.'s ancient freehold tenements, & that deft., in the year 1829, obtained from the lord of the reputed manor in which his ancient tenements were situate, a conveyance of the manorial & other rights, fine rents, etc., belonging to the lord over those tenements, except the right to tin-stuff & sporting. The information insisted that the uninclosed lands, except the ancient tenements, were held by the two lords as tenants in common, & were subject to tin-bounds, & that waste & unallotted lands only were subject to tin-bounds. Deft. stated that there was a difference of opinion, as to whether lands subject to tin-bounds were always waste lands, & insisted that the deed of conveyance of 1829 was the title deed of deft., & in no manner evidenced the informant's title. The deed & the map delineated thereon, were, notwithstanding, ordered to be produced for the informant's inspection.—A.-G. OF PRINCE OF WALES v. LAMBE (1848), 11 Beav. 213; 17 L. J. Ch. 154; 10 L. 1209a. —— ——.]—(1) In an action to recover damages for personal injury incurred in an accident on defts.' railway, an order having been made for discovery of documents, defts. in an affidavit stated that they had in their possession a copy of a report made by them to the Ministry of Transport under Regulation of Railways Act, 1871 (c. 78), s. 6. They objected to produce this document on the ground that it was a copy of a confidential document made in discharge of their duty to the Crown & that it was privileged inasmuch as it could not be disclosed without injury to the public interest. The deponent also produced & verified a copy of a letter written by him to the Minister of Transport, & the reply thereto of the Minister to the effect that reports made in pursuance of sect. 6 of the Act aforesaid were furnished for his own information & guidance & that it was his practice in the public interest to decline any request to inspect these reports or to obtain copies of them :—Held : it was the practice of the ct. to accept the statement of a Minister of the Crown upon the question whether production of a document would be contrary to the public interest ; & consequently the document in question was privileged from production.

PART III. SECT. 15.

1311 ii a. ——.]—Ord. 31, r. 14, sub-r. (2), of the South Australian Rules of Court—which, like R. S. C., Ord. 31, r. 19A, sub-r. (2), of the English rules, provides that where on an application for an order for inspection privilege is claimed for any document, it shall be lawful for the ct. or a judge to inspect it for the purpose of deciding as to the validity of the claim, applies where privilege is claimed for an official document on the ground that its disclosure would be contrary to the interests of the public, even though the claim is supported by a statement to that effect by the Minister responsible. The ct. has always had in reserve the power to inquire into the nature of the document for which protection is so sought, & to require some indication of the injury which would result from its production. When a State, being a party to litigation & bound to give discovery, claims privilege for documents upon the ground above stated, the claim should be made under oath by a responsible Minister whose mind has been directed to the material question. A claim to protection in the case of documents relating to the trading, commercial or contractual activities of a State can rarely be sustained, especially in time of peace. That documents would prejudice the case of the State in the litigation, or assist the other party, is a compelling reason for their production only to be overborne by the gravest reasons of State policy or security. Applt. brought an action in the Supreme Ct. of South Australia against resp. State claiming damages for alleged negligence in the care of wheat placed in the control of the State under Wheat Harvest Acts, 1915-17. Upon an order for discovery the respondent State, by an affidavit made by a civil servant, claimed privilege in respect of 1,892 documents tied in three bundles, & stated to be State documents, comprising communications between officers administering the department concerned; there was exhibited to the affidavit a minute by the responsible Minister stating (inter alia) that disclosure of the documents would be contrary to the interests of the State & of the public:—Held: the minute was inadequate to support the claim of privilege, as it was too vague in the circumstances of the case, & was not a statement on oath showing that the Minister had himself considered each of the documents, or indicating the nature of the suggested injury to the interests of the public; & the Supreme Court should exercise its power under Ord. 31, r. 14, sub-r. (2), to inspect the documents, that course being less likely to cause delay than an order for a further and better affidavit of documents.—ROBINSON v. SOUTH AUSTRALIA STATE (No. 2), [1931] A. In support of this application an affidavit was filed on behalf of defts. by their solrs., setting out their defence to the action, & in that affidavit documents were made exhibits for the purpose of substantiating the defence alleged. The interlocutory judgment was set aside on July 11, 1890, after which no further steps were taken in the action, owing to proposals for a compromise being made. On Jan. 21, 1891, pltf. applied to defts. for inspection of the documents made exhibits in the affidavit:—Held: pltf. was entitled to inspection.—HUNTER v. DUBLIN, ETC. RY. Co. (1891), 28 L. R. f i. ——.]—In an action for libel said to be contained in a letter written by deft. to the husband of pltf. deft. on being examined for discovery, admitted the authorship of the letter but refused to answer questions directed to finding out who the person referred to in the letter as " lady friend " was, pltf. not being named in the letter. Deft. in his statement of defence denied all the allegations of the statement of claim, & said that, if the words were written & published of & concerning pltf., as alleged, it was without malice & upon a privileged occasion :—Held : deft. should answer the questions ; the alleged libel having made a reference that could only be understood having regard to extraneous circumstances, the questions were relevant to show that pltf. was the person who would be understood by her associates or persons acquainted with the circumstances, to have been referred to, & the questions were also relevant upon the issue as to malice raised by the defence of privilege.—MORLEY v. PATRICK (1910), 21 O. 1535 i. Persons to whom libel published.]—In an action against a mercantile agency for libel pltf. in his statement of claim & particulars gave the names of certain cos. to whom the alleged defamatory reports were published & added " & other individuals, organisations & cos. at present unknown to pltf." Deft.'s affidavit on production of documents, after referring to a certain document, denied that there was in its possession or power any other document relating to the matter in question. The deponent was examined on the affidavit &, he, in answer to certain questions, stated that he did not know & he refused to answer other questions. Pltf. obtained an order from the master that the deponent submit to another examination & answer the questions set out in the order. Deft. appealed, contending that pltf. had no right to the disclosure of any matter relating to reports to persons other than those named by pltf. :—Held : since the admitted document containing the libel bore intrinsic evidence of having emanated from deft. & there was also evidence that similar reports had been received by other persons, it could not be said that the claim was " a sham or bogus claim " or that the application was mere " fishing," &, therefore, the master was right.—CHERTKOW v. RETAIL CREDIT CO., [1932] 1 W. Pltf. sued defts., the printers & publishers of a book, written by one P., which contained statements which pltf. alleged were defamatory of him. To that action P. was not made a deft. Defts. pleaded fair comment made in good faith & without malice. Pltf., who pleaded in reply that the words were written falsely & maliciously, sought to administer an interrogatory to defts. asking (inter alia), " What information had P. when he wrote the words complained of . . . which induced you &/or the said P. & which of you to believe that the expressions of opinion or any & which of them in the said words contained & which you allege . . . are fair comment made in good faith & without malice, were true " :—Held : the interrogatory in this form was inadmissible, as defts. could not be asked as to the information which P., who was not their servant or agent, had on the subject at the time of the publication of the book. Defts. could only be asked what information, if any, they themselves had as to the knowledge of P. when they respectively printed & published the book.—CROZIER v. WISHART BOOKS, LTD., [1936] 1 K. 1702a. Enticement of husband—Questions not directed to adultery.]—Pltf. brought an action against deft., a married woman, for wrongfully enticing away pltf.'s husband. She alleged that deft. solicited the affections of her husband by providing him with large sums of money, & that on Jan. 10, 1928, pltf.'s husband in consequence of deft.'s enticement deserted pltf., & that since then deft. & pltf.'s husband had lived together as man & wife. Pltf. also alleged that in consideration of her abandoning her claim to maintenance under a maintenance order, her husband agreed to hand over to her a certain house which he had purchased, that she took possession of the house & had been forcibly evicted therefrom by deft.'s servants. Deft. in her affidavit of documents admitted that she had made certain loans & gifts of money to pltf.'s husband & had in her possession certain documents relating thereto, but she objected to produce them on the ground "that they may tend to expose me to ecclesiastical censure & punishment." Deft. successfully resisted an application for the production of the documents. Pltf. then applied for liberty to administer to deft. certain interrogatories relating, mainly, to the gifts of money & to the purchase & mtge. of the house. The Master of the Judge in Chambers refused to allow pltf. to administer the interrogatories to deft. On appeal:—Held: inasmuch as the cause of action was not based on adultery & the object of the action was not to prove adultery, & the interrogatories which it was sought to administer were not addressed directly or indirectly to the sole proof of adultery but were intended to show the means by which the desertion of pltf. by her husband was procured, & to prove the trespass to a house in which pltf. was living by permission of her husband, therefore the interrogatories were admissible & deft. was bound to answer them.—ELLIOTT v. ALBERT, [1934] 1 K. 1705a. Shares—Refusal of company to register transfer—Grounds for refusal.]—Art. 27 of a co.'s arts. of assocn. was as follows: "The directors may without assigning any reason decline to register any transfer of shares not fully paid up made to any person not approved by them or made by any member jointly or alone indebted or under any liability to the co." Pltf. was the holder of 10,000 partly paid cumulative preference shares of £1 each in the co., & in Dec. 1925, executed a transfer of 8,000 of these shares to a transferee. Registration of the transfer was refused, & pltf. brought an action claiming a declaration that deft. co. was not entitled to refuse registration of the transfer & rectification of the co.'s register accordingly. Earlier in 1925 the co. had issued debentures secured by a debenture trust deed, in which the co. covenanted with the trustees that it would not in regard to 100,000 preference shares register until the shares were fully paid any transfer of any of them to any proposed transferee not approved by the trustees, & would not, except with the previous written consent of the trustees, release any of the holders of these shares from any money payable or which might become payable in respect of such shares. Pltf. alleged by his statement of claim that deft. co. had wrongfully refused to register the transfer, that the directors did not exercise any proper discretion under the arts., & that they had abdicated their discretion by entering into the above covenant with the trustees. Defts. by their defence claimed to have exercised the discretion under the art. bonâ fide. Pltf. sought to interrogate deft. co. by asking: (1) Whether the co. said that the directors had declined registration in exercise of the power to decline to register any transfer made to any person not approved by them or in exercise of the power to decline to register any transfer by a member jointly or alone indebted to the co.; (2) whether they said that the transfer was to a person of whom the directors did not approve; (3) whether they said pltf. was in fact a person jointly or alone indebted to the co.; (4) whether the debenture trust deed was referred to by any one at any meeting at which the question of registering the transfer was discussed:—Held: all the interrogatories were proper to be allowed. Deft. co. was not entitled to refuse to state which of the grounds mentioned in the art. the directors had acted under, although it might refuse to say what reasons influenced them in exercising their discretion upon that ground.—SUTHERLAND (DUKE) v. BRITISH DOMINIONS LAND SETTLEMENT CORPN., LTD., [1926] Ch. 746; 59 L. 1705b. —— —— ——.]—Art. 16 of the co.'s articles of association provided: "The directors may decline to register any transfer of shares made by a member who is indebted to the co. or in case the transferee shall be a person of whom the directors do not approve or shall be considered by them objectionable, or the transfer shall be considered as having been made for purposes not conducive to the interests of the co. & the directors shall not be bound to specify the grounds upon which the registration of any transfer is declined under this article. . . ."

The co. refused to register the transfer by pltf. B. to pltf. S. of a share in the co.'s capital of which B. was the registered holder. By this action pltfs. claimed (inter alia) a declaration that the co. was not entitled to decline to register the transfer, & an order that the register of members of the co. should be rectified by the deletion of B.'s name as holder of the share & by the insertion in lieu thereof of S.'s name. Pltfs. sought to administer to the co. the following among other interrogatories: (2) Did the directors refuse to register the said transfer as one made by a member indebted to the co.? (3) Did the directors in fact disapprove of pltf. S. as a transferee of the said share? (4) Did the directors in fact consider pltf. S. objectionable as a transferee of the said share? (5) Did the directors in fact consider the transfer of the said share as having been made for purposes not conducive to the interests of the co.? The master refused leave to administer these interrogatories. On this summons by pltfs. claiming to be entitled to administer them, it was contended for pltfs. that the word "grounds" in the clause "& shall not be bound to specify the grounds" in Art. 16 had the same meaning as the word "reason" in the phrase "without assigning any reason" in an article which was considered by the ct. in Sutherland (Duke) v. British Dominions Land Settlement Corpn., Ltd., No. 1705a, in which the interrogatories which it was sought to administer were allowed as being directed to eliciting under which branch of the power given by the article the directors had acted. For the co. it was contended that the two words had not the same meaning:—Held: on the true construction of Art. 16 "specifying grounds" was not the same thing as "assigning reasons," & the interrogatories were not proper to be allowed.—BERRY & STEWART v. TOTTENHAM HOTSPUR FOOTBALL & ATHLETIC CO., LTD., [1935] Ch. 718; 104 L. The goods were not stored continuously in the same room, but the room was changed from time to time to suit the convenience of defts Invoices were sent in respect of this storage from time to time & the word " rent " was used. The second-named deft. was landlord of these premises & authorised deft. co. to enter the premises & levy a distress upon all the goods thereon, including the goods belonging to pltfs. Pltfs. then served upon defts. the usual notice under Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1908 (c. 53), but defts. proceeded with the distress. Pltfs. then took out a summons under Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1908 (c. 53) s. 2, & defts. were ordered by the magistrate to return the goods to pltfs., which, under certain conditions pending the hearing of a case stated, they did. m i. —— Based on price of gasoline.]—Pltf. leased an automobile service station from deft. oil co. at a rental of $200 per month payable in advance. A few days later it was agreed that the rent should be paid by the addition of a charge of two & a half cents per gallon, payable on delivery, to the price of the gasoline to be bought by the lessee from deft. The lease provided that it should be at the pleasure of the lessor & determinable forthwith on the delivery of a written notice to the lessee. The original lease provided that the first payment of rent should be on July 1, but pltf. went into occupation on June 16 & agreed to pay one-half of the previous tenant's rent for that month. On Aug. 1, seizure was made under a warrant of distress stated to be for one & a part month's rent due on July 1, & pltf. being unable to pay the amount demanded, agreed to deft.'s demand that he take a certain amount for his goods from a suggested new tenant who was then present. Out of this amount the alleged rent was paid & pltf. drove away. The written notice provided for in the lease had not been given to pltf. In an action for illegal distress & eviction :—Held : even if the sum mentioned in the warrant was due for rent on Aug. 1, the distress was wrongful. The distress was expressed to be for rent due on July 1, but under the arrangement varying the lease no fixed rent fell due & payable on any day & no sum was in fact due & payable on July 1, & since the rent for the part of June had been all paid at the time of the seizure it was wrongful to include it in the distress.—DENYER v. BRITISH AMERICAN OIL CO. 424a. —— ——.]—The tenant of a dwelling-house hired goods from pltfs. under a hire-purchase agreement, by which he agreed to pay punctually the instalments & also the rent of the premises on which the goods might be. By a clause of the agreement, in case of any breach, the owners might, by written notice, forthwith determine the agreement, & thereupon neither party thereafter should have any rights under it. The instalments being in arrear, pltf. served on the hirer a notice terminating the agreement, & claiming a return of the goods. A distress was subsequently levied on behalf of the landlord, & the goods the subject of the hire-purchase agreement were seized. In an action by the owners for illegal distress, the county ct. judge gave judgment for pltfs.:—Held: as soon as the notice terminating the agreement was given the right of the hirer to possession of the goods was at an end, & neither party to the agreement had any rights under it. When the distress was levied there was therefore no hire-purchase agreement in force relating to the goods, & they were not at that time "comprised in any hire-purchase agreement" within Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1908 (c. 53), s. 4, & the distress was illegal.—SMART BROS., LTD. v. HOLT, [1929] 2 K. tenants respectively set their hands, etc." In 1936 judgment was obtained against E.A.P., Ltd., a writ of fieri facias issued against certain goods of E.A.P., Ltd., at the above-mentioned premises, & the sheriff's officer took possession of the goods. The sheriff received notice from the S. Ry. Co. that a certain sum was due to them for rent of the premises. The execution creditors sent a cheque for that amount to the sheriff. E.A.P., Ltd., then went into voluntary liquidation & on the same day the S. Ry. Co. applied to T.C.B. & M.G. for the rent due. The liquidators of E.A.P., Ltd., wrote to the sheriff, undertaking to reimburse the sheriff in respect of the rent if he should be found entitled to it, & the sheriff thereupon delivered to the liquidators the goods which had been taken in execution. The execution creditors took out a summons, asking for an order that the liquidators should repay to the execution creditors or to the sheriff on their behalf the sum paid by the execution creditors to the sheriff for the rent due to the S. Ry. Co. The execution creditors based their claim on the Landlord & Tenant Act, 1709 (c. 18), s. 1. The liquidators contended that the relationship of landlord & tenant did not exist between the S. Ry. Co. & E.A.P., Ltd., & that in the absence of such relationship, the Act of 1709 did not apply:—Held: (1) the relationship of landlord & tenant must exist between the person claiming the rent & the execution debtor to make the Landlord & Tenant Act, 1709 (c. 18), applicable. Upon a proper construction of the lease of 1934, the tenants were T.C.B. & M.G. & not E.A.P., Ltd. The Act of 1709 did not therefore apply, & the execution creditors were not entitled to the order asked for.—Re EASTCHEAP ALIMENTARY PRODUCTS, LTD., [1936] 3 All E. R. 276; 155 L. T. 521; 80 Sol. sg. Suspension of poinding—Grounds for.]—Complainer, who resided in Scotland, was assessed to Income Tax, Sched. E., for the year 1928–29, by a body of General Comrs. in England in respect of director's fees received from an English co. He duly appealed against this assessment & it was averred by the resp. that a notice was sent to complainer summoning him to a meeting of the Comrs. for the hearing of his appeal. Complainer denied that such a notice was sent to, or received by him. He did not attend the appeal meeting & the assessment was confirmed by the Comrs. Subsequently, the Comrs. issued a certificate that complainer had been duly assessed & charged with the tax, which was unpaid, &, upon application by the collector of taxes for the Galashiels district of Selkirk, the sheriff-substitute for the county issued a warrant for recovery. Goods belonging to complainer having been poinded by the sheriff officer, complainer presented a note of suspension in the Bill Chamber in terms of sect. 21 of Exchequer Court, (Scotland) Act, 1856. The note having been duly passed, it was thereafter enrolled as an exchequer cause. In the note complainer craved the ct. to suspend the notice of poinding on the following grounds : (a) that complainer had duly appealed against the assessment under which the tax was charged, & that since, as he alleged, no notice of the hearing of the appeal had been sent to or received by him, the appeal had not been determined according to law, & the tax charged was not recoverable ; (b) that the sched. of poinding served by the sheriff officer upon complainer was defective in that it stated that the goods poinded would be sold in default of payment of the tax within four days instead of five days, as prescribed by Income Tax Act, 1918 (c. 40), s. 166 (3) :—Held : the note of suspension fell to be refused on the ground that the decision of the General Comrs. confirming the assessment upon complainer could only be set aside by an order of an English ct. & the poinding was not invalid by reason of the inaccurate statement in the sched. of poinding.—RUTHERFORD v. LORD ADVOCATE (1931), 16 Tax Cas. 145.—SCOT.

Conveyancing Act, 1881 (c. 41), s. 6, is now replaced by Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 62.

181a. —— —— —— Whether preventing acquisition by prescription.—Land was conveyed to pltf.'s predecessor in title by a conveyance dated Dec. 30, 1907, at which time no house had been erected on the land conveyed. The conveyance was expressed not to include "any easements or implied easements of light & air over any other land now or formerly part of the A. estate." A house was subsequently erected on the land conveyed, & this was conveyed to pltf. by a deed dated Jan. 17, 1934, "together with such rights, easements & appurtenances & subject to such reservations as are set out" in the conveyance of Dec. 30, 1907. Defts., who had acquired land which was part of the A. estate, erected a wall near a window of pltf.'s house, which substantially interfered with the light coming thereto. Pltf. claimed damages on the ground that she had, under Prescription Act, 1832 (c. 71), s. 3, acquired an easement of light, with which defts. had interfered :—Held : pltf. was entitled to damages, as under the above sect. she had acquired a prescriptive right to the light in question, which the terms of the two above-mentioned conveyances did not operate to exclude.—HAPGOOD v. MARTIN & SON, LTD. 186a. —— ——.]—In the conveyance to pltf. of a house & land there was an express grant to her of a way described as coloured green on the plan indorsed on the deed. The part coloured green was four feet wide & formed part of a wider roadway running along the back of the adjoining houses to the back premises of pltf.'s house. At the time of the conveyance a right of access for vehicles to pltf.'s back premises over the whole roadway was enjoyed with the house conveyed. The habendum in the conveyance was "to hold same with the benefit of all such easements & privileges in the nature of easements as are now subsisting in respect of the property hereby conveyed." Pltf. claimed that the right to use the whole width of the roadway for the purpose of access of vehicles to her back premises passed to her under her conveyance :—Held : that the right claimed passed to pltf. by virtue of sect. 6 (2) of the above Act, there being no unequivocal "contrary intention" expressed in the deed within sect. 6 (4), sufficient to negative the passing of such right.—GREGG v. RICHARDS, [1926] Ch. 521 ; 95 L. 196a. —— Right reputed to be enjoyed with land.]—Pltf. at the date of the action was the owner in fee simple of certain plots of land in the village of C. in the county of Sussex, numbered on the Ordnance Survey Map 634, a portion of 635 & 636 ; also of a strip of land coloured brown on the plan on the conveyance to pltf., leading from the plot 634 & part of 635 to the high road running from C. to a common. Deft. became in Oct. 1926, the owner of other plots, numbered 652, 653, 654 & 618 in the same parish. Pltf. had previously purchased the strip coloured brown in 1925, the parcels being as follows : "All that strip of land leading from W. Fields"—which were the plots 652 & 653—"to the high road running from the village of C. to . . . C. common in the parish of P. . . ."; the habendum being to pltf. in fee simple "to the use that the vendor his heirs & successors in title owner or owners . . . of the hereditaments coloured red"—which were the plots 634, 653 & 652—". . . shall have full right & liberty . . . to pass & repass . . . over & along the piece of land coloured brown on the said plan . . ." Pltf. subsequently, in June, 1925, purchased at an auction sale the plots referred to above, 634, part of 635, 652 & 653 ; deft. also bought the plots numbers 618 & 654. The plots purchased by pltf., being Lot 24 in the sale, were described as including a right of way for all purposes over the brown strip. By that purchase pltf., having become the legal owner of the dominant & servient tenements, the right of way became merged. Pltf. subsequently contracted to sell plots 653 & 652 to deft. In the draft conveyance submitted to pltf.'s solrs. by deft.'s solrs., a right of way was inserted in favour of the purchaser (deft.) over pltf.'s land to the brown strip. This was struck out by the solrs. for the vendor (pltf.) ; & no grant was shown in the conveyance ultimately executed by the parties in Oct. 1926, of any right of way. Pltf. found later that deft. was passing over a track in plot 634 in order to make use of the brown strip for the purpose of taking farm carts from his own land over pltf.'s property to the high road ; & he claimed a right of way. Pltf. sought a declaration that deft. was not entitled to any such right of way as he claimed, & further that the conveyance to deft. of plots 652 & 653 might be rectified by the express exclusion therefrom of any implied right of way which might arise under Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20),

s. 62 :—Held : though the right to use the track was one reputed to be enjoyed with the land, that was plots 653 & 652, & to that extent deft. was entitled to succeed, yet pltf. was entitled to have the conveyance rectified. The evidence showed that neither pltf. nor deft. intended that any such right should pass on the conveyance of plots 653 & 652. The conveyance therefore would be rectified by the insertion therein of proper words limiting the implication of any right of way which might arise under the Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 62.—CLARK v. BARNES, [1929] 2 Ch. 368; 99 L. 196b. What amounts to "assurance of property or of an interest therein"—Agreement for lease exceeding three years.]—By an agreement in writing dated Oct. 10, 1923, J. agreed to demise to pltf. The Gardens, "with the paddock, orchard, & adjoining gardens," for seven years from Sept. 29, 1923. These premises were situate in a large park called Wood Green Park, & were not approached by any public road. The agreement did not expressly reserve any right of way to pltf. In 1926, J. executed a lease to deft. of The Hall, & the remainder of the park, for fourteen years from Mar. 25, 1926. The Hall had previously been let to H., who had surrendered his lease. A carriage drive ran from a public highway called Silver Street, through Wood Green Park, by the side of the front door of The Gardens, & on to The Hall. At the date of the agreement of Oct. 1923, J. was constructing, & afterwards completed, an unmetalled way from Silver Street to the back of The Gardens : but after that date pltf. constantly used the drive. Deft. obstructed pltf. in his use of the drive. In an action by pltf., claiming to be entitled to a right of way over the drive :—Held : (1) an agreement for a lease exceeding a term of three years is not an "assurance of property or of an interest therein," within Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 205 (1) (ii), & therefore cannot be deemed to include the general words of sect. 62 of that Act; (2) the tenant was in the same position as if the ct. had granted specific performance of the agreement, i.e., in regard to rights of way, as if, before the coming into force of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, the property had been demised with no mention of rights of way; &, in the circumstances, a demise to pltf. of a right to use the drive upon terms must be implied.—BORMAN v. GRIFFITH, [1930] 1 Ch. 493; 99 L. 204a. —— Intention of parties—No evidence of intention to determine status quo.]—Two adjoining houses, originally belonging to one person, subsequently became vested in pltf. & deft. respectively. For some years before the severance of ownership, a creeper had been growing in what was now deft.'s garden with its foliage spreading along the wall of pltf.'s house. Also, again before the severance of ownership, the post of a gate leading from what was now deft.'s garden had been fastened by plugs & nails into pltf.'s wall. The growth of the creeper had from time to time reached pltf.'s gutter, & he had been obliged to cut it back. Pltf. brought an action for trespass in respect of the two above-mentioned acts, & the county ct. judge found both acts to be trespasses :—Held : both the growth of the creeper on pltf.'s wall & the fastening of the gate to pltf.'s wall would amount to trespasses, unless they could be justified by the existence of an easement; the implied reservation of an easement in a grant of property depends on the common intention of the parties; here there was no evidence that it was not the intention of the parties to the conveyance that creeper & gate-post should remain, & therefore an easement in each case was impliedly reserved; there was, however, a duty on the part of the grantee to use care that the grantor's property was not unduly interfered with; deft. in allowing the creeper to obstruct pltf.'s gutter had failed to use necessary care, & as to this part of the case the award as to damages must stand.—SIMPSON v. WEBER (1925), 133 L. T. 46; 41 T. L. R. 302, D. C.

210a. —— —— ——.]—A grantor cannot ordinarily reserve an easement otherwise than by express words for the benefit of land which he retains.

The common owner of two adjoining houses, A. & B., at the back of which ran a paved path, sold A. without reserving any right to use the path except for one specific purpose, & afterwards sold B. :—Held : in the absence of any evidence of a claim of user as of right admitted or acquiesced in, the purchaser of B. was not entitled to use the path at the back of A. for all purposes, but was limited to the use which was specifically reserved.—LIDDIARD v. WALDRON, [1934] 1 K. B. 435; 103 L. J. K. B. 172; 150 L. T. 323; 50 T. L. R. 172, C. A.

210b. —— —— Matter of convenience & not necessity.]—Where real property is severed by the grant of a part of it, there can be no implied reservation, in favour of the property retained, of an easement of convenience; but only of an easement of necessity.

Two adjoining messuages in a terrace, Nos. 28 & 30, in common ownership, were leased on a ninety-nine years' lease, which, in 1896, was assigned to G., who in 1901 assigned the lease of No. 30 to pltf.'s predecessors in title, without reserving expressly in favour of No. 28, the property retained, any right of way across the garden of No. 30. In 1904 G. assigned the lease of No. 28 to deft.'s predecessor in title. Pltf. claimed in the county ct. an injunction restraining deft. from crossing on a path across the garden of No. 30 from a gate in the fence between the two properties, to a gate opposite, which led into a passage-way giving access to the road in front of the terrace. Deft. claimed a right of footway across this path by reason of her occupation of No. 28. The county ct.

judge found that both at the time when there was unity of possession of Nos. 28 & 30, & from the time when the lease of No. 30 had been assigned, the path had always been used for the limited purpose of removing dust & refuse & for bringing in coal, & for no other purpose. But he did not find whether this user was by pltf.'s leave & courtesy, or whether there was an apparent & continuous easement from some certain time. Confusing the dates & thinking that the lease of the alleged dominant tenement, No. 28, was first assigned, when in fact the lease of No. 30 was first assigned, he held that although deft. had no unrestricted right of way across the path, yet, in 1901, there was an implied grant of an apparent quasi-easement enuring to deft. for the limited purpose of removing refuse & bringing in coal, & he made a declaration to that effect:—Held: there was no evidence that on the grant in 1901 to the pltf.'s predecessor in title where was an implied reservation of a right of way in favour of deft. across the garden of pltf. for the removal of dust & refuse & the delivery of coal.—ALDRIDGE v. WRIGHT, [1929] 2 K. 252a. —— —— ——.]—Pltf. was the owner of a cottage & farm land (the pink land) under two conveyances made to his predecessors in title in 1919, & deft. was the owner of adjoining land (the blue land) conveyed to her in 1929 by the same common owners. More than forty years ago the common owners constructed a collecting tank for water, mainly on the pink land, which fed a tank (Tank Z) on the edge of the blue land. Tank Z was used as a drinking trough for cattle & horses, & it had no outlet, but was tipped towards the south so that it overflowed on to the pink land through a wall between the pink & the blue land. The overflow was then conducted by a stone drain to an open watercourse along which the water flowed to the southern boundary of the pink land. The watercourse then turned & flowed along inside the southern boundary, being joined at the bend by a natural stream. At least from the bend the watercourse was a natural stream, & at two points along it were dipping points, one used for watering pltf.'s cattle & the other used by cottagers & other persons, including the occupants of the cottage on the pink land & of two other cottages near by which also belonged to pltf. In Feb. 1920, deft. substituted for Tank Z a covered brick tank connected by an underground pipe laid along the southern boundary of the blue land to a ram which pumped water to deft.'s house. There was also an overflow outlet to the new tank by which the overflow still passed through the boundary wall on to the pink land, but the flow was substantially diminished. In laying the pipe along the southern boundary of the blue land in a trench, springs were tapped & damage was said to have resulted from the escape of this water on to the surface of the pink land:—Held: (1) as Tank Z had been constructed simply for supplying water to cattle & horses grazing on the blue land & not for the benefit of the pink land, there could be no expectation that the overflow from it would be other than temporary, & the right to the continuance of the overflow did not pass under the general words implied in the conveyances of the pink land in 1919 by Conveyancing Act, 1881 (c. 41), s. 6, now Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 62; (2) pltf. had no prescriptive right to have the water naturally flowing in the stream along the southern boundary of the pink land augmented by the overflow from Tank Z along an artificial watercourse which had been constructed for a temporary g i. —— —— —— Land bounded by private road.]—Pltf., a lessee, claimed to be entitled to a right of way over a private road existent at the time of the lease & maintained by the lessor, owner of adjoining lands, as one of the approaches from the highway to his own house, & permitted to be used by tenants in prior years without objection. The leased property as described in the lease did not embrace this road, but the lessee claimed that he & prior occupiers of the leased house had the use of it, &, as one of the named boundaries was the roadway, the lease impliedly gave him a right of way over it:—Held: the lessee was not entitled to the right-of-way.—BREADY v. MCLENNAN (No. 2), [1924] 3 W. g iii. —— —— ——.]—The decisions in England prior to 1881 were not uniform on the question whether a right of way was a continuous easement or not; but the Indian Easements Act adopted the view that it was not. Hence on a partition of two tenements, a right of way even over a well-formed & metalled road does not pass to the grantee as a continuous easement. It is this view, as enacted in the Act, that must govern wherever the Act is in force, in preference to the now well-established view in England. The way may, however, pass to the grantee if it is an easement of necessity; but an easement of way cannot be termed "necessary" though the way was used as a way before the partition or even though it may be the most convenient or reasonable means of access, if in fact there is another way.—NARAYONA GAJAPATIRAJU v. RATNAYAMMAJI (1929), I. 273a. —— Right to take water from artificial channel—Limited to capacity of channel at time of grant.]—In 1894 the Crown, by an Ontario patent, granted to applts. the banks & bed of a natural outflow from a very large lake, & the adjoining water power. The grant provided that it was not to be construed as conferring exclusive rights elsewhere upon the lake or upon other streams, nor as authority to restrict any powers or privileges therebefore enjoyed by the Crown. Applts. used water power from the outflow to work an electrical power plant. In 1892 1891 the Crown had similarly granted to resps.' predecessors in title land the boundaries of which, in each case, included a mill & an artificial channel from a bay of the lake. The mills had been erected & the channels made by the grantees with the approval of the Crown; the grants mentioned the mill races, but did not expressly include water power. Resps. used water power from the channels to work their mills. Water passing through the channels & the mill sluices, when open, flowed into the river formed by the outflow at a point below applts.' works. Applts. brought actions to restrain resps. from diverting water from the lake :—Held : having regard to the circumstances in which the grants of 1892 & 1891 were made they each conferred an easement upon the respective resps. to use water from the channel for the purpose of working a mill, & the grant to applts. was subject to that easement. The easement was limited only by the capacity of the respective channels when granted, not by the size or character of the mill then existing thereon; although the water could be used only for working a mill, it could be used to develop electrical power to work or light a mill.—KEEWATIN POWER CO., LTD. v. LAKE OF THE WOODS MILLING CO., LTD., [1930] A. 515. For the paragraph in the original volume substitute the following paragraph :—

—— Acquiescence in obstruction of way.]—In 1870 a row of houses was put up for sale by auction in eleven lots. One of the conditions was that a strip of land fifteen feet in width, running the entire length of the lots & being the rear portions of the back gardens of the houses, was intended to form a right of way from the back garden of each house into Church Road, which bounded the side of lot 1 on the south, & that the lots would be sold subject to & with the benefit of such right of way, & that the respective purchasers should at the earliest possible moment remove the fifteen feet of end garden wall & form the right of way. This condition was recited in each of the conveyances. Lot 1 was conveyed subject to the right of way of the owners of the other lots & lots 2 & 3 with the benefit of & subject to the right of way. The purchaser of lot 1 let it for a term of fifty years, which expired on June 15, 1922, subject to the right of way. In 1904 pltf. took an assignment of this lease, & in 1911 he purchased the fee simple of lots 2 & 3, with the benefit & subject to the right of way. Deft. was the present owner of lot 1. For fifty years from the date of the original sale no attempt was made to form the proposed roadway, the garden walls dividing the several lots remained intact, & the wall separating lot 1 from Church Road was not breached. unless the acts are done with the knowledge & assent of the servient owner as an assertion of adverse right.

Circumstances in which held that temporary obstructions placed periodically across an access right of way by the tenant of the servient tenement, without the knowledge or assent of the owner of the servient tenement & merely for the protection of the tenants own crops, had not been placed there as an assertion of adverse right ; &, accordingly, interruption of user had not been established.—STEVENSON v. DONALDSON, [1935] S. In 1919 S. assigned his rights under the agreement to pltf., who continued to use the tramway. The assignment was known to deft., who raised no objection. Deft., in Aug. 1922, placed obstructions across the tramway. On a motion for an injunction, deft. contended that the contract granting the tramline was not assignable :—Held : the grant was not a personal one, & pltf. had an equitable interest by assignment from S. in the easement.—MACDONALD v. PEDDLE, [1923] N. There was a dispute as to the westerly 15 feet, as to which deft. alleged that pltf.'s right of way had been abandoned :—Held : the evidence did not justify the inference that the right of way had been abandoned, although it was first used by deft. or her predecessor only.—BAKER v. HARRIS, [1930] 1 D. Church Road was six feet above the level of the back gardens. In 1883 the original lessee of lot 1 in the course of erecting some stables in his back garden raised the surface of the strip of land at the end of his lot to the level of Church Road, with the result that there was a drop of six feet from that strip into lot 2. In 1919 pltf., in anticipation of the expiration of his lease, proposed to build a garage on lots 2 & 3. With that object in view he pulled down part of the wall which separated the rear portion of lot 1 from Church Road & erected gates there, & he also raised the level of the rear portion of lot 2; & subsequently he caused a car to be driven through the gates over the strip in lot 1 into lot 2. On the expiration of the lease deft. blocked up the gates & obstructed the way. In an action by pltf. as owner of lots 2 & 3 to enforce his right of way against the deft.:—Held: (1) until the land was cleared there could be no effectual creation of a right of way; (2) having regard to the time which had elapsed before any purchaser attempted to assert his rights under the original conveyance, the inevitable inference was that the arrangement made in 1870 had been abandoned by common consent.—SWAN v. SINCLAIR, [1925] A. 571a. Contiguity between dominant tenement & way unnecessary.]—(1) A right of way can validly be made appurtenant to land with which the way has no physical contiguity, but it must be beneficial in respect of the occupation of that land.

Pltf. was the owner of a house in St. Ives, Cornwall, & of a private roadway to the south of the house leading from a highway to the west to garages at the eastern end, which also belonged to pltf. Property which included the roadway & garages had been conveyed to his predecessor in title by N. by a conveyance dated Oct. 15, 1921, which contained a reservation to N. & his successors of a perpetual right of way along the roadway with power to extend it some yards to land further east belonging to N., which was shown on a plan attached to the conveyance & coloured blue. Subsequently N. bought some land north of the blue land, & by a deed dated Mar. 22, 1926, a right to extend the roadway to this land was substituted for the right to extend it directly on to the blue land. The result of this was that when the roadway was so extended it could substantially only obtain access to the blue land over an intervening strip of the land to the north of it. Deft. co. having purchased the blue land & the land to the north of it built a garage for motor omnibuses on the blue land & proceeded to extend the roadway to the intervening strip & carry it over the strip to the blue land. As the part of the blue land where the garage stood was much higher than the roadway deft. co., in order to obtain a gradual slope, continued the roadway on pltf.'s land by means of a concrete ramp, which by the time it reached the five foot wall between pltf.'s land & the intervening strip was almost the height of the wall. Pltf. objected strongly to the making of this ramp, which made access to his garages more difficult, & brought an action claiming (a) that defts. had no right of way over the roadway for the reason that the right alleged to have been given pertained only to the blue land to which there was no direct access from the roadway; or alternatively (b) that there had been excessive user of the right (i.) by reason of the building of the ramp, and (ii.) by reason of the user of the roadway for motor buses:—Held: it was sufficient that a right of way should be beneficial in respect of the ownership of the land to which it purported to be made appurtenant, & there need be no physical contiguity between the way & the dominant tenement; but (2) there had 620 vi. ——.]—A side door in the wall of the back garden of pltf.'s premises opened into an avenue leading to deft.'s house. Pltf. claimed a right of way from this door, along the avenue, to the avenue gates. Pltf.'s premises were the end house of a terrace of six similar houses, which formed the base of a triangle in the apex of which stood deft.'s house. The avenue from the latter house ran alongside the garden wall of pltf.'s house, & its gates opened on the same street as the front entrance of the terrace of houses. All seven houses had been built by the same person, & continued for some years in the ownership of members of his family. But, by the will of his daughter, who died in 1919, a severance of ownership as between pltf.'s house & deft.'s house was created; &, subsequently, pltf. purchased the fee simple of his house. He gave evidence that he had entered the premises in 1917 under an agreement for a twelve-months' letting, & continued as tenant until he acquired the fee simple interest; & that he had used the door in the garden wall for the purpose of bringing in coal & manure, & of bringing bicycles in & out. Evidence was also given by the tenant of the premises from 1899 to 1907 that he received the key for the door or found it hanging in the premises, that he used the door for the purpose of getting in coal & for porters delivering goods, that his original landlord, who died in 1905, used to get a little path connecting the door with the avenue cindered, & that he gave up the key on the expiration of his tenancy; & evidence was given by the tenant from 1911 to 1916 that he used the door for bringing goods in & out & for getting in coal & manure. Pltf.'s tenancy agreement was not proved, nor was there evidence of any agreement as to a right of way or easement. Only one other house in the terrace of six houses had a back entrance, & this back entrance, which also opened into deft.'s premises, had become disused before action brought. There was no evidence as to its previous user, nor was there any evidence as to the origin of either back entrance :—Held : pltf. had failed to establish his claim. —.]—Pltf. & deft. were lessees of adjoining premises under leases granted by a common landlord. Deft. having, as pltf. alleged, so rebuilt & altered his premises as to constitute a nuisance or illegal obstruction to certain of pltf.'s windows, pltf. commenced an action for an order (inter alia) directing deft. to pull down so much of the buildings erected by him as caused the nuisance or illegal obstruction complained of. Subsequently a question was raised as a point of law in the defence & brought before the ct. upon an agreed statement of facts whether the access of light to the windows of pltf.'s premises was enjoyed by consent or agreement expressly given for that purpose by deed or writing within Prescription Act, 1832 (c. 71), s. 3. In the lease under which pltf. acquired the premises rights of light or other easements over other premises were expressly excluded, & the lease was subject to all rights & easements belonging to adjacent property & to the adjacent buildings or any of them being at any time rebuilt or altered according to plans as to height, elevation, extent or otherwise as might be approved by the ground landlord :—Held : the exception from the lease to pltf. of any right to light coupled with the right expressly reserved for the adjacent buildings to be rebuilt constituted a grant by the lessee to the lessor of the right to build during the term of the lease on the adjacent land (including deft.'s premises), notwithstanding the effect of such rebuilding on the light to pltf.'s premises, & constituted an agreement by pltf. that any enjoyment of light to her premises was throughout her lease permissive only. There was therefore a sufficient agreement or consent in writing relating to the enjoyment of light to the pltf.'s premises to satisfy the proviso to sect. 3 of Prescription Act, 1832 (c. 71), & to prevent pltf. acquiring any statutory right to light under the sect.—WILLOUGHBY v. ECKSTEIN (No. 2), [1937] Ch. 167; [1937] 1 All E. PART VIII. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT.

911 viii. ——.]—Held : interpreting the term "ordinary light" in a common-sense manner, a pltf. is not claiming more than ordinary light because he claims a reasonable amount of direct light where he may expect to find it in a room laterally lighted, & the deprivation of such direct light must be taken into account in considering the effect of a deprivation of light by an obstruction on the servient tenement. If so much latitude be not given to the expression "ordinary light" the flexibility of the legal principle stressed in Colls v. Home & Colonial Stores is lost & a rigid standard set up by experts is introduced.

Pltfs. were the owners in fee of certain premises in which they had for many years carried on the manufacture & repair of cotton & jute bags & the colour printing of same. The said premises had been re-built by them in or about the year 1903. In May, 1934, defts. demolished a theatre, their property, & constructed a new theatre of a much greater height upon the The light which pltfs.' premises had enjoyed was diminished as a result, & pltfs. alleged that their business suffered in consequence. Pltfs. brought an action claiming an injunction to restrain defts. from permitting to remain any portion of the said theatre which had caused or would cause a nuisance or illegal obstruction to the access of light to the windows of pltfs.' premises.—SMYTH & SMYTH v. DUBLIN THEATRE CO., LTD., [1936] I. 934b. ——.]—A right of light by prescription to a room in a residential house is not to be measured by the use to which the room has been put in the past.

Pltf. owned a freehold house built in & occupied since 1907, & continuously having adequate light to the windows & openings, including kitchen & scullery windows, on its north side, on which it was bounded by deft.'s house. Up to Jan. 1929, the two houses were separated by narrow passages on either side of a dwarf boundary wall belonging to deft., which was also the boundary wall between the back gardens. At the beginning of Jan. 1929, without intimation to pltf., building operations were begun on deft.'s premises, the boundary wall being raised to form a side wall of the new building. On Jan. 28 pltf.'s solrs. wrote to deft., her builders & her architect, asking that the work should cease at once. Two days later the building was still proceeding, & on Feb. 4 the wall was 15 feet high. On the next day pltf. issued a writ, & on Feb. 15 a motion came before the ct. By that date the wall had been raised to its full height of 23 feet, & an undertaking by deft. not to raise it further was useless. In an action by pltf. for a mandatory injunction & damages: —Held : (1) pltf.'s right of light to the scullery windows was not limited by the use to which the scullery had been put in the past; (2) in the circumstances, the case was not one for a mandatory injunction.—PRICE v. HILDITCH, [1930] 1 Ch. 500; 99 L. In an action to restrain interference with light to a window in a room lighted also, at the beginning of the period of twenty years before action brought, by skylights which during that period were blocked up but which though not ancient lights could not have been obstructed except by the action of the owner of the dominant tenement himself, the ct. in deciding the issue as to nuisance must treat the skylights as reinstated & will not disregard the vertical light which the skylights would afford, even if it is established that for some purposes of user that vertical light would be unsatisfactory. —SMITH v. EVANGELIZATION SOCIETY (INCORPORATED) TRUST, [1933] Ch. 515; 102 L. 987a. —— Increase of burden on servient tenement.]—An owner of ancient light cannot so diminish his ancient-light area as to increase the burden on the servient tenement.

The observations of LORD LINDLEY in Colls v. Home & Colonial Stores, No. 830, to the effect that in considering whether a proposed obstruction would amount to a nuisance, non-ancient light from other quarters of which the dominant owner might be deprived at any time ought not to be taken into account were not intended to interfere with this paramount principle. If, therefore, the dominant tenement is rebuilt in such a way that the area of coincidence between an old & new window is much smaller than the old window, so that the ancient-light area is greatly diminished, the dominant owner cannot ask the ct. to measure the nuisance, if any, by treating the rest of the new window, rendered obstructible by his own act, as blocked up.—NEWS OF THE WORLD, LTD. v. FAIRHEAD (ALLEN) & SONS, LTD., [1931] 2 Ch. 402 ; 100 L. 1399a. ——.]—In an action brought by pltf. against deft. society for an injunction & damages in respect of an alleged obstruction of ancient lights, the judge found that defts.' buildings when completed would cause an actionable obstruction to pltf.'s lights, but that no such obstruction had yet taken place, & he expressed the opinion that the interference with pltf.'s legal rights when the building was completed would be small, & could be adequately compensated by damages, but held, contrary to his own opinion, that he was bound by the opinion of the Ct. of Appeal in Dreyfus v. Peruvian Guana Co. (1889), 43 Ch. D. 316, that there was no jurisdiction under Chancery Amendment Act, 1858 (c. 27), to give damages in lieu of an injunction where the injury was threatened but had not been sustained, & he therefore granted an injunction. The Ct. of Appeal, without going into the merits, by a majority, upheld the view that the ct. had no jurisdiction in such a case to award damages in lieu of an injunction. The House of Lords, by a majority, reversed this decision. & remitted the case to the Ct. of Appeal to deal with it on its merits :—Held : the findings of the judge brought the case within the "good working rule" suggested by A. L. SMITH, L.J., in Shelfer v. City of London Electric Lighting Co., No. 1356, ante, as that which might guide the ct. in exercising the discretion given it by Chancery Amendment Act, 1858, to award damages in lieu of an injunction ; that was still the rule to be adopted by the ct. as a guide & was not affected by anything that was decided in Colls v. Home & Colonial Stores, No. 830, ante ; therefore, there being evidence to support the findings of the judge, the injunction granted by him, contrary to his own opinion, ought to be discharged, & in lieu thereof an inquiry directed as to damages. —SLACK v. LEEDS INDUSTRIAL CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETY, LTD., [1924] 2 Ch. 475 ; 94 L. ECCLESIASTICAL LAW.

Part I.—In General.

1a. Church Assembly—Legislative Committee.]—Neither the Legislative Committee of the Church Assembly, nor the Church Assembly itself, is a body to which a writ of certiorari or of prohibition will issue, as neither of them is a body which is under a duty to act in a judicial capacity.—R. v. CHURCH ASSEMBLY LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE, Ex p. HAYNES SMITH, [1928] 1 K. B. 411; 97 L. J. K. B. 222; 138 L. T. 399; 44 T. L. R. 68; 71 Sol. Jo. 947, D. C.

2a. Compulsory acquisition of freehold in premises used for "public religious worship"—Part of public only admitted.]—Two tenements known respectively as "the Salvation Army Hall" or "the Citadel of the Salvation Army, Weston-super-Mare" & "the Young People's Hall" & comprised in one lease were held under a trust deed executed after the lease upon trust to be used as a place of worship. The Salvation Army Hall was in fact used for religious worship: the rooms in the upper part of the Young People's Hall were used for teaching. The two buildings were separated by a yard. The lessees, in pursuance of the powers given by Places of Worship (Enfranchisement) Act, 1920 (c. 56), gave to the lessors notice in writing requiring the lessors to treat contract & agree with the lessees for the sale to the lessees of all the lessors' estate & interest in the premises, subject to the provisions of the Act, & to give particulars of the lessors' estate & interest in the premises & of their claims in respect thereof & of their claim for compensation. The lessors contended that under the trust deed the premises demised by the lease were not held on trust for the purposes of a place of worship, either at the date of the notice or at the date of the Act. In an action by the lessors claiming a declaration that the lessees were not entitled, under the Act or otherwise, to acquire the freehold reversion in all or any part of the premises, & an injunction to restrain them from proceeding under the notice:—Held: (1) "public religious worship" may include worship to which, on any or all occasions, only certain sections of the public are admitted; (2) a trust for the use of premises for the purposes of public religious worship is carried out although minor parts of the premises are not so used.—STRADLING v. HIGGINS, [1932] 1 Ch. 143; 101 L. 90a. Right of public to attend.]—Under letters patent from the Crown & statutes pursuant thereto Westminster Abbey is made a Royal Peculiar the govt. of which belongs to the dean. Applt. was a professional guide for sightseers, &, after a special permit to him to act as a guide to the Abbey had elapsed, the dean made an order that he was to be excluded therefrom. On a subsequent day, which was neither a Sunday nor a holy day, applt. was in the Abbey during divine service wearing his ordinary guide's badge, when resp., a police constable, after having requested him to leave, ejected him without unnecessary violence. Applt. laid an information in the police ct. against resp. for having unlawfully assaulted him. Applt. made no claim to be a parishioner of the Abbey, & could produce no evidence of permission having been given to him to be there, but it was found that there had been no misconduct by him on the day of his ejection. The magistrate dismissed the information. On a case stated which set out these facts:—Held: the dean had authority to make the order excluding applt.; on applt.'s refusal to leave when requested resp. was justified in ejecting him; &, therefore, the magistrate had rightly dismissed the information.

Semble: a person who is not a parishioner has no legal right to attend a parish church even on Sundays or holy days, but if he is prevented from attending his own parish church on such days, he may present himself for admission to some other church where service is usually held.—COLE v. POLICE CONSTABLE 413A, [1937] 1 K. In an action by pltf. council against deft. under Chancel Repairs Act, 1932 (c. 20), calling upon her to pay £123 12*s.* 6*d.*, the reasonable estimated cost of repairing the chancel of the parish church, on the ground that she was the owner of an impropriate rentcharge of the value of £39 11*s.* 9*d.*, deft. contended that but for sect. 2 (3) of Chancel Repairs Act, 1932 (c. 20), she could only have been held liable if she was a person who would have been liable to be admonished by the appropriate Ecclesiastical Cts., & that she could not in fact have been so admonished, since the amount she had received from the tithe rentcharge was less than the cost of the repairs. The county ct. judge accepted this view & dismissed the action. On appeal :—Held : (1) the liability of deft. being personal & several & not joint, she would have been liable to be admonished by the appropriate Ecclesiastical Cts. to repair the chancel, & was therefore liable to do so notwithstanding that the sum received by her in respect of the rentcharge was less than the estimated cost of the repairs; (2) deft. on payment of the cost of the repairs would be entitled to obtain contribution from the other tithe owners.—WICKHAMBROOK PAROCHIAL CHURCH COUNCIL v. CROXFORD, [1935] 2 K. The commission, after obtaining from the council their reasons in writing for the removal of the name, directed that the name should be restored to the roll. The council failed to comply with this direction, & the parishioner whose name had been removed commenced an action in which he sought an order directing the council to restore his name to the roll & an injunction restraining the council from preventing him from attending & voting at church parochial meetings:—Held: the commission had duly come to a decision & in doing so had acted in no way contrary to natural justice. Jurisdiction of court of equity to order admission—No lawful excuse for refusal shown.]—A ct. of equity can make an order on a bishop to admit & licence to a perpetual curacy a duly qualified nominee who has been duly presented by the patron, unless lawful excuse for refusal by the bishop to admit & licence be shown.—NOTLEY v. BIRMINGHAM, BISHOP (1930), 99 L. 2355b. —— Refusal to obey order—Discharge of order.]—A bishop refused to admit & licence X., a clerk in holy orders, to the perpetual curacy of Z. on the presentation of the patrons. The patrons then commenced an action in the Ch. Div., claiming that the bishop was bound to admit & licence X. to the benefice. The bishop not having entered an appearance the action came before the ct. on Apr. 2, 1930, as a short cause, upon a motion for judgment in default of appearance, & an order was made that the bishop should admit & licence X. to the benefice in due form according to law. The bishop refused or neglected to admit & licence X. to the benefice, & to comply with the order. The patrons then moved the ct. that a writ should issue to the Archbishop of Canterbury, commanding him to admit & licence X. to the benefice at the nomination or presentation of the patrons :—Held : so much of the order of Apr. 2, 1930, as ordered the bishop to admit & licence X. to the benefice might be discharged, & in lieu thereof & in substitution thereof it might be ordered that a writ should issue directed to the Archbishop of Canterbury commanding him to admit a fit person to the benefice at the nomination or presentation or other legal requisition of pltfs. as patrons thereof.—NOTLEY v. BIRMINGHAM (BISHOP) (No. 2), [1931] 1 Ch. 529 ; 100 L. The circumstances & interests of the parishes themselves must be regarded.—Re GREAT MASSINGHAM & LITTLE MASSINGHAM, BENEFICES OF, [1931] A. C. 328 ; 100 L. J. P. C. 93 ; 144 L. T. 654 ; 47 T. L. 2443e. Charge on endowments of united benefice—In favour of other benefices—Validity.]—The power conferred by sect. 15 of the Union of Benefices Measure, 1923, is a power to dispose of surplus revenue after competent provision has been made for the united benefices. The sect. therefore does not authorise the creation of a charge on the endowments in favour of other benefices, because upon a diminution of the endowments a competent provision might not remain. The power under sect. 16 to create a rent-charge cannot be utilised to alter the character of the operation authorised by sect. 15. Scheme set aside.—Re THELNETHAM & HINDERCLAY BENEFICES, [1934] A. 2443f. Approval of bishop—What amounts to.]—The report of a commission of inquiry constituted under the Union of Benefices Measure, 1923, recommended the union of two benefices, & stated that the united endowments were not too much. The bishop of the diocese endorsed on the report his approval, with the reservation that the income of the united benefices should be limited to £500 net, & the surplus allocated to other benefices. The Ecclesiastical Comrs. prepared a scheme for union which provided that a substantial part of the endowments should be alienated :—Held : (1) there had been no approval of the report by the bishop as required by sect. 4 (1) of the Measure, & that there was no jurisdiction to prepare the scheme ; (2) the chairman of the commission on inquiry nominated by the Ecclesiastical Comrs. under sect. 3 (d) of the Measure should not be in any way officially connected with the Comrs., nor one so frequently nominated as chairman as to afford any ground for the suggestion that he is present to represent their views. 2443h. Application by interested party—Settlement of locus standi at preliminary hearing—Form of Order in Council.]—Under a scheme, put forward by the Ecclesiastical Comrs., two benefices in the city of London were to be united. It was further proposed that the parish church of the second benefice should be closed & taken down, & the site sold. The scheme was opposed by the corpn. of the city of London, by certain learned societies, & by a gentleman who had at one time been a parishioner. It was contended, on behalf of the Ecclesiastical Comrs., while admitting the right of the city of London to appear, that the various learned societies had no such right, on the ground that they had no locus standi, although the Order in Council provided that their petition & objection should be considered by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council when the appeal was being heard:—Held: the Judicial Committee were themselves bound by the terms of the Order in Council to hear the petition & objection as well as the appeal of the city of London. Their Lordships were further of the opinion that, in future, in cases of a like nature, the Order in Council "should make provision to enable a resp. to take a preliminary point, should he so desire, & an opportunity should be afforded to the parties to have that preliminary point disposed of before the hearing of the main appeal," & so obviate a party being put to the expense of preparing his case for the main appeal, only to find, perhaps, that, on a preliminary objection, he was not entitled to be heard because he was not an interested party.—Re ALL HALLOWS, LOMBARD STREET, [1937] 2 All E. 2717a. Appointment of commission under Benefices (Ecclesiastical Duties) Measure, 1926, s. 3 (1)—Necessity for notice to incumbent—In respect of what duties.]—By Benefices (Ecclesiastical) Duties) Measure, 1926, s. 3 (1), where the bishop has reason to think that the ecclesiastical duties of a benefice are inadequately performed he may appoint a commission to inquire into the facts, & on their report that the inadequate performance of the duties is due to the negligence of the incumbent, has power under sect. 5 (1) to inhibit him. By sect. 2 (a) "ecclesiastical duties" include the observance of ordination promises, & also (iii) "an obligation binding the incumbent to manifest in his acts, conduct & course of life, due respect for his sacred office, & a due solicitude for the moral & spiritual welfare of his parishioners." A commission reported to the bishop that the ecclesiastical duties of a benefice were inadequately performed owing to the negligence of the incumbent, & also found certain charges proved which were a violation both of the ordination promises of the incumbent & of the provisions of sect. 2 (a) (iii). By sect. 2 (b): "No incumbent shall be deemed to have been negligent in the observance or performance of any of his ordination promises . . . unless such observance or performance has been required of him in writing by the bishop, who shall give him opportunity of replying, before issuing any commission under the provisions of section three of this Measure." No such requirement was made:—Held: the commission had jurisdiction to hold the inquiry, although the above notice had not been given, because the inadequate performance of ecclesiastical duties charged was that of ecclesiastical duties not expressly set out in sect. 2 (b), it being in respect of the inadequate performance of the latter only that such notice is required. The requirement in sect. 2 (b) applies only where the neglect charged is that of ordination promises, as such, or of duties imposed by the Rules for the Representation of the Laity, as such, & the charges against applt. were not charges of this character.—HUNTLEY v. NORWICH (BISHOP), [1931] P. 210.

The vicar of a parish having introduced without a faculty six candlesticks placed on a retable behind the Holy Table, the Chancellor granted a confirmatory faculty for two of them. —— —— Approval of decorations & fittings.]—On the hearing in the Consistory Ct. of London of a petition as to the furniture & fittings of the Church of St. Magnus-the-Martyr, in the City of London, a faculty was granted for, amongst other things : (1) a second Holy Table ; (2) an image of Virgin & Holy Child placed behind the second Holy Table ; & (3) a crucifix fixed to a pillar at a considerable height from the floor & near the pulpit. On appeal the Ct. of Arches dismissed the appeal as to (1) & (3), but allowed it as to (2) :—Held : (1) the law was the same for every kind of sacred image in a church, including a crucifix or rood, & although such an image was not illegal per se, it could not lawfully be placed in a church without a faculty.

On an application for such a faculty, the question to be considered is whether, if the faculty be granted, there is or is not, in the particular case, a danger of the image being used for purposes of worship or adoration condemned by Article of Religion 22. After discussion of the kind of evidence proper to this inquiry :—Held : (2) there was a danger of the proposed image of the Virgin & Holy Child being so used ; (3) an image used for purposes of worship or adoration was an ornament & was illegal, because not included amongst the ornaments of the church sanctioned by the Ornaments Rubric in the Book of Common Prayer ; (4) a faculty authorising the erection of an image in a church should not be absolute, but until further order.

(5) The other matter of appeal is the second Holy Table. The church holds, or will hold, between three hundred & four hundred people, & there are a large number of celebrations every week. In those circumstances it would be a matter of course to allow a second Holy Table, but for the exceptional character of the ceremonial & services of this church. I am not, however, disposed to interfere with the exercise of the learned Chancellor's discretion in this part of the case. I think there ought to be full plans & particulars of the decorations & fittings of & surrounding the second Holy Table, & these fittings ought to be subject to the approval of the learned Chancellor & to be specifically included in the faculty (SIR LEWIS DIBDIN).—VINCENT v. ST. st. Registration of right to marry.]—The governing body mentioned in sect. 3 of Marriage Act, 1930, is not the governing body by which the minister or clergyman in question has been ordained but means the governing body of a religious body as defined by sect. 2 thereof, viz., any church or any religious denomination, sect, congregation, or society having jurisdiction in the province. It is not necessary that the person for whom application is made for registration "as authorised to solemnise marriage" should be ordained. Therefore, if there is a religious body as defined by the Act, with a governing authority having jurisdiction in the province, such governing body may apply under said Act for such authority on behalf of a minister or clergyman, as defined by the Act, belonging to it.—Re VICTORIA CITY TEMPLE'S APPLICATION, [1934] 3 W. The institution included a private chapel for the benefit of the inmates, with some seats for members of the public on payment of pew rents. The purchasers & vendors presented a petition for a faculty for the demolition of the chapel. The Chancellor of the diocese ordered the issue of a faculty on condition that the Holy Table & all other furniture & fittings be removed for incorporation & use in the chapel to be provided on the new premises; that, subject to any expression of opinion by relatives of those commemorated, the memorial windows, if not capable of being used in the new chapel, were to be preserved & used, if possible, in a new church or chapel to be built in the London diocese; that the chapel site was to be preserved for ever unbuilt on, & to secure that object the instrument of transfer was to contain a restrictive covenant to that effect by the purchasers with the vicar of the parish; that the title to the site was to be registered in the Land Registry; & that the site was to be marked & a tablet with an inscription stating that the site was consecrated ground, not to be built on, was to be let into the surface of the ground.—Ex p. St. Pancras Metropolitan Borough Council & Journeymen Tailors' Benevolent Institution (1937), 53 T. The decree contained a proviso that in the case of premises in respect of which less sums had been accustomed to be paid for tithes before 1545, the date of the above Act, the premises should be exempted from the prescribed rate. In an action by the owners of tithes against the occupiers of premises in the City for tithe at the rate prescribed by the Act:—Held : (1) the onus was on defts. to prove that the tithe paid before 1545 in respect of the premises was less than the sum prescribed by the Act; (2) defts. had not discharged the onus.—Busby v. Avgherino, [1928] A. also of the rectory, & had resided throughout in the parish. Since 1849 the rectory & vicarage had been held by the same person, & for many years the rectory had been what is commonly called a sinecure. If the rectory was a benefice with cure of souls the tithe rentcharge attached to the rectory would vest in Queen Anne's Bounty & be paid to pltf. free of rates; if not, pltf. would be liable for certain rates. In an action by pltf. against Queen Anne's Bounty for a declaration that by the Tithe Act, 1925, the rectorial tithe rent which was attached to the benefice was transferred to & became vested in defts. for all the interest therein & for the purposes of the Act:—Held: though pltf. was the vicar with cure of souls, yet, since the expression "rectory with cure of souls" in Tithe Rentcharge (Rates) Act, 1899 (c. 17) meant a real cure of souls actualiter & did not include a rectory which was a sinecure, & since a sinecure could not be turned by residence into a rectory with cure of souls, pltf. was not a rector with cure of souls within the definition of "benefice" in Tithe Rentcharge (Rates) Act, 1899 (c. 17), & the action failed.—GREENING v. QUEEN ANNE'S BOUNTY, [1932] 1 Ch. 348; 101 L. 3490b. —— —— Beasts which gain the land.]—The owners of certain tithe rentcharge applied to the county ct. under Tithe Act, 1891 (c. 8), s. 2, for the recovery of arrears due from F., J. & W. The county ct. made orders accordingly & appointed X., an officer of the ct., to distrain. X. gave to F., J. & W. respectively ten days' notice in writing of his intention to distrain, as required by Tithe Act, 1836 (c. 71), s. 81. He took no further steps, & eight months later the county ct., on the application of the tithe owners, appointed M., an officer of the ct., to distrain in place of X. M. served no further notices but seized in the case of F. 10 ewes, 19 lambs & 5 tegs; in the case of J., 5 cows & 1 horse, which was at the time of the seizure in use drawing a cart; in the case of W., 43 sheep, 1 cow, 1 heifer & 1 cart horse (in actual use), of which W. was a bailee, but not the owner.

Actions of replevin by F., J. & W., respectively against M. were removed by certiorari into the High Ct. Pltfs. contended that the distress was illegal (a) because M. had not served ten days' notice of his intention to distrain; (b) because, by the statute 51 Hen. 3, stat. 4, known as Les Estatuz del Eschekere, "beasts which gain the land & sheep" are privileged from distress if other distress is available, which they asserted was the case on the facts; (3) because, in the case of J. & W., the horses seized were in actual use. (This point was conceded by deft., subject, in the case of W., to the question whether a bailee was entitled to maintain an action of replevin.)

Deft. relied on the notices given by X., & contended that no further notices were necessary. He did not admit the existence of the statute cited as 51 Hen. 3, stat. 4, or as Les Estatuz del Eschekere, & said that its true construction (if it existed) was not that contended for by pltfs., & that it had no application to the cases before the ct.:—Held: (1) the purpose of the ten days' notice of intention to distrain being merely to give the tithe-payer an opportunity to pay & avoid the inconvenience of a distress, that purpose had been fulfilled by X.'s notice, & no further notice by M. was necessary; (2) whether or not the so-called statute 51 Hen. 3, stat. 4, known as Les Estatuz del Eschekere, was a statute properly so called or not, it had for centuries been treated as a declaration of the common law binding on the cts.; (3) the true meaning of "bestes ke gaignent sa terre" was "beasts of the plough" which, with sheep, were privileged from distress, in those cases to which the statute applied, if other distress was available; (4) the applicability of the statute depended on whether the right of distress for tithe rentcharge was in the nature of execution like a distress for poor rates, or was subject to the same limitations as a landlord's distress for rent. On the true construction of Tithe Act, 1836 (c. 71), s. 81, the words "otherwise to act & demean himself in relation thereto as any landlord may" refer only to the last of the three branches "to distrain," "to dispose of the distress," & "& otherwise to act & demean himself" & do not limit the distress itself, which is analogous to an execution. The ancient statute therefore does not apply to a distress for tithe rentcharge; (5) in the case of W., a bailee may maintain replevin.—SWAFFER v. MULCAHY, HOOKER v. MULCAHY, SMITH v. MULCAHY, [1934] 1 K. B. 608; 103 L. J. K. B. 347; 150 L. T. 240; 50 T. L. R. 179; 77 Sol. Jo. 899.

3492a. —— Abortive sale by auction—Second distress & sale by auction—Jurisdiction to order.]—Upon the application of the tithe owners a county ct. judge made an order for the recovery of tithe rentcharge issuing out of certain lands, & he directed that an officer of the ct. should distrain upon those lands for the sum. The officer of the ct. distrained & offered the goods seized for sale by auction. A number of persons attended the sale & by their conduct prevented it from being successful, not bidding themselves & preventing others from bidding. The tithe owners thereupon applied to the county ct. for a further order for the recovery of the same tithe rentcharge, together with the costs & expenses of the abortive sale. The county ct. judge accordingly made an order that a second distress be levied for the recovery of the same tithe rentcharge, together with the costs, & directed that the goods seized should be sold by tender. A rule nisi for certiorari was obtained to remove the second order of the county ct. judge into the High Ct. upon the ground that he had no jurisdiction to entertain or adjudicate upon the application or to make the order:—Held: (1) the county ct. judge had not exceeded his jurisdiction in ordering a second distress, in view of the fact that there was a combination of persons to prevent the sale on the first distress from being effective, or in ordering that the goods seized should be sold by tender; (2) the application for the second distress was properly made by the tithe owners, & it was not necessary that it should be made by the officer of the ct.—R. v. CLEMENTS (JUDGE), Ex p. FERRIDGE, [1932] 2 K. In Nov. 1933, application was made to the county ct. judge to direct the officer of the ct. to distrain for that sum under Tithe Act, 1891 (c. 8), s. 2 (2). He refused, on the ground that by the proviso to Tithe Act, 1836 (c. 71), s. 81, " not more than two years' arrears shall at any time be recoverable by distress " & that the arrears claimed went back more than two years before the date of the proposed distraint:—Held: there is nothing in sect. 81 of 1836 Act which limits the two years' arrears to the period immediately antecedent to the date of the distress, but the sect. deals with quantum only. The time limit is found in sect. 10 (2) of 1891 Act, which enacts that tithe rentcharge shall not be recoverable unless proceedings for its recovery have been commenced before the expiration of two years from the date at which it became due. 3494a. Tithe Rentcharge Recovery Rules, 1891–1933, rr. 5, 8—Validity.]—(1) Applications had been made to the county ct. for the appointment of a receiver for the recovery of certain tithe rentcharge. The landowner gave no notice of opposition to the applications, but he attended the ct. & claimed a right to be heard under Tithe Act, 1891 (c. 8), s. 2 (1). The county ct. judge offered an adjournment to enable the landowner to file his notice of opposition, but this was refused, the landowner maintaining his claim to be heard then & there & saying that Tithe Rentcharge Recovery Rules, 1891–1933, r. 8, & the other rules which purported to extend the power of the county ct. under sect. 2 (1) of the Act of 1891, were ultra vires the rule committee. The judge withdrew the offer of an adjournment & made an order for the appointment of a receiver. The landowner applied to the High Ct. for a writ of prohibition to issue to the county ct. judge, to the receiver & to the titheowner to prohibit them from proceeding further in the matter of the applications. The judge in chambers dismissed the summons & the landowner appealed:—Held: the rule committee had power to make the rules & regulations which they had made with regard to the recovery of rentcharge, & the landlord did not have an unregulated right of audience under the Tithe Act, 1891 (c. 8), s. 2 (1).

(2) A landowner, who is dissatisfied with the order of a county ct. judge directing him to pay a sum on account of tithe rentcharge & desires to have it set aside, ought only to be granted a writ of prohibition to the judge for that purpose in a clear case of want of jurisdiction or excess of jurisdiction on the part of the judge; & in any other case he should proceed by appeal, more especially as a right of appeal is expressly given by Tithe Act, 1891 (c. 8), s. 7.—QUEEN ANNE'S BOUNTY, GOVERNORS OF v. PITT-RIVERS, [1936] 2 K. On each occasion an order was made for the recovery by distress of the sum due together with a sum for costs. On Apr. 17, 1937, pltfs. gave notices to R. & to the Tithe Redemption Commission in accordance with Tithe Act, 1936 (c. 43), s. 20 (3). The Tithe Redemption Commission contended that the sums in respect of which orders had been made by the county ct. were not " arrears " within sect. 20, & that the commission had no power to recover & to give a discharge for such sums:—Held: (1) " arrears " in sect. 20 referred to the sums which became due on account of tithe rentcharge before the appointed day (Oct. 2, 1936), but not to any right or liability in respect of sums which may have accrued or become due before the appointed day. The two sums in respect of costs in the county ct., were, therefore, not " arrears "; (2) " arrears " included the sums due for tithe rentcharge in respect of which an order for recovery by distress had been made as well as sums in respect of which no such order had been made.—QUEEN ANNE'S BOUNTY v. TITHE REDEMPTION COMMISSION, [1937] 3 All E. 3518b. Cost of investment of redemption money—Compulsory redemption—Jurisdiction of court to deal with.]—By a settlement dated in 1893 certain tithe rentcharges payable out of lands situate at W. were settled, subject to certain life interests which had determined, to the use of H. for life with remainders over. The settlement contained a proviso appointing the trustees of the settlement trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts, & providing that a sole trustee should be competent to act for all the purposes of the Acts, including the receipt of capital money. In 1899 H. assigned his life interest in the rentcharges to C. In 1905 C. died, having by his will devised his real & personal estate to resps. & appointed them his exors. In 1922 applt., who was the owner of the land out of which certain of the tithe rentcharges were payable, in exercise of the power given him by Tithe Act, 1918 (c. 54), s. 3, applied to the Ministry of Agriculture & Fisheries for the redemption of certain of these charges, amounting to £48 10*s.* 8*d.* & 5*s.* respectively, & for the determination by the Minister of the amount of the consideration money payable in respect thereof. On Sept. 20, 1922, resps., in exercise of their option under Tithe Act, 1846 (c. 73), s. 9, signed a form of consent which had been sent to them by the Ministry to the payment of the consideration money to the surviving trustee of the settlement of 1893. A month later they wrote to the Ministry revoking their consent & requesting that the money might be paid into ct. The Ministry thereupon wrote to applt. directing him to pay the money into ct., which he accordingly did. On Feb. 12, 1923, resps. took out an originating summons for an order that the fund in ct. might be invested & the income therefrom paid to resps. or the survivor of them as & when received during the life of the tenant for life:—Held: (1) on an application to invest money paid into ct. representing compensation paid under the Tithe Acts on the redemption of rentcharges, there was no general principle that required the ct. to direct that the person exercising the compulsory powers under the Acts should bear the burden of the costs, but the costs were, under Jud. Act, 1890 (c. 44), s. 5, in the discretion of the ct. entirely unfettered by any such general principle; the ct. below ought to have exercised its discretion by holding that (2) Semble: there is no power in the Tithe Acts which enables a tithe owner who has once exercised the option given him by the Act of 1846, s. 9, to revoke or alter the exercise of it.—Re WARTLING TITHE REDEMPTION, [1924] 2 Ch. 123; 93 L. 14a. —— ——.]—Pltfs., assistant teachers in the employ of deft. council, claimed injunctions to restrain the council from acting on resolutions to dismiss them from their employment & notices sent to them in pursuance thereof. The council were in financial difficulties, & had approached the Minister of Health with a view to obtaining a further loan. This had been refused, unless the finances were placed on a sound footing & expenses reduced. With a view to achieving this result they appointed a sub-committee with full powers to scrutinise expenditure & effect reductions & savings. This committee recommended that pltfs., who were remunerated on the Burnham scale, should have their engagements determined by notice. Acting in pursuance thereof the committee passed the resolutions complained of, & notices were sent out determining the contracts signed by sa. Right of child—To receive instruction.]—The governing principle of School Act, R. S. S. 1920, c. 110, is that children between the ages referred to in sect. 202 (2) (as amended by 1928, c. 48, s. 18) have the right to attend school & receive instruction. The right is the right of the child itself; & it is not a matter left to the discretion of its parents or the school board.—WILKINSON v. THOMAS (Sask.), [1928] 2 W. W. R. 700.—CAN.

17 i. Negligence of education authority—Defective state of playground.]—Applts. planted a number of young trees upon a portion of the playground of a school under their control, & erected wooden stakes with sharp & jagged points round each tree. These stakes were pressed into the ground & brought together at the top in the form of a pyramid. The area covered by the trees had become overgrown with grass, & in that area a hole had been dug, & the earth heaped up at the side of it, forming a mound two or three feet in height. Whilst she was being instructed in cooking, her apron caught fire from a gas-cooker, & she received injuries. During the game the infant pltf., who was taking the part of a "horse," fell on the wooden floor & seriously injured his arm. In an action against the council for negligence, on the ground that the game was so dangerous in itself that to order a boy to play it amounted to negligence, the evidence of the instructor was that for 20 years he had seen the game played without serious accident:—Held: there was no evidence of negligence, & therefore the action failed.—JONES v. LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL (1932), 96 J. 23c. —— ——.]—Pltf., a boy of 12 years of age attending a school owned & conducted by deft. council, was "trotting" from one classroom to another, when at a blind corner he collided with another boy, B., carrying an oil can. The spout of the oil can, about 6 ins. long, struck pltf. in the eye & severely injured him. The boy B., who was carrying the can in a perfectly proper way, had been told to take it from one room to another by a master. Pltf. sued the council as the employer of the master, alleging that the latter was negligent in not taking special precautions when entrusting a boy with a dangerous article:—Held: the oil can was not an inherently dangerous thing, nor was it a dangerous thing in the special circumstances of a school for young children, & the master was under no duty in such a case to take special precautions.—WRAY v. ESSEX COUNTY COUNCIL, [1936] 3 All E. 24a. For organisation of education—What amounts to "scheme."]—In determining whether proposals put forward by a local education authority for the development & organisation of education in its area & submitted to the Board of Education for approval constitute a "scheme" within Education Act, 1921 (c. 51), s. 11, so as to render necessary to its validity the performance by the authority of the conditions precedent to the submission of a scheme specified in sect. 14 (2) of the Act, the test to be applied is whether both the education authority & the Board of Education intend that which is put forward to be a "scheme" within sect. 11 so as to make the education authority bound, under sect. 15 (1), to give effect to it. The magnitude & quality of the proposals are not material considerations.—R. v. EAST HAM BOROUGH COUNCIL, Ex p. HUNT, [1930] 2 K. B. 64; 99 L. J. K. B. 497; 143 L. T. 709; 94 J. P. 135; 46 T. L. i. Negligence of teacher—Injury to [illegible].]—At the conclusion of a [illegible]tting class in a day school the children left the classroom on their way home, carrying, along with their knitting, knitting needles with exposed ends. While crossing the playground a child, ten years of age, was accidentally injured in the eye by a knitting needle carried by a schoolmate of the same age:—Held: while teachers had a duty to take reasonable care to protect children under their charge from danger, the pursuer had not averred either (a) that the children did not appreciate the danger, or (b) that it was usual for teachers to ensure that such needles were made safe when not in use; action dismissed as irrelevant; further, a teacher has no duty to warn a normal child, ten years of age, of such an obvious danger as the exposed ends of knitting needles.—MACDONALD'S TUTOR v. INVERNESS COUNTY COUNCIL, [1937] S. st. Negligence of driver of school van.]—Under sect. 140 (3) of Public Schools Act, 1930, the duty imposed upon a union school district to provide for the conveyance of certain pupils to & from school is imperative; &, therefore, the fact that the district has employed an independent contractor to transport the pupils does not free it from liability for injuries resulting to a pupil because of his negligence.—COCHRANE v. ELGIN CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL DISTRICT, [1934] 2 W. The expenses so incurred were disallowed by the district auditor on the ground that the local education authority had no statutory authority to expend money on alterations or improvements of a schoolhouse not provided by them. On a case stated by the Minister of Health under Audit (Local Authorities) Act, 1927 (c. 31), s. 2 :—Held : the concrete paving or flagging of the playgrounds was not an alteration or improvement in the buildings, & that therefore the obligation to pay for such work was not thrown upon the managers of the schools by Education Act, 1921 (c. 51), s. 29 (2) (d), but the local education authority were bound to pay for such work under their obligation to maintain & keep efficient all public elementary schools within their area which are necessary.—LANCASTER (COUNTY PALATINE) COUNCIL v. CROWE (No. 1), [1929] 1 K. 15a. Variation of order as to foundation managers —Powers of Board of Education.]—The Board of Education has power under Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), s. 11 (8), to make an order varying any order previously made, & this power, subject to due observance of the conditions of the sect., is practically unfettered. Therefore, when under a trust deed of 1860 the vicar & wardens of a parish were made managers of a non-provided school, & by an order of the Board made in 1903 it was provided that there should be four foundation managers of the school, one of which should be the vicar as ex officio manager, it was not ultra vires the Board to make in 1922 a varying order under Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), s. 11 (8), excluding the vicar & appointing as managers one warden & three nominees of the Archdeacon of Suffolk. The provisions of sect. 11 (1), (2), did not make the order of 1903 part of the trust deed in such a way that it was impossible to vary that order without showing that all the provisions of the trust deed as to managers were insufficient, inapplicable, or inconsistent with the Act.—FALCONER v. STEARN, [1932] 1 Ch. 509; 101 L. q ii. —— Who may sue.]—An orphanage consisted of a number of detached houses in each of which a certain number of children lived under the charge of a lady or a married couple, who were known as the "fathers" & "mothers" of the children. These "fathers" & "mothers" were appointed by the founder & general manager of the orphanage, who had the power to dismiss them at any time. They had the same authority over the children for ordinary domestic purposes as if they were their own, but the ultimate disposal of the children by emigration or otherwise rested with the founder, to whose disposal they were committed at entry. There was no secondary school in Arran, & the children attended Ardrossan Academy, which is within the education authority. Except for two months in summer, the children left Arran for Ardrossan on Monday mornings, & they were boarded during the week with persons resident in Ardrossan, with whom they lived in family. On Saturday they returned home for the week-end, & they spent their holidays at their homes in Arran. 121a. Provision of education by county council—Payment of rent to borough council—Assessment.]—By Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), the duty of supplying higher education in a borough was transferred from the borough council to the county council. In pursuance of its duties as the authority for higher education in the borough, the county council occupied a technical school owned by the borough council. The school in question was built by the borough council when it was the local authority for higher education. Part of the cost of building the technical school was borne by the borough council, while the county council made a series of annual grants towards the cost. The borough council undertook that the school premises should be used exclusively for higher education. But since its powers in regard to higher education had been transferred to the county council, the borough council could no longer use the school for that purpose. Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), contained no provisions dealing with the financial adjustments which became necessary in consequence of the transfer of powers from one local authority to another:—Held: (1) there was nothing in the Education Acts to prohibit the county council from paying, or the Gravesend council from receiving, an economic rent in respect of the occupation of the school by the county council for higher education; (2) the county council had no interest in the premises, except an equitable interest, which resulted from the grants which it had made towards the cost of the premises. In assessing the rent to be paid, allowance must be made for that equitable interest. The rent payable on that basis would be arrived at by arbn. in the absence of agreement, & the arbitrator would proceed in the manner recognised as proper in valuing public buildings.—GRAVESEND CORPN. v. KENT COUNTY COUNCIL, A.-G. v. GRAVESEND CORPN., [1935] 1 K. o (p. 576) i. —— —— ——.]—By sect. 9 of the award dated Sept. 3, 1870, made in pursuance of British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), s. 142, it was directed that all moneys received by the Province of Ontario since June 30, 1867, from the school lands set apart by Canadian statutes & called the common school fund should be paid to the Dominion, & that the income derived therefrom should be paid to the Provinces of Ontario & Quebec in the proportions specified in sect. 5 of that statute.

On Apr. 10, 1893, the three Govts. of the Dominion, Ontario, & Quebec entered under statutory authority into an agreement of submission as to matters in difference in the settlement of accounts between them under the award of 1870, & for the ascertainment & distribution of the said school fund. 182a. —— ——.]—The Girls' Public Day School Trust was incorporated as a co., but its memorandum & articles were framed with the object of establishing schools that would give a good education at the lowest possible cost. The Trust School was open to the general public, a large proportion of its pupils were scholars from the public elementary schools, & a great proportion of its governing body were nominated by the local education authority, &, further, the school was largely maintained by public moneys, & in the view of the Board of Education the school satisfied the regulation which prohibited any Parliamentary grant to a school conducted for private profit. In accordance with the Board's wishes it was provided that the co should be converted into an educational trust at the end of a period & exceeding fifty years from 1905, & that in the event of a winding up before the end of that period the surplus assets of the co. should be subject to an educational trust & should not be distributed among the shareholders; that during the period above-mentioned the dividend paid on share capital should not exceed a sum equal to 4 per cent. a year. The Comrs. found on the facts the Trust School was a public school, & as such entitled to the benefit of the exemption from income tax :—Held : there was ample evidence on which the Comrs. could find that this school was a public school. & the possibility of profit arising to an individual in the course of carrying on a school did not of necessity prevent the school having the character of a public school.

The existence of a perpetual foundation is not by itself conclusive but only one of the factors to be considered. There is no distinction between money used for a public school raised by debentures at interest, & money raised by preference shares with limited interest. The judgments in Blake v. London Corpn., No. 178, were not intended to lay down a rule that no school from the conduct of which any person could derive pecuniary benefit could in any circumstances be a public school.—GIRLS' PUBLIC DAY SCHOOL TRUST v. EREAUT (INSPECTOR OF TAXES), [1931] A. Part XVI.—Grant of Land for Educational Purposes.

259a. —— ——.]—By deed poll dated Dec. 30, 1876, & enrolled in the High Ct. of Justice, Ch. Div., a piece of land was, by express reference to the power conferred by Schools Sites Act, 1841 (c. 38), s. 2, & to no other, granted to trustees for the purposes of a school within that Act. On Mar. 22, 1932, the school was closed & the land so granted ceased to be used for the purposes of the Act. In spite thereof, the trustees, in the purported exercise of their powers for that purpose under sect. 14 of the Act, proceeded to sell the land, & in the course of the negotiations for the sale objections were raised against their title on the ground that the land had, in the circumstances, reverted in pursuance of the proviso in sect. 2 of the Act :—Held : upon Mar. 22, 1932, the date when the land ceased to be used for the purposes of the Act, the grant of the land had no operation otherwise than by virtue of & subject to the provisions contained in sect. 2 of the Act, with the result that the question raised by the summons must be answered in the affirmative & a declaration to that effect made accordingly.—DENNIS v. MALCOLM, [1934] Ch. 244 ; 103 L. was entitled to a scholarship, the funds available being sufficient for the purpose, it was contended for deft. that the word "worthy" in the regulation meant worthy from the scholastic point of view :—Held : granting the declaration as prayed, the word "worthy," if so interpreted, would make the regulation invalid, as being inconsistent with the provisions of sect. 17, & must be construed in its primary sense as meaning worthy from the point of view of character, &, the Senate having misiuterpreted its regulations, pltf. was entitled to the relief sought.—SYME v. NEW ZEALAND UNIVERSITY, [1931] N. 275a. —— ——.]—At a school for boys there was a rule prohibiting smoking by pupils during the school term, whether on the school precincts or in public. During the term a pupil rather less than sixteen years old, after having left the school for the day & returned home, smoked a cigarette in the public street, & next day the schoolmaster administered to him five strokes of the cane as a punishment for breach of the rule. On the hearing of an information against the schoolmaster for an alleged assault on the boy the justices found that the rule in question was reasonable, that the father of the boy by sending him to the school authorised the schoolmaster to administer reasonable punishment to the boy for breach of a school rule, & that the punishment administered was reasonable; & they dismissed the information. sa. Right of members of teaching staff of Education Department of Western Australia to superannuation allowances.]—Members of the teaching staff of the Education Department of Western Australia, qualified under Superannuation Act, 1871 (W. A.), to receive superannuation allowances are not deprived of the privilege by sect. 83 of Public Services Act, 1904 (W. A.). Under sects. 1, 12 of the Act of 1871, however, the privilege is dependent upon the discretion & bounty of the Crown, exercised by the governer in executive council, & that is still so notwithstanding the provisions of Public Service Act, 1904 (W. A.), & Public Service Appeal Board Act, 1920 (W. A.). When the Appeal Board reports to the governor on any such point as is specified in sect. 6 (4) of 1920 Act, as to qualification of length of service, the decision so reported is binding upon the Crown under sect. 10, but there are no words in the Act which take away the discretion of the Crown under the Act of 1871 to grant or withhold the privilege.—WALSH v. R., [1927] A. teachers falling under certain specified categories should be terminated ; &, accordingly, notice was given to each of pltfs. to terminate her engagement. Pltfs., three married women, had for several years been engaged under contracts terminable by a month's notice on either side, as assistant certificated teachers in some of defts.' schools, & were admittedly efficient teachers. It was proved that the object of the council in reducing the number of the married women teachers was to create vacancies for unemployed single women teachers whom the council trained for the teaching profession & for whom it was important in the interest of educational efficiency that teaching posts should be provided. In carrying out that policy, the council, with the view of minimising cases of hardship in the selection of married women teachers for dismissal, took into consideration the domestic circumstances & duties of the married women teachers & the earning capacity of their husbands. Pltfs. sought declarations that the notices of dismissal were invalid on the ground that the council in giving them did not act bonâ fide with the intention of discharging their statutory duties of maintaining educational efficiency, but acted with the illegitimate object of providing employment for unmarried women without reference to educational efficiency, of obliging married women teachers to confine themselves to home duties & of preventing those whose husbands were in regular employment from increasing the income of the joint home :— Held : (1) pltfs. failed to discharge the onus which lay upon them of showing that the policy adopted by the council of reducing the number of the married women teachers for the purpose of creating vacancies for unemployed single women teachers, & the steps taken to carry it out, were in excess of their statutory powers or were adopted or taken in pursuance of some illegitimate object ; (2) the matters taken into consideration by the council were not irrelevant from an educational standpoint, but were material factors in determining, not only whether the policy ought to be adopted, but the best method of applying it ; (3) as defts. had acted bonâ fide & within their statutory powers, the action ought to be dismissed.—FENNELL v. EAST HAM CORPN., [1926] Ch. 641 ; 95 L. 313 i. Resignation—Retiring allowance.]—Education (Scotland) Act, 1872, s. 61, empowers education authorities to permit a teacher to resign upon the condition of receiving a retiring allowance, & to pay such retiring allowance as they shall think fit.

A teacher was appointed at a certain salary " & thereafter in terms of the enclosed scheme of emoluments." The scheme, which did not provide for a retiring allowance, contained a proviso that the authority issuing it made no bargain with any teacher beyond what was contained in her letter of appointment. Subsequent regulations, which were issued to the teacher during her service, while containing the same proviso regarding the absence of any bargain, stated that retiring allowances " shall not be less than fifty per cent. of the salary " at the date of retirement :—Held : (1) in view of the disclaimer by the authority of any bargain beyond what was contained in the letter of appointment, the reference in the regs. to a minimum retiring allowance did not import an obligation to pay such an allowance ; (2) if the regs. had imported a general obligation to pay retiring allowances in all cases without consideration or discrimination, they would have been ultra vires. —TANNAHILL v. GLASGOW CORPN., [1935] S. Under the agreement of employment, either party might terminate it by giving 30 days' written notice, " provided that no such notice shall be given by the board until the teacher has been given the privilege of attending a meeting of the board, of which five clear days' notice in writing shall be given to the teacher, to hear & to discuss its reasons for proposing to terminate the agreement." In terminating pltf.'s employment, said proviso was not observed, nor, as found by this ct. on the evidence, was there any effective waiver by pltf. of his privilege thereunder. Pltf. sued for damages for wrongful termination :— Held : sect. 196 of School Act, R. S. A., 1922, as amended 1923, c. 35, s. 6, which provided for an appeal to the Minister by " any teacher who has been suspended or dismissed by the board," had no application to deprive pltf. of his right of action. In an action against the headmaster claiming damages for negligence, on the ground of lack of supervision, pltf., in his evidence, said that he had never known a golf ball to be struck in the playground before. There was no express evidence given as to the amount & character of supervision in the playground, if any:—Held: this was not a case of res ipsa loquitur. There was no evidence of lack of supervision on the part of the headmaster & there was no evidence that, assuming there was such supervision, it would have prevented the accident.—LANGHAM v. WELLINGBOROUGH SCHOOL GOVERNORS & FRYER (1932), 101 L. 315b. —— Accident in playground—No supervision.]—A tip-up lorry in the charge of a single driver had delivered coke in a school playground, & was driving away when a number of boys jumped on to the rear of the lorry causing the tipping part to tip up. Another boy, pltf., had jumped on to the lorry immediately behind the driver's cab, & when the tipping part of the lorry was suddenly released it came down on pltf. & crushed his leg. The headmaster of the school had left the boys to play in the playground & had returned into the school premises before the arrival of the lorry. He did not know of the arrival of the lorry. In an action for damages against the managers of the school, the headmaster & the owners of the lorry:—Held: (1) the headmaster was not negligent in leaving the boys in the playground without supervision, nor ought he to have taken steps to stop the lorry from coming during playtime. The headmaster & the managers were accordingly not liable; (2) the owners of the lorry had sent the lorry in the charge of a reasonable adult, & ought not reasonably to have anticipated interference; (3) the driver was not negligent in not looking to see if the boys had jumped on to the lorry, & he could not have anticipated sufficient weight to tip the lorry. The owners of the lorry were, therefore, not liable; (4) a lorry as such is not an allurement to children.—RAWSTHORNE v. OTTLEY, [1937] 3 All E. R. 902.

(2) Where a scheme directed an appointment to be made by a general meeting of trustees:—Held: an appointment, which could not have been made on the day on which a general meeting was held, could not be legally made on a day to which that meeting was adjourned.

(3) The trustees, having acted with precipitancy in making the undue appointment so as to exclude the petitioner, & having in the proceedings unsuccessfully impugned his character, were ordered to pay the costs.—A.-G. v. CARRINGTON (LORD) (1850), 4 De G. & Sm. 140; 64 E. R. 770.

On one occasion he temporarily removed the fire screen which usually guarded the fire in his room, &, the junior class coming into his room as usual, & going to the fire, the clothes of one of them, a child of six years of age, caught fire, & she was severely burned:—Held: deft. was liable.—BOHANE v. DRISCOLL, [1929] I. 442a. —— ——.]—There is, first of all, the strictest of all principles, that which is applicable to a criminal charge, & there a man is responsible for nothing at all except his own individual guilt. There is then the principle that is applicable to actions of a civil kind raised against a party on the ground of a wrong done, & in which it is proved that the wrong was done by the defender's agent—i.e., a person employed by the defender while he was doing the thing which he was employed to do; but then there comes in the principle that he was employed to do the particular work, & that he was not employed to do the wrong. Then there is the third class of cases, with which we are at present engaged, where in these election petitions, it being proved that a candidate is having his election carried on by a committee or by certain canvassers, those canvassers do something which, if the candidate is responsible for it, will invalidate the election; & it is held that he is responsible for it in the sense of making the validity of the election depend on it (LORD BARCAPLE).—GREENOCK CASE (1869), 1 O'M. & H. 247.

1052a. Recount—General recount unnecessary.]—At an election for a school board under Municipal Elections Act, 1884 (c. 70), s. 36, applying Municipal Corpns. Act, 1882 (c. 50), Part IV., there were eight candidates for five seats. The five highest on the poll, of whom resp. was fifth, were declared by the returning officer to be elected. A petition was presented by the candidate who was sixth on the poll against the election of resp., on the ground that certain votes given for petitioner had been wrongly counted for resp. or for some other candidate, & petitioner claimed the seat. A recount having been had of the votes given for the resp. & petitioner, it appeared that petitioner had a majority over the resp. The votes of the other candidates were not recounted:—Held: petitioner was entitled to the seat, for it was enough for him to establish that he had more votes than resp., & that it was unnecessary for him to recount the votes given for the first four candidates.—MONKSWELL v. THOMPSON, [1898] 1 Q. t i. —— —— Remedy for wrongful rejection.]—A writ of prohibition or mandamus does not lie for the purpose of determining whether a returning officer has wrongly & illegally rejected the nomination paper of a candidate for a municipal election. t ii. —— —— Although receipt given.]—The intention of Provincial Elections Act, R.S.B.C., 1924, is that the receipt of the Returning Officer required by sect. 53 (2) must be given at the time the nomination paper is handed to the Returning Officer, & sect. 54 shows that, notwithstanding the giving of the receipt, the Returning Officer has the right after the nominations have been closed & before declaring the names of the candidates to reconsider the validity of the nomination papers received by him. In satisfying himself of their validity he must do so from an examination of the nomination papers themselves.—Re HARTLEY, [1934] 1 W. W. R. 108.—CAN.

k i. —— ——.]—In the election in question herein there was only one member to be elected. After the expiration of the time for nominations, the returning officer continued & completed the checking of the nomination-papers, & considered an objection, made before the close of nominations, to H.'s paper, viz., that four of the assentors on it were also on S.'s paper. He held that these four voters could not be assentors to both papers, & that as S.'s paper had been received first & no objection made thereto the voters assenting to it must be taken to have exercised their rights & could not be considered as assentors to H.'s paper, & that, as without these four names H.'s paper was not signed by the required number, it must be rejected. He, therefore, declared it invalid & that the three other persons who filed nomination-papers were nominated:—Held: the decision of the returning officer was right.—Re HARTLEY, [1934] 1 W. W. (3) The charter of incorporation of a municipal borough, which was granted in accordance with the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 (c. 50), provided that a named person, or in case of his death, inability, refusal or default a second named person, or in case of his death, inability, refusal or default a third named person, should perform the duties of chairman of the first meeting of the borough council for the election of aldermen. The first named of these persons having already been elected mayor, & he & the second named of them being candidates for the office of aldermen, & the third named of them not being present, a councillor who was not one of these three persons was elected chairman of that meeting & acted as such without protest at the time by any of the three named persons :—Held : in the circumstances, the councillor who had been elected chairman was entitled to act as such although he was not one of the three named persons.—Re BARNES CORPN., Ex p. HUTTER, [1933] 1 K. 1145a. —— —— Omission of parish for which nominee qualified.]—The nomination papers of four persons nominated for election as rural district councillors merely stated in column 5, under the heading "how qualified," that the persons nominated were "local government electors," & did not state the name of the parish for which they were qualified as local government electors, as required by Rural District Councillors Election Order, 1898, r. 4. The deputy returning officer rejected the nomination papers as being invalid, because the parish within the poor law union for which qualification was claimed was not stated. Upon an election petition :—Held : (1) the omission to state in the nomination paper the name of the parish for which the person nominated was qualified as a local government elector was a non-compliance with Rural District Councillors Election Order, 1898, r. 4 ; (2) that defect was not cured by Ballot Act, 1872 (c. 33), s. 13, because that sect. only applied to a case where there had been a wrongful admission of a nomination paper, & did not apply to a case where a nomination paper had been rejected ; (3) neither was the omission an "inaccurate description" of the person nominated within r. 33 of the 1898 Order, but was a non-compliance with the requirements of r. 4 of that Order, & therefore was not cured by r. 33.—BALDWIN v. ELLIS, [1929] 1 K. The claimant, who was an engineer, had in his business used for charging batteries an apparatus which was rendered useless by the change to alternating current:—Held: the claimant was entitled to receive from the corpn. as compensation, (a) the cost of supplying converting apparatus which would enable him to continue charging batteries after the system had been changed, & (b) damages for interference with his business during the process of change.—LAKEMAN v. CHESTER CO. The tenant of a dwelling-house, which formed part of a tenement, & was within the requisite distance from one of the undertakers' distributing mains, employed, with his landlord's knowledge, his own contractor to make an installation of electricity in the dwelling-house. The landlord owned the whole tenement, including a main electric cable connecting the tenant's dwelling-house with the undertakers' distributing main in the street. On the completion of the work, the undertakers, having been requested by the tenant to supply electrical energy to the dwelling-house, refused to do so until the landlord's consent had been obtained. The landlord, however, refused to consent to the supply & to the use of the main cable on the ground that the cable used in the tenant's installa- was not of the type which it was his practice to require for his properties. The tenant having, with concurrence of the procurator-fiscal, charged the undertakers, by way of complaint, with breach of their statutory obligation to supply electrical energy in terms of sect. 21 of the Order:—Held: (1) without the landlord's consent to the supply & to the use of the main cable, the tenant was not, legally or in fact, in a position to receive a supply of electrical energy in terms of sect. 21 of the Order; (2) in these circumstances, the undertakers were not bound to supply such energy.—BRAND v. GLASGOW CORPN., [1935] S. 33a. —— To "person" requiring supply—Who is—Receiver.]—A colliery co., at the time of the appointment of a receiver in a debenture holders' action, owed a sum of money to an electrical distribution co. for electricity supplied to them. The distribution co. threatened to cut off the supply of electricity from the colliery co. unless payment of the arrears was guaranteed by the receiver. The receiver commenced an action to restrain the distribution co. from cutting off the supply. By South Wales Electrical Power Distribution Company Act, 1900, s. 40, it is provided that: "the co. shall give a supply of energy to any person who requires a supply which may be given by this Act other than a supply in bulk upon that person entering into a binding agreement to take the energy upon such terms as failing agreement shall be fixed by a single arbitrator appointed by the Board of Trade":—Held: the receiver was a "person" within the sect. & was therefore entitled to require a supply of electricity upon the terms set out in the sect.; & the distribution co. must be restrained from withholding or threatening to withhold from him a supply of electricity.—GRANGER v. SOUTH WALES ELECTRICAL POWER DISTRIBUTION CO., [1931] 1 Ch. 551; 100 L. 38a. —— —— General strike—Refusal to employ naval ratings—Agreement with union workers to abandon supply of power.]—Pltfs., who carried on business in S., were entitled, by statute & by contract, to receive from the S. borough council a supply of electrical power, but were deprived of this supply on certain days in May, 1926, when the general strike was in operation. In respect of this deprivation of supply pltfs. sued defts., who were the members of the Electricity Supply Committee of the S. borough council, to whom the council had lawfully delegated the management of the electricity supply, alleging that defts. had wrongfully & maliciously conspired & combined among themselves & with the London District Committee of the Electrical Trades Union to procure & induce the borough council, its servants & agents, to discontinue the supply of electrical power to pltfs. The writ in the action was issued on Jan. 13, 1927. Defts. denied pltfs.' allegations, & pleaded Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893 (c. 61). At the trial it was proved that at the end of Apr. 1926, when the general strike was threatened, the Govt. made preparations for the maintenance of essential services & offered to provide naval ratings to take the place of workers who might go on strike. The Govt. also issued an Emergency Order relieving the S. borough council from its obligation to supply the whole of the previous requirements of consumers of power by 50 per cent. Defts. did not accept the Govt.'s offer of naval ratings to work the electricity plant, considering it unwise to do so in view of the likelihood of disorder in the borough; but they discussed the position with the Trades Union Council & eventually resolved that if the union workers would continue the supply of light they would abandon the supply of power. The result of this was that the supply of power to pltfs., as to all other occupiers of premises in the borough, was discontinued, whereby pltfs. suffered damage. The jury found that defts. in making the agreement whereby power was not supplied to pltfs. were not acting in good faith & in the honest belief that they were carrying out their statutory duties, & that they were actuated by an indirect motive to injure pltfs. & to further the interests of those taking part in the strike. Upon these findings judgment was entered for pltfs. Defts. appealed:—Held: there was no evidence to support the jury's findings.—SCAMMELL G. & NEPHEW, LTD. v. HURLEY, [1929] 1 K. B. 419; 98 L. J. 39b. Negligence in supply—Whether action lies.]—Where a statutory duty is imposed on undertakers to supply electricity & default is made in ensuring a proper & sufficient supply which causes loss to a consumer who has received his supply by virtue of the statutory right & not under a special contract, no action lies at common law for damages for negligence against the undertakers. The only remedy is to enforce against the undertakers the penalty provided by statute.—STEVENS v. ALDERSHOT GAS, WATER & DISTRICT LIGHTING CO. (NOW MID-SOUTHERN DISTRICT UTILITY CO.) (1932), 102 L. 42a. —— Supply to premises partly outside area—Point of supply within area.]—Defts. were authorised by the County of London (Northern Extensions) Electric Lighting Order, 1897, made under Electric Lighting Acts, 1882 (c. 56) & 1888 (c. 12), to supply electricity within an area adjoining the relators' area of supply. Sect. 6 of the Order prohibited the supply of energy by defts. beyond their area of supply, & Electric Lighting Act, 1909 (c. 34), s. 23, contains a general prohibition against supplying energy outside an authorised area. Defts. entered into a contract to supply a firm having a small part of its premises within defts.' area of supply & the remainder of the premises in the relators' area of supply. For the purpose of this contract defts. erected their apparatus on the part of the premises of the firm within their area, & the consumers' terminals, that is, the point where the electricity was passed from defts.' service lines to the lines on the firm's premises owned & controlled by them, were also on that part of the premises. The use of electricity on this part of the premises was trivial. In the circumstances the A.-G. brought an action on the relation of the relators to restrain defts. from supplying energy to the firm outside their area :—Held : the point of supply was the consumers' terminals, & as the firm's terminals were within defts.' area, defts. had not committed any breach of the prohibitions in their Order & the Act of 1909.—A.-G. v. COUNTY OF LONDON ELECTRIC SUPPLY CO., [1926] Ch. 542 ; 95 L. 43a. Supply to railway company by order of Minister — Amalgamation of railways.]—Resp. railway co., an amalgamated railway co., was the owner of a railway undertaking situated partly within & partly without the area of supply for electricity purposes of resp. corpn., which railway undertaking included an undertaking which was, before absorption, the undertaking of the W. railway co. No part of the W. railway passed through or was situated within the area of supply of resp. corpn. Resp. co. had adapted part of the W. railway to electric traction & the consent was obtained of the Minister of Transport under Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, s. 47, to the supply by resp. corpn. of electricity for the purposes of the W. railway. Resp. corpn. at present supplied resp. co. with electricity, part of which was used for operating certain capstans, wagon hoists & traversers. It was contended that resp. corpn. was not competent to give, nor resp. co. competent to take, a supply of electricity for the purpose contemplated, on the grounds (1) that the W. railway did not, for the purpose of sect. 47 of the Act of 1926, form part of a railway undertaking of which resp. co. was owner & that resp. co.'s power to take a supply of electricity for the W. railway remained that conferred by the W. railway's own Act, (2) that the words "may supply" in sect. 47 referred back exclusively to Electric Lighting Act, 1909 (c. 34), s. 5 (1), & resp. corpn. did not bring itself within that sect., & (3) that the words "for haulage & traction" in sect. 47 referred to a special supply for that purpose only, that there was no such supply by resp. corpn. to resp. co., & that it could not, therefore, be said that resp. corpn. was supplying electricity to resp. co. within sect. 47 :—Held : (1) sect. 47 of the Act of 1926 referred to the whole undertaking of resp. co., including the W. railway, & resp. co. was competent to take a supply of electricity for the purpose contemplated ; (2) the words "may supply" did not refer back exclusively to Electric Lighting Act, 1909 (c. 34), s. 5 (1), & resp. corpn. came within those words ; (3) the words "for haulage & traction" did not refer to a special supply for that purpose only, &, as resp. corpn. was supplying electricity for the general purposes of the co., including all the haulage & traction involved in operating capstans, hoists & traversers, the corpn. was brought within sect. 47 & was competent to supply electricity to resp. co. for the purpose contemplated.—A.-G. In 1911 the B. district & the contractual rights of the B. Council were transferred to pltfs., the S. Corpn., but defts. still remained electricity undertakers in B. Defts. having recently begun to charge higher prices than pltfs., pltfs. brought an action to restrain their breach of agreement. Defts. contended that their agreement was ultra vires both under Electric Lighting Act, 1882 (c. 56), s. 11, which prevented them from divesting themselves of their statutory powers without the consent of the Board of Trade, & also under the general law applicable to statutory undertakings :—Held : the agreement was a business transaction into which defts. might reasonably enter ; it did not fetter the powers of defts. & was not incompatible with the performance by them of their statutory duties, & was not therefore ultra vires.—SOUTHPORT CORPN. v. BIRKDALE DISTRICT ELECTRIC SUPPLY CO., [1925] Ch. 794 ; 94 L. 54a. —— ——.]—A local authority were the undertakers for the supply of electricity in their district, but no electric inspector had been appointed for that district, & consequently the meters which the local authority supplied to their consumers, although standard meters, were not duly certified as required by Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899 (c. 19), Sched., s. 49. A consumer of electricity objected to the demand made upon him for electricity alleged to have been consumed by him during a summer quarter. He alleged that either the meter had incorrectly registered the amount consumed or that the meter had been incorrectly read. After a long correspondence the local authority cut off the consumer's supply of electricity, alleging that they had the right to do so under Electric Lighting Act, 1882 (c. 56), s. 21. In an action in a county ct. by the consumer for an injunction to restrain the local authority from cutting off his supply of electricity the county ct. judge held there was a bonâ fide dispute between the consumer & the local authority as to the amount due & that therefore the local authority were not entitled to cut off the customer's supply of electricity by reason of sect. 18 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909. On an appeal by the local authority :—Held : (1) having regard to the finding of fact by the county ct. judge that there was a bonâ fide dispute between the parties the local authority were not entitled to cut off the consumer's supply of electricity by reason of Electric Lighting Act, 1909 (c. 34), s. 18, as the cutting off of a supply of electricity was a most effective & practical refusal of supply ; (2) inasmuch as the meter furnished by the local authority to the consumer was not a duly certified meter as required by Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899 (c. 19), Sched., s. 49, the register of that meter was not conclusive evidence of the value of the supply. q i. —— Inaccurate accounts submitted.]—Applts., a private co. which generated & supplied electrical power in the City of Fredericton, New Brunswick, were, however, a "public utility" co. within Public Utilities Act, R. S., 1927, of New Brunswick, & were accordingly under a statutory duty to furnish reasonably adequate service & facilities, & were strictly limited, in accordance with filed scheds. open to public inspection, as to the rates, tolls & charges which they could make & exact. Resps., who carried on a dairy business in Fredericton, bought from applts. electric energy which they used in the manufacture of butter, ice-cream & other milk products. To arrive at the correct amount of electric energy supplied it was necessary to multiply the meter dial reading by ten, but owing to a mistake on the part of the applts. that was not done over a period of twenty-eight months, with the result that during that time the resps. were charged with only one-tenth of the electric energy supplied to them. On a claim by applts. to recover the balance of nine-tenths :—Held : applts. were not estopped from recovering the sum claimed. The duty imposed by the Public Utilities Act on applts. to charge, & on resps. to pay, at scheduled rates, for all the electric current supplied by the one & used by the other could not be defeated or avoided by a mere mistake in the computation of accounts. The relevant sects. of the Act were enacted for the benefit of a section of the public, & in such a case where the statute imposed a duty of a positive kind it was not open to resps. to set up an estoppel to prevent it. An estoppel is only a rule of evidence, & could not avail to release applts. from an obligation to obey the statute, nor could it enable resps. to escape from the statutory obligation to pay at the scheduled rates. The duty of each party was to obey the law.—MARITIME ELECTRIC CO., LTD. v. GENERAL DAIRIES, LTD., [1937] A. C. 610 ; [1937] 1 All E. R. 748 ; 106 L. J. P. C. 81 ; 156 L. T. 444 ; 53 T. L. He issued a writ against the résps. on Apr. 1, 1932, claiming general & special damages. On July 5, 1932, he delivered an amended statement of claim, basing his claim alternatively on (a) a breach of an implied term of his contract of employment, or (b) a breach of duty owed by the resps. to him as a workman in their employ :—Held : the claim was out of time under sect. 127 of the Act. The statutory words were characterised by the utmost amplitude, & the action was one against resps. for something done or omitted to be done in the execution or intended execution of the Act within sect. 127. The co. then dismissed the claimant, having no further need for his services. He claimed to be entitled to compensation under Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919 (c. 100), s. 16, on the ground that he had suffered loss of employment in consequence of an agreement between authorised undertakers within that sect.; & he based the amount of his claim on the fact that he had been in receipt of an annual salary. tion for the supply of electricity in a district, made an Order under sect. 7 of the Act of 1919, constituting an electricity district & establishing an Electricity Advisory Board for that district. The Order, which provided that the Scheme set out in the Sched. to the Order should operate & have effect, came into operation on June 4, 1924, having been previously confirmed by the Board of Trade & approved by resolutions passed by both Houses of Parliament. Under the Scheme set out in the Sched. the Advisory Board could only make recommendations to the constituent bodies composing it & to the Electricity Comrs. Para. 11 of the Scheme provided as follows: " (1) The main outlines of the Technical Scheme for the improvement of the supply of electricity in the district, to which the general approval of the Comrs. is hereby given, are set forth in the Second Annex hereto, which Annex shall be deemed to form part of this Scheme & shall have effect accordingly. (2) The Board shall take all steps within their power to secure the carrying into effect of the Technical Scheme, which may be modified or varied with the approval of the Comrs." The main outlines of the Technical Scheme in the Second Annex provided that certain generating stations, including a new one belonging to the Leicester Corpn., should be utilised under the Scheme & extended as might hereafter be determined, & that certain generating stations, including two belonging to the Leicester Corpn., should be utilised until the load could be transferred to the new stations. Those two stations were closed down in Aug. & Sept. 1930, & a number of workmen employed therein in consequence lost their employment or suffered a diminution of wages, & on Nov. 5, 1930, they claimed compensation from the Leicester Corpn. under Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919 (c. 100), s. 16. It was contended on their behalf that the word " scheme " in that section referred not to the Scheme in the Sched. to the Order, under which the Advisory Board was established, but to the Technical Scheme set out in the Annex, which provided for the closing of the two generating stations & under which they were closed:—Held: the word " scheme " in sect. 16 meant the Scheme for the improvement of the existing organisation for the supply of electricity in any district which the Electricity Comrs. had to approve or formulate under sect. 5 of the Act of 1919, & the Order giving effect to which in the present case came into operation under sect. 7 of that Act, as soon as it was confirmed by the Board of Trade & approved by resolutions of both Houses of Parliament, the last of which in the present case was June 4, 1924, & consequently the claims for compensation were out of time. Further, even if the word " scheme " in sect. 16 meant Technical Scheme, inasmuch as para. 11 of the Sched. provided that the Second Annex, in which the main outlines of the Technical Scheme were set out, should be deemed to form part of the Scheme & should have effect accordingly, therefore it came into operation on the same date as the Scheme.—BETTS v. LEICESTER CORPN., [1932] 1 K. 106a. Time for ascertaining value of property.]—Under an Electric Lighting Confirmation Order Act, it was directed that a co. should sell, & a local authority might, & should purchase that part of the undertaking & business of the co., which was situate in the area of the local authority. After a notice to treat had been given the co. incurred a considerable amount of further capital expenditure in respect of the undertaking. The purchase-price having been left to arbitration & the arbitrators referring it to an umpire, the umpire in fixing the purchase price considered that the adjustment of the rights of the parties in respect of such capital expenditure, did not come within the award, & fixed the price without considering it. On an action brought by the co. for specific performance, it was submitted by the local authority that the co. could not show a good title to certain property comprised in the purchase. At the time of the hearing of the action the local authority were endeavouring to obtain leave to borrow the purchase money on the security of their rates:—Held: (1) the High Ct. in this action was the proper party to adjust the rights of the parties as to the additional capital expenditure, that an inquiry must be directed on the matter of the additional expenditure, the local authority being entitled to the undertaking of the co., as it was at the date of purchase subject to necessary fluctuations before completion, & that it could not have thrust on it an unduly enlarged undertaking; (2) there must be an inquiry as to the title of the co. to the property sold, for the purpose of seeing if the local authority were entitled to any compensation; (3) a decree for specific performance would be made in favour of the co., & a date fixed for completion; with liberty to apply to extend the date. —METROPOLITAN ELECTRIC SUPPLY CO., LTD. v. MARYLEBONE CORPN. 106b. ——.]—By the Oxford Electric Lighting Order, 1890, which was a provisional order granted by the Board of Trade under the Electric Lighting Acts, 1882 (c. 56), & 1888 (c. 12), power was given to the predecessors of applt. electric co. to supply electricity in O. In 1892 applt. co. became the successors of the undertakers named in the order of 1890. Under sect. 63 of the order the local authority, resp. corpn., could within forty-two years give notice requiring the undertakers to sell, subject to all subsisting rights & contracts, at a price to be ascertained by either of two methods, the one selected in this case being by capitalising the net profits of the undertaking at 5 per cent. per annum upon the capital of the co. shown by the books of the co. to have been properly expended on the undertaking at the date of the notice requiring the undertakers to sell. Sect. 4 provided that if the undertaking was purchased in accordance with the provisions of the order the local authority should from the date of such purchase be the undertakers. By sect. 8, the undertakers were required to keep accounts of the capital employed for the purpose of the business distinct from any other accounts. In accordance with sect. 63

notice was given by the corporation on Dec. 3, 1928, to the co. to sell. An action was brought by the corpn. to determine what was the proper method for ascertaining the purchase price to be paid by the corpn., & what was the date as from which the sale was effected & the corpn. became entitled to take the profits of the going concern. The corpn. claimed that the price should be arrived at by capitalising upon a basis which the order did not fix, a sum of 5 per cent. upon the capital of the co. shown by their books to have been properly expended upon the undertaking, upon the footing that that sum represented the annual net profits of the co.'s undertaking, & that they were entitled to the profits as from the date notice was given, namely, Dec. 3, 1928. The co. asserted that the price ought to be fixed by capitalising the annual net profits of their undertaking upon a 5 per cent. basis, in other words, to first ascertain what the annual net profits were & then the capital sum which, if invested at 5 per cent., would produce those profits, & that they were entitled to retain the profits down to the date when the purchase money had been ascertained, & the obligation of the corpn. to pay it had arisen. The judge accepted the view of the corpn. on both points, holding that the date from which the purchase was to take effect was not dependent on the fixing thereof by the Electricity Commissioners under Electric Lighting Act, 1888 (c. 12), s. 2, but was to be ascertained by reference to the provisional Order of 1890 alone:—Held: there would be difficult calculations necessitated by the co.'s method of arriving at the purchase price, & sect. 8 might be used as indicating that the method suggested by the corpn. was right & would simplify the calculation. Where there was no special indication of the date when property was to change hands the date of the transfer would be that of taking possession after a good title was shown, but here there were certain indications. The co. relied on sect. 4 of the order as showing that the date must be when the local authority acquired their rights & responsibilities upon payment of the purchase-money, but sect. 4 dealt with a different matter to sect. 63, & did not elucidate the interpretation of sect. 63, sub-clause 1, the clause elected as the basis for arriving at the price. The words "at the date of such notice" in that sect. showed that to be the crucial date.—OXFORD CORPN. v. OXFORD ELECTRIC CO., LTD. (1930), 143 L. T. 577; 94 J. P. 229; 29 L. G. R. 1, C. A.

106c. Purchase of part of undertaking—Price—Construction of provisional order.]—Applts. were statutory undertakers for the supply of electricity in the Sale Urban District & in parts of the Bucklow Rural District under Ashton-on-Mersey Electric Lighting Order, 1896, confirmed by the Electric Lighting Orders Confirmation (No. 6) Act, 1896. The question involved in the appeal was whether on the true construction of sect. 58 of the Ashton-on-Mersey Electric Lighting Order, 1896, the price to be paid by the Sale Urban District Council (resps.) on the purchase of the part of the undertaking authorised by the said order, which was situate within the district of resps., was a sum equal to the total expenditure on the whole undertaking or only a sum equal to the expenditure on a part of that undertaking. By sect. 58 of Ashton-on-Mersey Electric Lighting Order, 1896: "(4) The price payable by the local authority shall be ascertained as follows: If the accumulated profits of the undertaking shall at the expiration of the notice amount to or exceed a return of seven & a half per cent. per annum on the total expenditure of the undertakers upon the undertaking including the cost of additions & alterations the purchase money shall be a sum equal to such total expenditure. If the accumulated profits of the undertaking shall at the said time not amount to such a return as aforesaid the purchase money shall be a sum equal to the total expenditure as aforesaid together with such further sum as will with the accumulated profits if any made by the undertakers amount to a return of seven & a half per cent. per annum as aforesaid":—Held: in sect. 58 (4) of the 1896 Order, "total expenditure of the undertakers upon the undertaking" meant the total expenditure on the whole undertaking authorised by that order.—ALTRINCHAM ELECTRIC SUPPLY, LTD. v. SALE URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL (1936), 154 L. 192 iv. —— ——.]—In April, 1923, pltf. co. entered into an agreement in writing with B. for a lease to the co for five years of certain land. B. died in Feb. 1924. This action was brought on May 20, 1924, against the exors. of B. & against G., to whom the exors. had, in May, 1924, agreed to sell the same land ; & the M. co., to which the land was (by direction of G.) conveyed by the exors. of B. on July 13, 1924, was added as a deft. Pltf. co. claimed specific performance of its agreement with B., a declaration that its rights were paramount to the rights of defts., in the land, & in the alternative damages for delay in carrying out the agreement & for breach thereof. A certificate of lis pendens was registered on May 21, 1924. On May 20, 1924, which was after the making of the second agreement, but before its registration on that day, defts. received notice of the claim made by pltf. co. Defts. G. & the M. co. contended that they were purchasers in good faith without notice of pltf. co.'s claim & were entitled to the benefit of the Registry Act, R. S. H., a dealer in motor cars, agreed to buy a car from the owner thereof for cash provided pltf. co. would finance the purchase. Accordingly, under an arrangement made with pltf. co. he had a lien contract executed by the owner as vendor & himself as purchaser. This contract, which was assigned by the owner to the co., was discounted by it. H. then sold & delivered the car to one K. under a lien contract which deft. co., having no notice of pltf. co.'s rights, discounted on H.'s assignment & delivery of the contract to it. H. absconded & the present action between the two cos. was brought to determine which of them was entitled to the unpaid portion of the purchase-price due from K. :—Held : K. was entitled to enforce his contract of purchase even as against pltf. co., & as between the two cos. deft., having the possession & the right to retain the possession of H.'s contract with K., had the superior right to receive the payments thereunder.—IMPERIAL FINANCE CORPN., LTD. v. FIDELITY TRUST CO., [1930] 2 W. 688a. —— Purchase of property from company—Property charged with annuity—Sale to company by executors as "beneficial owners."]—Testator, who died in 1914, bequeathed his business & other assets & devised freehold property to his two sons, charged with an annuity in favour of his widow of £300 per annum. In 1923, the sons, who were also the exors. of the will, formed a co., & "as beneficial owners" conveyed the property to the co. In 1925 the co. sold the property to J. The conveyance recited that the co. were seised in fee simple in possession, free from incumbrances, & it purported to convey a like estate to J. The co. afterwards became insolvent. The annuitant claimed that the co. were liable to pay the annuity, & also that J. held the property subject to the charge, by reason of the fact that the circumstances attending the conveyance to him should have put him upon inquiry as to its existence:—Held: (1) the co. had notice of the charge & were liable, & debenture holders of the co. could not take the co.'s assets free from the liability, but (2) J. had not been put upon inquiry either (a) because the sons had purported to convey not as executors but as "beneficial owners"; or (b) by the fact that the assignment to the co. was one not only of testator's freeholds & leaseholds, but also of leaseholds acquired since his death; or (c) because in the deed assigning to the co. there was a recital which showed that a leasehold had been deposited with a bank to secure an overdraft; or (d) because in the deed of 1923, the seal of the co. as purchasers, was fixed in the presence of two directors, one of whom was one of the sons. These facts did not amount to constructive notice to J. that the sons were not selling as exors., & he was therefore entitled to hold the property freed from the annuity.—PARKER v. JUDKIN, [1931] 1 Ch. 475; 100 L. 815a. —— Fines & Recoveries Act, 1833 (c. 74), 71.]—Testator, who died in 1875, specifically devised an undivided share in freeholds to his son P. for life with remainders which never took effect & devised the residue of his real estate upon limitations which in 1878 were held by the ct. to give testator's son W. an estate tail therein. In 1877 the freeholds, the undivided share in which was devised to P. for life, were sold under Leases & Sales of Settled Estates Act, 1856 (c. 120), & the proceeds of sale representing such share were paid into ct. After the sale W., who had previously executed a disentailing deed dealing in general terms with the lands devised to him by testator's will, executed another disentailing deed dealing in terms with the undivided share & the money in ct. resulting from the sale thereof. Neither of these deeds was executed with the consent of P. as the protector of the settlement. W. died in the lifetime of P. having by his will devised his residuary real estate to applt. & bequeathed his personal estate to resps. At the death of P. in 1920 applt. petitioned for payment out of ct. of the money, claiming that it had passed to him as residuary devisee of W.:—Held: the money retained the character of real estate inasmuch as Fines & Recoveries Act, 1833, s. 71, did not convert disentailed money into personal estate for all purposes, but merely directed that it should be treated as personal estate for the purpose of the form of a disentailing deed.—Re DICKSON'S SETTLED ESTATES, [1921] 2 Ch. 108; 90 L. Testator was absolutely entitled to two equal ninth parts of the residuary real estate of his father & to one-fourth part of certain mines & minerals:—Held: as a result of Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), Sched. I., Part IV., & sect. 35, the real property became subject to a trust for sale, with the result that testator's interest became, on the passing of the Act, personal property by reason of the conversion so effected, &, therefore, passed under the gift of personal estate & not to the devisee.—Re KEMPTHORNE, CHARLES v. KEMPTHORNE, [1930] 1 Ch. 268; 99 L. On Jan. 1, 1926, the Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 35, & Sched. I., Part IV., para. 1 (2), came into operation, & B. thenceforth vested in testator & J. as joint tenants on the statutory trusts for sale. On Jan. 29, 1929, testator died without altering or confirming his will:—Held: the specific devise was adeemed by the imposition of the statutory trusts, & J. took nothing thereunder.—Re NEWMAN, SLATER v. NEWMAN, [1930] 2 Ch. 409; 99 L. Testatrix by her will made in 1923 devised her undivided share in certain lands to her son absolutely. By a codicil made in 1927

she made certain alterations in the will, subject to which she confirmed it. The codicil did not affect the devise. Testatrix died in 1930. By the operation of Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), Sched. I., Part IV., para. 1, the land had been since Jan. 1, 1926, held upon the statutory trusts declared by sect. 35 of Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20). The trustees declined to accept the trust. All the cestuis que trust then executed a deed of trust, by which they agreed to divide the property into two classes. Class 1 was to be sold immediately, to pay testator's debts. Class 2 was to be held by the trustees named, in trust for the purposes of the will, so far as not inconsistent with the trust deed, to pay the rents accruing to the parties as entitled under the will, & with power to a majority of the trustees to sell even within the nineteen years, at the end of which period, however, the property was to be sold absolutely, & the proceeds divided as the will directed. B. died before the end of the nineteen years: —Held : (1) under the trust deed there was a conversion out & out of class 1 from the date of that deed; but that there was a conversion of class 2 only at the end of the nineteen years, or, if sold before that period, then at the time of such sale; & the intermediate rents of the part remaining unsold went to those entitled to the real estate; (2) semble : under the will taken by itself, there was no conversion till the end of the nineteen years of that part of the real property which was then unsold, any conversion possible before that period being only for a certain limited purpose, that is, to pay debts of testator.—FERRIE v. ATHERTON (1852), 20 L. In adjusting the rights as between tenant for life & remaindermen in respect of a reversionary interest which ought to have been but has not been converted by trustees interest should be calculated at the rate of 3 per cent.—ROWLLS WALTERS v. TREASURY SOLICITOR, [1909] 2 Ch. 107; 69 L. 1187a. —— Income & accumulation from land—Heir-at-law entitled.]—By a codicil to her will, a testatrix left three-fourths of her residuary estate, subject to certain payments, upon trust to apply the income for the benefit, maintenance & support of her daughter, who was of unsound mind, & during the lifetime of her daughter to accumulate all the residue not applied under the discretionary trust by way of compound interest by investing the surplus income & the resulting income thereof in certain investments & for certain purposes mentioned in the codicil. Testatrix died in 1901, & in 1922, twenty-one years after her death, the trusts for accumulations determined, & as from that date they were held to be undisposed of. The question then arose whether: (a) the undisposed income & accumulations derived from the income of the residuary real estate; & (b) the income & accumulations derived from the income of accumulations of income of the real estate were divisible among the next-of-kin of the testatrix, or whether they went to the representative of her heir-at-law, who died in 1931 :—Held : the personal representative of the heir-at-law of the testatrix was entitled to (a) & (b).—Re WALPOLE, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. CANTERBURY, [1933] Ch. 431; 102 L. In the events which happened the material limitations of the will resulted as follows To the use of E., T. & J. successively for life in the order named, with remainder to the use of E., T. & J. as tenants in common in tail general, with cross-remainders between them in tail general, with remainders over. In 1867 part of the land was sold & the proceeds invested in mtge. of freehold land. In 1871 E. died leaving an only daughter. In 1881 T. died a bachelor. In 1898 the surviving trustee foreclosed, & in 1899, by a deed appointing a new trustee to which J. was party, the foreclosed land was conveyed to the uses & upon the trusts of the will as if the same had been thereby specifically devised. On the death of J. in 1916 without issue, his executrix, who was also executrix of T., claimed that the foreclosed land in fact represented personalty & was subject to a trust for sale by Conveyancing Act, 1911 (c. 37), s. 9, & that she was entitled to two-thirds of the proceeds. The only daughter of E. claimed the foreclosed land as tenant in tail under the limitations of the will, E., T. & J. never having disentailed :—Held : (1) owing to the power to vary investments, the crucial time for determining the character of each investment was the death of J., the surviving tenant for life, & that the mtges. having been then foreclosed the mere foreclosure operated as a reconversion of the property into realty, & that there was no equity on the part of any cestui que trust under the will to have the personal character of the investment restored to it ; (2) by the deed of 1899, to which all the parties able to control the character of the investment of the trust fund were parties, the foreclosed land was duly adopted as real estate & settled to the uses of the will ; (3) although Conveyancing Act, 1911 (c. 37), s. 9 (5), may apply to land foreclosed before the commencement of the Act & remaining at the passing of the Act in the condition determined by the foreclosure, it would be unreasonable to extend the retrospective operation of the section to a case like the present where previously to the commencement of the Act the foreclosed land had been definitely accepted & settled as land & rights acquired thereby ; (4) even if, by virtue of sub-sect. 5, Conveyancing Act, 1911 (c. 37), s. 9, was to be deemed to apply to foreclosed lands as from the date of foreclosure, the terms of both sub-sects. 3 & 4 had in the present case been complied with sufficiently to prevent the reconversion of the land into money under sub-sects 1 & 2 ; (5) the foreclosed land had become legally vested in the daughter of E. in tail as the heir in tail of E.—Re BOGG, ALLISON v. PAICE, [1917] 2 Ch. 239 ; 86 L. 1316a. Contingent reversionary interest—In personalty.]—Testator, who was entitled in reversion expectant upon the determination of his wife's interest &, contingently upon no issue of the marriage living to attain a vested interest, to the proceeds of sale of certain real estate conveyed by him, upon his marriage in 1880, to trustees upon trust for sale, died in 1886 in his wife's lifetime, having devised the real estate, which had remained unsold, to the use of his wife for life with remainders over by way of legal limitations in strict settlement. There was no issue of the marriage. The real estate was not sold in the lifetime of the wife, who accepted the benefits under her husband's will & died in 1921 :—Held : inasmuch as at his death testator's interest was a contingent reversionary interest in personalty, contingent upon the event of no posthumous child being born who might attain a vested interest, & reversionary because it was expectant upon his wife's life interest, testator was not competent to effect a reconversion by his will, because he never became entitled to an absolute interest in the property before his death, & the property passed under his will as personalty.—Re STURT, DE BUNSEN v. HARDINGE, [1922] 1 Ch. 416 ; 91 L. 1516a. Two claims under marriage settlement—One claim statute-barred but satisfied by legacy in will—Other claim ignored by will.]—A testator by a settlement made on his first marriage in 1884 covenanted (a) that he would take out a policy of insurance of £2,000 payable on his death to the trustees of the settlement, & (b) that he would by his will bequeath to the same trustees all his interest in every copyright to which he was entitled. Testator never took out a policy of insurance, but by his will he bequeathed to the trustees of the settlement £2,000 in full satisfaction of all obligations arising out of the covenant to effect such a policy, & he left the residue of his property, which included the copyrights, by way of a general bequest to his widow, who was a second wife & not a party to the marriage settlement. Testator died in 1935, & a summons was taken out to determine whether the trustees of the settlement could claim both the £2,000 under the will & an assignment to them of the copyrights or damages in lieu thereof, or whether they were put to their election between the two claims :—Held : (1) the covenant applied to all copyrights to which testator was entitled at the date of his death; (2) if the trustees claimed the benefit under the will, they ought on the general principles of election to give effect to the whole will, including testator's plain intention that the copyrights should not go to them, although any remedy upon the covenants in the marriage settlement was statute-barred.—Re FLETCHER'S SETTLEMENT TRUSTS, MEDLEY v. FLETCHER, [1936] 2 All E. P.'s wife was to have a life interest in three of the parcels conveyed, & certain other benefits, & at her death the property was to be distributed among P.'s children ; this life interest was to be in lieu of dower in all P.'s lands. 2006a. ——.]—The principle deducible from the dictum of the Ct. of Appeal expressed in Re Scott, Langton v. Scott, No. 1840, namely that, in the distribution of a testator's estate amongst his children & the children of deceased children, children claiming to take by substitution the share of their deceased parent must bring into account an advancement made by testator, in his lifetime to their parent, is not applicable to the case of a parent's indebtedness to testator; so that, where a testator gave his residuary estate in trust for his children living at the period of distribution & the children of any child then dead, grandchildren are not liable, upon claiming their deceased parents' share, to bring into account a debt owing by the parent to testator's estate.—Re BINNS, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. INGLE, [1929] 1 Ch. 677; 98 L. 2046a. —— Although interest unpaid at date of death.]—A person, who borrowed £100 carrying interest at 5 per cent. per annum, by his will left a legacy of £100 free of duty to his creditor. The will did not contain any direction to pay debts. At the date of the debtor's death there was interest due & unpaid in respect of the debt. The exors. of the deceased paid the creditor the amount of the legacy & interest on the debt, up to the date of payment. The creditor then sued for the amount of the debt :—Held : the rule, that a legacy to a creditor of an amount equal to or greater than the debt owed by the testator to the creditor operated as a satisfaction of the debt, applied notwithstanding that there was interest due & unpaid in respect of the debt at the date of testator's death.—FITZGERALD v. NATIONAL BANK, LTD., [1929] 1 K. 2713a. Threatened disclosure of confidential information.]—The manager of deft. cos. endeavoured by dishonest means to procure for his cos. information to which they had no right whatever. He had attempted to secure this information from employees of pltf. co., but the attempts were unsuccessful. These employees were under stringent service agreements, prohibiting them from disclosing confidential matters. Pltfs. & defts. were interested in television, & pltfs. were a research co., going through the preparatory stages in order to perfect & render commercial a method of television which had not yet reached a commercial stage. The disclosure of the information to defts. would have caused pltfs. irreparable damage. Pltfs. prepared a draft letter complaining of these matters, which was shown to defts., & the latter promised that the attempts should cease ; but whatever was done proved quite ineffective to stop such attempts. Pltfs. then issued the writ in this action asking for an injunction to restrain defts. & their servants & agents from making such attempts:—Held: (1) it being proved that defts. through their manager were wrongfully endeavouring to persuade employees of pltfs. to disclose information, & that such disclosure would cause irreparable damage to pltfs., the latter were entitled to the injunction asked for, although such attempts had been wholly unsuccessful; (2) pltfs. were not under any duty to take any further steps before issuing the writ in this action; (3) it was no answer to the claim for an injunction that the manager who made the attempts was now employed by defts. in a different capacity. The important fact was that he was still in their employment.—SCOPHONY, ... v. TRAUB, [1937] 4 All E. R. 279; 81 Sol. Jo. 981, C. A.

d i. ——.]—A testator directed his trustees to divide the balance of the annual income of his estate into ten equal shares, & (inter alia) to pay one such share to each of his four daughters during their respective lives, & further, on the death of any daughter leaving issue, to apply her share for her issue. Testator further directed that, after the death of his widow, the amount payable in respect of each of these shares was not to exceed £600 per annum. One of the four daughters, who survived testator, predeceased his widow leaving issue. At the time of the daughter's death her one-tenth share of income amounted to £2,800 per annum. The trustees having been assessed to estate duty upon one-tenth of the trust estate, they & the daughter's exors. petitioned for recall of the assessment. Petitioners maintained that, on the daughter's death, a passing of property, within Finance Act, 1894, s. 1, had taken place, & that, the daughter's interest in income being restrictable upon the widow's death to £600, the principal value of the property passing on her death fell to be estimated, under sect. 7 (5) of the Act, upon an actuarial basis :—Held : the case was one in which property passed on the death of the daughter within sect. 1, & the property which passed was the property which produced the one-tenth share of the income which she enjoyed immediately before her death, & which immediately thereafter became applicable for the benefit of her issue, no account falling to be taken of the circumstance that the beneficiaries' interest in the property was restrictable on the death of testator's widow.—DUNDERDALE'S TRUSTEES v. INLAND REVENUE, [1936] S. two private Acts of Parliament vested in trustees for the life of Sir H. F. de T., the late baronet, to uses for raising £250,000 for portions for the late baronet's younger children & subject thereto to the use of Sir H. E. de T., the present baronet, for life with remainder to his first & other sons in tail male; & it was provided that the annual income of the estate should during the life of the late baronet be held & applied by the trustees in making certain payments & among them a payment of an annual sum of £8,000 to the present baronet during the joint lives of the late baronet & the present baronet; furthermore, the present baronet was authorised to charge the estate with sums amounting to £50,000, not to be raised or paid during the life of the late baronet. The late baronet exercised to its full extent his power of appointing portions for his younger children by various deeds poll charging the estate with various sums to be raised & paid after his death. The present baronet borrowed from the trustees sums amounting to £50,000 &, in pursuance of the authority above mentioned, charged the estate with payment thereof after the death of the late baronet. By an order of the Chancery Div. dated July 28, 1928, & referred to above, the trustees were empowered to raise & pay in the lifetime of the late baronet the two sums of £250,000 & £50,000. At some time after Aug. 15, 1928, the £250,000 was accordingly raised & paid as portions to the younger children of the late baronet, & the £50,000 was treated as repaid to the trustees. On Jan. 10, 1929, the late baronet died. On an information by the A.-G. claiming estate duty at the appropriate rate under Finance Act, 1894 (c. 30), s. 1, in respect of the principal value of the estate as property passing on the death of the late baronet, including the sums of £250,000 & £50,000 as property deemed to have passed thereon under Finance Act, 1900 (c. 7), s. 11, as amended by Finance (1909-10) Act, 1910 (c. 8), s. 59 (1), the trustees contended that they were entitled to deduct from the estate alleged to pass: (1) a principal sum sufficient to produce a yearly sum of £8,000, being the yearly sum payable to the present baronet immediately before the death of the late baronet; (2) the two sums of £250,000 & £50,000 mentioned above:—Held: (1) the property passing on the death of the late baronet included the principal sum sufficient to produce the yearly £8,000 inasmuch as the yearly sum ceased to be payable on the death of the late baronet; (2) the sums of £250,000 & £50,000 fell within the words of the 1900 Act, s. 11, as amended by 1910 Act, s. 59 (1), being sums in which the trustees had an interest limited to cease on the death of the late baronet, which had been surrendered within three years before the death for the benefit of persons entitled to an interest in reversion, & which therefore were deemed to pass on the death of the late baronet.—DE TRAFFORD v. A.-G., [1935] A. 27b. Restricted estate under protective trust—Lands passing to tenant in tail.]—By a deed of settlement made in July, 1889, the Fifth Earl of C. & his eldest son settled the C. Estates to the use of the eldest son as tenant for life with remainder to the use of his sons successively in tail male & in default of such issue to the use of the second son of the said Fifth Earl for life with remainder to the use of his sons successively in tail male with remainders over. In 1893 the Fifth Earl bought the life estate of his said second son, & this interest was conveyed to trustees their heirs & assigns for the life of the said second son upon discretionary trusts in favour of the said second son, his wife & his children or remoter issue &, subject to this trust, upon trust to accumulate the surplus of the rents & profits, invest it, & apply the proceeds in discharging debts or incumbrances upon the estates, with a proviso limiting the duration of this trust. In 1908 the eldest son of the Fifth Earl died. In 1910 the only son of that son died. In 1915 the Fifth Earl died & was succeeded by his said second son as Sixth Earl & the life estate of the Sixth Earl became an estate in possession. In 1933 the Sixth Earl died & was succeeded by his only son as Seventh Earl & tenant in tail male in possession of the estates:—Held: estate duty became payable on the death of the Sixth Earl when the property passed to the Seventh Earl & his estate became an estate in possession instead of an estate in remainder; he then became entitled to receive the whole income of the property which was formerly applicable for the benefit of the objects of the discretionary trust, & it mattered not that he was himself one of the objects of that trust.—SCOTT & COUTTS & CO. v. INLAND REVENUE COMRS., [1937] A. 27c. Discretionary trust for payment to class—Death of member of class—Trust for payment to new class.]—A testator devised all his real property to trustees in fee simple upon trust in their absolute discretion to pay a yearly allowance of such amount as the trustees should think fit to his son H. for life or to pay or apply the same for the benefit of H. or his wife or children or other specified persons & after the death of H. in trust for the first & other sons of H. successively in tail male; & in default of such issue to pay to his son R. during his life a similar yearly allowance & after the death of R. in trust for the first & other sons of R. successively in tail male; & in default of such issue as therein directed. The will contained a proviso that if any equitable tenant in tail should be born in testator's lifetime the interest of such person should be excised from the will, & the trustees should hold the property in trust to pay him a yearly allowance of such amount from time to time as they should in their uncontrollable discretion think fit, & after his death in trust for his first & other sons in tail male. After certain other dispositions the will devised the property in ultimate remainder to testator's right heirs. Each beneficiary who should be entitled to an allowance was given power to appoint a jointure to his wife & to charge the property with portions for his children. During the life of H. the persons who were beneficially interested in the discretionary trusts were H. himself, his wife, his sons W. & M. & his daughter G. After the death of H. the persons beneficially interested in the trust were W., his wife & his brother M. :—Held : on the death of H. the title to the beneficial interest in the property passed under Finance Act, 1894 (c. 30), s. 1, from the first named group of persons to the secondly named group, notwithstanding that certain persons were members of both groups. —BURRELL & KINNAIRD v. A.-G., [1937] A. 40a. —— Liability to reduction in lifetime of annuitant.]—Testator by a trust disposition & settlement & codicils thereto, after providing for his debts & other expenses & making other dispositions, directed his trustees to divide the balance of the annual income of the trust into ten equal shares & to pay five of these to his wife & one to each of his four daughters & his sister-in-law during their respective lives. Should any of his daughters die leaving issue, the share of income which would have been payable to her was to be applied for the maintenance & education of her issue until the youngest of them should have attained the age of twenty years & thereafter should be paid in equal portions during their lives to such of them only as were daughters. After certain other declarations he further provided that after the death of his wife no beneficiary should receive more than £600 per annum from the income of the trust & that the balance should be otherwise disposed of as directed. Testator was survived by his wife, his four daughters & his sister-in-law, & for a time the income of the trust fund belonged, & was paid, as to one moiety to the widow, as to one-tenth to the sister-in-law, & as to one-tenth to each of the four daughters. One-tenth of the income of the fund amounted annually to £2,800. Mrs. N., one of the four daughters, died leaving three children her surviving. sc. Gift made within three years before death—Money spent on improving house —Whether gift to wife.]—A husband & wife, with their children, lived together in a house which belonged to the wife ; each enjoyed a separate income. The husband paid to a builder with whom he had made contracts about £3,000 for improvements & repairs to the house. A few months later he died at the age of fifty-three. It was found that the transaction was not entered into with intent to diminish the value of the husband's estate, but that the object was simply to improve the family home in accordance with their means & station in life : & that there was no reason to believe that the husband would not enjoy the normal span of life, or that he would necessarily predecease his wife :—Held : the payments did not constitute a gift to the wife of the deceased within Death Duties Act, 1921, of New Zealand, ss. 38, 39, so as to be deemed to be part of the husband's estate for the purposes of that Act.—FINCH v. STAMP DUTIES COMR., [1929] A. sf. —— Settlement—Trust property not transferred to trustees.]—In 1918 a resident in New Zealand held mtges. & debentures securing £57,200, the deeds & certificates being in the custody of his agents, who managed his private affairs under a general power of attorney, & kept accounts relating thereto. He wrote to them giving particulars of a settlement of £30,000 which he proposed to make on his children, & instructing them to take that sum from his capital for the trusts. Thereupon they debited his capital account with £30,000, & credited it to a special trust account. By the deed of settlement, which was executed by all the necessary parties, the trustees acknowledged the receipt of the £30,000, & the trusts were declared. No money, however, was paid, nor any securities transferred, to the trustees. Further sums were settled in 1919, 1920, & 1924, similar entries being made in the agents' books. Interest at a flat rate was paid to the beneficiaries on the sums settled on them respectively, the payments being made out of the income received by the settlor from the securities in his agents' custody. Those securities varied from time to time, but the amount always exceeded that settled. Upon the settlor's death in 1928, his estate was assessed to duty under Death Duties Act, 1921 (N.Z.), as including the settled sums, less capital which more than three years before the settlor's death had been paid out to two of the beneficiaries under power in the settlements, & subject to an allowance for gift duty paid when the sums were settled :—Held : having regard to sect. 5 (1) of the Act the assessment had been rightly made, as the settlements could not be treated as gifts perfected either by transfer of property or declaration of trust ;

63a. —— —— —— Disentailing deed & resettlement.]—By a disentailing deed & a deed of resettlement, A. & his mother appointed property to trustees upon trust for the mother for life, & then upon certain trusts for management. There followed a discretionary trust in favour of A., his wife or children, with remainder in trust for A.'s sons, & with ultimate remainder to E. The mother died in 1925, & estate duty was paid on the value of the settled property. The trustees, under their discretion, then paid £50 a month to A. & the balance of income to E. In 1926 A. died, unmarried, & estate duty was claimed :—Held : A., in executing the disentailing deed & resettlement, had acted as a person "competent to dispose of property" within 1894 Act, s. 22 (2) (a), & the discretionary trust in his favour was a reservation by him of an "interest" in the property within Customs & Inland Revenue Act, 1881 (c. 12), s. 38 (2) (c). Therefore, by that sub-sect. read with 1894 Act, s. 2 (1) (c), the property was deemed to have passed on A.'s death & estate duty was payable.—A.-G. v. FARRELL, [1931] 1 K. B. 81 ; 99 L. J. K. 67a. —— Contingent succession—Accumulations.] By a deed, dated Mar. 1924, appointing trustees of a large sum of money, the settlor, who died in Mar. 1928, provided that during his life the income of the whole was to be paid or applied by the trustees for the benefit of all or any of his children in such manner as he should direct, & so far as any direction should not extend the income was to be held as an accretion to the capital of the settled funds. After his death the capital & income of the funds not already distributed were to be held in trust for his children living at his death in such manner as he should by deed or will appoint, & in default of appointment in trust as to two-fifths for his son, & the remaining three-fifths for equal division among his three daughters as tenants in common. The settlor made no direction by deed or will, & on his death the Crown claimed that the property the subject of the trust "passed" within Finance Act, 1894 (c. 30), s. 1, or that the children's interests which arose on his death were interests provided by the settlor within sect. 2 (1) (d), & that in either case estate duty was payable on the whole of the funds & accretions :—Held : the funds & accretions did not pass on the settlor's death & estate duty was not payable in respect thereof under sect. 1, but that on the true construction of sect. 2 (1), the beneficial interest of each child of the settlor in the settled funds & accumulations sg. —— Land transferred to children subject to partnership agreement.]—In 1909 M., the owner of 35,000 acres of land in New South Wales on which he carried on the business of a grazier, verbally agreed with his six children that thereafter the business should be carried on by him & them as partners under a partnership at will, the business to be managed solely by M., & each partner to receive a specified share of the profits. In 1913, by six registered transfers in the form prescribed by the Real Property Act, 1900, M. transferred by way of gift all his right title & interest in portions of his land to each of his four sons & to trustees for each of his two daughters & their childen. The evidence showed that the transfers were taken subject to the partnership agreement, & on the understanding that any partner could withdraw & work his land separately. In 1919 M. & his children entered into a formal partnership agreement, which provided that during the lifetime of M. no partner should withdraw from the partnership. On the death of M. in 1929 the land transferred in 1913 was included in assessing his estate to death duties under Stamp Duties Act, 1920–1931 (N. S. W.), on the ground that they were gifts dutiable under sect. 102 (2) (a), of that Act :—Held : (1) the property comprised in the transfers was the land separated from the rights therein belonging to the partnership, & was excluded by the terms of sect. 102 (2) (a) from being dutiable, because the donees had assumed & retained possession thereof, & any benefit remaining in the donor was referable to the partnership agreement of 1909, not to the gifts ; (2) the transfers did not mention the rights of the partnership, & therefore under sect. 42 of Real Property Act, 1900 (N. S. W.), might in law give a title free from those rights, was not material, because the substance of the transaction had to be ascertained, as liability to taxation ought not to be based upon refinements but on clear words.—MUNRO v. STAMP DUTIES COMR., [1934] A. T. & his wife predeceased the daughter, & she died leaving children. Her life estate had not determined in her lifetime :—Held : the lands comprised in the indenture did not form part of the dutiable estate of A. by virtue of sect. 102 (2) (k) of "Stamp Duties Act, 1920–24." The dominant words of that provision are "under or by virtue of any agreement made by the deceased," & they mean that the passing of the property shall proceed from the volition of deceased.—ANGUS v. COMR. The settlor died in 1925, without having exercised the joint power of appointment, leaving his wife & children him surviving. For the purpose of death duty under the Stamp Duties Act, 1920–1924, of N. S. 67b. ——————.]—By a deed of settlement the settlor caused to be issued to or transferred into the names of trustees certain shares in a co. in trust for all such one or more of her children or remoter issue, or the husbands or wives of the children or remoter issue, as she, the settlor, should by deed revocable or irrevocable or by will appoint, & until & in default of appointment upon trust to divide the trust fund into three equal shares & appropriate one share to each of her three named children, but so that the three shares should be retained by the trustees upon the trusts therein declared.

By a deed of appointment the settlor directed the trustees of the settlement to hold the trust fund in trust during her life to accumulate the income & after her death to stand possessed of the trust fund & accumulations in trust for her three named children in equal shares, but so that the share which after her death was to be held for each of the said three children should not vest absolutely, but should be retained by the trustees upon trust during the life of each child to pay to him or her the income of his or her share & after the death of such child to hold that child's share in trust for the children or remoter issue of that child as he or she should appoint, & in default of such appointment in trust for all or any of the children of that child who being sons or a son should attain the age of twenty-one years or being daughters or a daughter should attain that age or marry if more than one in equal shares. There followed a hotchpot clause, & an accruer clause in case the trusts declared concerning the share of any child should fail. Finally, the deed reserved to the settlor a power of revocation by deed or will. The settlor died without having revoked the appointment. She left her surviving the three children unmarried :—Held : the rule in Lassence v. Tierney (1849), 1 Mac. & G. 551, applied to the settlement; under it the three children took absolute & immediate interests in the trust fund (though liable to defeasance) & nothing passed to them under it on the death of the settlor within Finance Act, 1894 (c. 30), s. 1; also, the life interest of each child was deemed to be property passing on the death of the settlor within sect. 2 (1) (d) of the Act, & the duty thereunder was leviable on the excess, if any, of the value of the expectant life interest of each child after the death of the settlor over its previous value.—A.-G. v. LLOYDS BANK, LTD., [1935] A. si. Shares in company domiciled in Irish Free State—Testator & life tenant domiciled in Northern Ireland—Death of life tenant.]—Testatrix, B., died domiciled in Northern Ireland. By her will she gave all her property to trustees to allow same to remain in the state of investment in which it might be at the time of her death or to change said investments as the trustees in their absolute discretion might think fit & to pay the income [illegible] daughter N. ughter, pointed W. & her daughter, N., exors. of her will. The assets included shares in a co. situate in the Irish Free State. N., the life tenant, died on Apr. 23, 1928, within two months of the death of B., & before representation to the estate of B. had issued. A claim for estate duty arose on the death of N. in respect of the residuary estate of B., passing on the death of N. under the will. It was contended on behalf of the Crown that the residuary estate of B. as at the death of N., constituted a Northern Ireland chose in action, as B. died domiciled in Northern Ireland & the forum of administration of her estate was the Northern Ireland Cts. The exor. of the estate of B., however, contended that the estate of B. passed in specie on the death of N. :—Held : after the death of B., N. has a proprietary interest in her mother's estate & estate duty was payable in the Irish Free State & not in Northern Ireland, the residuary estate having passed on the death of N., & having consisted of shares in a co. situate in the Irish Free State.—A.-G. v. WALKER, [1934] N. I. 179.—IR.

so. Situs of shares.]—The situs of shares is at the place where the register of shareholders is kept, & duty is payable there in accordance with the law of the locality, & this is so even though the name of a deceased owner was not actually on the register at the time of death.—Re FERGUSON, [1935] I. who declared that the instrument was to take effect according to the law of Hong Kong where he was domiciled, devised & bequeathed his property, which was situate out of the United Kingdom, to trustees on trust to invest a sum to produce an annuity for his wife, to pay certain legacies & to stand possessed of the residue to pay the annual income thereof to his sons or son during their or his lives or life, & on the death of the last survivor of his sons in trust for his son's children. The tenant for life, who was the only son of testator living at his death, wished to borrow money &, at the request of the lenders, he appointed, in England, four new trustees of the will, three of whom were resident in England. Between 1913 & 1922, owing to the tenant for life's dealings with the trust funds, proceedings in the Ch. Div. were instituted & orders were made in connection with the administration of the trusts of the will. In 1922 the tenant for life died, leaving him surviving his widow & two infant sons, who were domiciled in Hong Kong but had been made wards of ct. by virtue of the proceedings in the Ch. Div. & the orders made therein. The trust property was situate abroad:—Held: the succession of the infants to testator's residuary estate was at his death a succession by virtue of Hong Kong law & to Hong Kong property, & it had never lost that character or fallen within 1853 Act, s. 2, & the property was not liable to estate duty under 1894 Act, s. 2 (2). —A.-G. v. BELILIOS, [1928] 1 K. —— —— Shares.]—Testator, a German subject, was, at the outbreak of the European War, entitled to stocks, shares, & securities in English, South African, & American cos. The certificates were in all cases situate in London, & the securities themselves were transferable in London at the outbreak of war, & at the date of testator's death. Testator died in 1915, in Berlin, being domiciled in Germany. By his will three-fifths of his property were bequeathed to German & Austrian beneficiaries, & two-fifths to British & Polish beneficiaries. In 1915 the will was proved in Germany by the exors. named therein. In 1922, grant of administration in England was made to pltf. By virtue of Treaty of Peace Orders, the whole of the interests of the German & Austrian beneficiaries became charged with & subject to the claims of the Custodian of Enemy Property. In 1922 all the South African securities were transferred to the South African Custodian, an exor. dative was appointed in South Africa to administer testator's South African estate, & estate duty in South Africa was paid by him in respect thereof. Some of the American securities were transferred to the American Alien Property Custodian, administration of testator's American estate was granted in America, & the securities were transferred to the American Custodian to be distributed by the American administrator among the beneficiaries. All the remaining American securities, with the exception of a small balance, were released to pltf. by the English Custodian. In May, 1924, pltf. filed a corrective affidavit, including therein those of the American securities which had been released to him at that date, & he paid estate duty & interest in respect thereof:—Held: (1) all the shares were locally situate in England & the administrator was bound to include them as property of which testator was competent to dispose, & was accountable to the extent of the assets he had received for the estate duty in respect thereof; (2) the basis of valuation of such shares was the price similar shares would fetch in the open market at the date of testator's death.—Re ASCHROTT, CLIFTON v. STRAUSS, [1927] 1 Ch. 313; 96 L. By a deed of exchange made between deceased & deft., deft. conveyed to deceased his remainder in the above lands, & in return the deceased conveyed to deft. his life interest in the capital moneys to the intent that the life interest should merge in deft.'s estate in remainder. Deceased died within three years. The Crown claimed estate duty on these moneys:—Held: the property, the life interest, did not pass by reason of the purchase, because that interest ceased on death, & consequently 1894 Act, s. 3 (1), did not apply, &, deceased having died within three years of the making of the deed, Finance Act, 1900 (c. 7), s. 11, as amended, applied, & the property was deemed to pass notwithstanding its disposition by the above deed.—A.-G. v. LLEWELYN, [1935] 1 K. At her death in 1918 the furniture was sold for £45,000, & the Crown claimed succession duty & estate duty upon the difference between the two sums from the trustee of the settlements:—Held: (1) s ii. —— Discharge by son of legit —A father granted a bond for £30,000 in implement of an undertaking by him in his second son's marriage contract, in contemplation of the son's marriage, & in consideration of a conveyance executed by the son's intended wife for behoof of the spouses. In the marriage contract the son accepted the obligations therein contracted by his father as in full satisfaction in any event of all legal claims for legitim or otherwise he might have upon his father's estate. At the date of the marriage contract & of the bond the only claim to legitim possible to the son was in the event of his elder brother predeceasing his father. That event happened, & at the father's death the amount of legitim to which the second son would have had a claim, had he not discharged it, was £25,000:—Held: the bond could not be regarded as a debt incurred by the father for full consideration in money or money's worth wholly for deceased's own use & benefit in the sense of 1894 Act, s. 7 (1), & did not form a proper deduction in determining the value of his estate for the purposes of estate duty.—LORD ADVOCATE v. WARRENDER'S TRUSTEES (1906), 8 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 371.—SCOT.

the transaction was a bonâ fide sale between mother & son, & no succession duty was payable; (2) as to the claim for estate duty, there had been a "purchase for partial consideration" within 1894 Act, s. 3 (2), the consideration paid represented four-fifths of the value of the property at the date of such purchase, & estate duty was payable only upon one-fifth of the value as at the date of the death of the tenant for life; (3) "partial consideration," in sect. 3 (2), meant something less than the full & fair value as between buyer & seller.—Re BATEMAN (BARONESS). The word "power" in the phrase "power . . . to appoint or dispose of property as he thinks fit" in Finance Act, 1894 (c. 30), s. 22 (2) (a), is not used in the strict sense attaching to it when used with reference to a power of appointment, but in the sense of capacity.—Re PENROSE, PENROSE v. PENROSE, [1933] Ch. 793; 102 L. 121a. —— —— —— Enures for benefit of residuary legatees—Where annuities free of duty given out of residue.]—Testator who died in 1910 directed the payment of an annuity to his son E., & on the latter's death "to his present wife," free of duty. Settlement estate duty was paid on so much of testator's residuary estate as was required to provide for the annuities payable under the will. E. died in 1930 & his widow, A., became entitled to the annuity. Estate duty was payable, but an allowance of interest was claimed under Finance Act, 1914 (c. 10), s. 14 (b), as a set-off in respect of the settlement estate duty already paid on testator's death:—Held: the annuities having been paid in full, the persons entitled to the allowance were the persons entitled to the residuary estate.—Re GRINLINTON, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. GRINLINTON, [1933] Ch. 344; 102 L. PART II. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 2.

c i. —— Annuity paid out of general income—No property settled.]—Sect. 4 of Estate Duty Ordinance, 1932, of Hong Kong, provides that estate duty shall be paid on the principal value of "all property passing on the death" of a deceased person, which, by sect. 5 (1), "shall be deemed to include . . . (b) property in which deceased or any other person had an interest ceasing on the death of deceased, to the extent to which a benefit accrues or arises by the cesser of such interest, . . ." By sect. 25 (1) of the Ordinance: "If estate duty has already been paid in respect of any settled property since the date of the settlement, upon the death of one of the parties to a marriage, no estate duty shall be payable on the death of the other party to the marriage unless such person was at the time of his or her death or had been at any time during the continuance of the settlement competent to dispose of such property. (2) For the purposes of this section, the term settlement means any . . . will, . . . under or by virtue of which instrument . . . any property, or any estate or interest in any property, stands for the time being limited to or in trust for any persons by way of succession, & the term settled property means the property comprised in a settlement."

A testator by his will bequeathed to his wife an annuity of £10,000 during her life. No specific fund was set aside by the trustees of the will to meet the annuity, which was in fact paid out of the general income of the estate. The whole of that income was not applied in meeting the annual payments. The annuitant was not at any time competent to dispose of the property out of the income of which her annuity was payable. Estate duty had been paid in Hong Kong on the whole of the testator's estate when probate was granted. On a claim by the Estate Duty Comr. that upon the death of the annuitant estate duty became payable under sect. 5 (1) of Estate Duty Ordinance, 1932, to the extent to which a benefit accrued by the cesser of the annuity:—Held: (1) there was property of testator in which the annuitant had an interest ceasing at her death within the meaning of sect. 5 (1) (b) of the Ordinance, & therefore to the extent to which a benefit accrued by the cesser of the annuity that property was deemed to be included in property passing on the death of the annuitant; (2) there was not a "settlement" within the meaning of sect. 25 (2) of the Ordinance, under or by virtue of which any property, or any estate or interest in property, stood during the lifetime of the annuitant limited to or in trust for any person by way of succession, & therefore the exemption conferred by sect. 25 (1) did not operate, & estate duty was accordingly payable. The phrase "any property, or any estate or interest in any property" in sect. 25 (2) of the Ordinance, coupled with the words "stands limited," referred to definite property or an estate or interest in it which actually existed & could be precisely defined. There was no such definite property allocated in the present case, & a hypothetical slice of the property passing by the will could not properly be treated as an interest in that property within the meaning of sect. 25 (2).—ARMSTRONG v. ESTATE DUTY COMR., [1937] A. ss. "Interest in business"—What is—1914 Act, s. 15.]—A father & two of his sons carried on business in partnership. By a re-arrangement of the partnership relations the father accepted £124,646 in full of his whole rights in the old firm & its assets, & agreed to allow this sum to remain as a loan to the new firm at 4 per cent. interest, on condition that, if called up by him, or in any event on his death, it was to be repaid by ten yearly instalments. The father contributed no capital to the new firm apart from the loan, but had an interest in the profits to the extent of a one-tenth share. He died in 1922, leaving a will by which he bequeathed the residue of his estate, including the loan, to his family, & estate duty was duly paid thereon. The two sons came to an arrangement with their father's exors., under which the sons agreed to repay the loan at once in return for a certain discount; & in settling with the exors., they retained in the business the respective shares of the loan falling to them, by crediting themselves with the amounts in the books of the firm. Within two years of the father's death one of the sons died, & estate duty became payable on his estate. His exor. having claimed a reduction, under the above sect., of the estate duty payable on the sum credited to the son in the firm's books in respect of his share of his father's loan:—Held: the father's right to repayment of the loan was not an "interest in the business" within the sect., & the sum standing in the son's name in the books of the firm was an interest in the assets of the firm, & was not identical with his father's interest in the jus credit of the loan.—GLEN v. INLAND REVENUE, [1926] S. C. 44.—SCOT.

ss. —— —— ——.]—The proprietor of a wine & spirit business, by his trust-disposition & settlement, directed his trustees to convey the residue of his estate to his only daughter on her attaining twenty-five years of age, with a destination over in the event of her predeceasing the period of conveyance, & to pay her the income of the residue until that date. He directed his trustees to sell the business. The daughter died eight days after testator, under the age of twenty-five, & before the direction to sell had been implemented. The trustees having claimed a reduction, under Finance Act, 1914, s. 15, of the estate duty payable on the daughter's death, in so far as assessable on the value of the business, the Comrs. of Inland Revenue refused the claim:—Held: sect. 15 applied, in respect that the beneficial possession & enjoyment of the residue, including the business, had passed to the daughter on testator's death, & had again passed on her death: & the trustees were, accordingly, entitled to the relief claimed.—WARREN'S TRUSTEES v. INLAND REVENUE, [1928] S. 127a. Property in which deceased never had an interest—Accumulations of income of voluntary settlement.]—Deceased transferred certain stocks & shares to trustees on trust to accumulate the income thereof at compound interest during a certain period by way of accretion to the settled fund, & after that period to deal with that fund on certain trusts for the benefit of others. The income was so accumulated for several years. On the death of the deceased the Comrs. contended that for determining the rate of estate duty the said accumulations should under Finance Act, 1894 (c. 30), s. 4, be aggregated with the rest of the settled property passing on the death, & that they were not property in which deceased " never had an interest " within the meaning of the proviso to that sect. :—Held : the contention of the Comrs. was correct.—A.-G. v. DICKINSON & BARON, [1937] 2 K. 128a. —— " Land & chattels " — What are " chattels."]—By an Act of 54 Geo. 3 an annuity of £2,000 was inalienably settled on Lord E. & his successors in title. In 1892 the redemption of the annuity for a sum of £55,890 was agreed upon, & that amount was paid into ct. & invested in the purchase of Consols. The fifth Viscount E. died in Aug. 1922, & the sixth Viscount in Feb. 1923. Questions having arisen as to the payment of estate duty, the ct. was asked whether estate duty became payable (a) upon the capital of the sum of Consols, or (b) upon the value of the interest of the successor to the title in such sum of Consols, & if estate duty became so payable, then whether, for the purpose of determining the rate of estate duty, such sum of Consols ought (a) to be aggregated with the other property, or (b) to be treated as an estate by itself :—Held : " chattels " in collocation with settled lands in 1894 Act, s. 5 (5), did not suggest personalty generally, but those particular items of it which were usually settled upon trusts that followed the devolution of the settled land, & the sum of Consols was not " chattels " within the sub-sect., & must be aggregated with the other property for the purpose of paying estate duty.—Re EXMOUTH'S ANNUITY, [1925] Ch. 280 ; 94 L. 132 i. Aggregated property—Whether property aggregated more than once on same death.]—Testator, who had two sons, H. & J., by his will devised certain real property to his son, H., in trust for H. for his life, with remainder to H.'s children as H. should appoint, &, if there should be no son of H. who should attain the age of 21 years, then in trust for his, testator's, other son, J. Testator died in 1893, & H. entered into possession of the lands under the trusts of the will. J. died intestate & unmarried in 1897, leaving his brother, the said H., his heir-at-law. By an order of the ct. made in 1908 it was declared that on the death of J., H. took an estate for life, with a vested absolute interest in remainder, subject to being divested if he left issue, in the freehold lands devised by his father's will, &, accordingly, that H. could make a valid testamentary disposition or otherwise dispose of his estate or interest in the lands. On the death of J., H. took out a grant of administration, & paid duty in respect of the personal property which passed on the death of J., but he did not pay any estate duty in respect of the contingent interest in the lands which had been devised to J. by his father's will, & which passed to him, H., as his brother's heir-at-law. H. died without issue in 1920, & estate duty was paid by his exor. on the value of the property which passed on his death, including the lands in question :—Held : the Revenue Comrs. were entitled to claim estate duty on the death of J. in respect of his contingent estate in the lands which passed on his death to H., & the rate of estate duty was to be calculated according to the value of that interest when it fell into possession on the death of H., together with the value of the rest of the estate of J.—Re O'CONNOR'S ESTATE, HENDRICK v. REVENUE COMRS., [1931] I. At the date of his death the testator held 18,501 shares, & his son, the assistant managing director, held 4,251. The shares were transferable, subject to the right of the directors to refuse to register any transfer of shares upon which the co. had a lien, or a transfer to a transferee of whom the directors did not approve. Bequests of shares of residue—Accruer clause—Calculation of value of interest of deceased beneficiary.]—Viscount N. by his will & three codicils thereto disposed by clause 6 of his will of 74¼ hundredths of the income of his residuary estate. By sub-clause 28 he provided that on the death of any of the legatees, his or her share should accrue to the survivors. By sub-clause 29 he provided for the application of the remaining income in payment of other legacies, & these being paid the remainder was to be applied in the same manner as the 74¼ hundredths. By clause 10 it was directed that the capital should go in moieties to charities. By an order made on July 28, 1924, the income was divided into one hundred & thirds. Two of the income beneficiaries had now died. On a summons taken out in these circumstances asking whether the estate duty payable by reason of the death of any person entitled to any share of the income was to be paid upon the value of the share in the capital equal to that of the income previously enjoyed by such person or upon the like proportion of the actuarial capital value of the income during the respective lives of the several persons entitled thereto or other the period during which the trusts in respect of such income should be subsisting or how otherwise the same ought to be calculated & out of what fund the same was payable:—Held: (1) the property which passed on the death of any such person must be taken to be a share of capital in the residuary trust fund, & that estate duty must be paid on the value of such share; (2) the duty payable on any such death was a first charge on that portion of the residue out of which the income was payable, & must be borne by the corpus of such estate.—Re NORTHCLIFFE, ARNHOLZ v. HUDSON, [1929] 1 Ch. 327; 98 L. the last balance sheet, prior to the date of the death of the testator, showed a surplus of assets over liabilities of £36,399, the principal asset consisting of the stock-in-trade, valued in the last balance sheet at £23,329. The shares, which were all held by members of testator's family, had never been dealt with on the Stock Exchange, & therefore they had no market quotation. As the co. was a private co., in which practically no one was interested except the directors, the profits could be divided up either as salaries or dividends as the directors chose, & they decided to give the profits as salaries. At the time of his death the salary of testator was £2,000 & that of his son £1,000 per annum. For the six years previous to testator's death the actual dividend paid averaged 5–3 per cent. on the issued capital of £23,007. Both testator & his son had special knowledge of the business, to which they gave constant daily attention. Testator's exors. when making their return for the purpose of estate duty, valued testator's shares at 15*s.* each, basing their estimate of value on the average dividend for the preceding period of six years & the market price of similar shares, a valuation which they subsequently offered to increase to 17*s.* 6*d.*, but the Revenue Comrs. declined to accept these values:—Held: the co. could be fairly regarded as capable of earning on a commercial basis 10 per cent. on its capital, but, taking this as the principal test of value, it must be subject to the consideration, on the one hand, of the restriction upon the transfer of the shares, &, on the other, to the added value by reason of the security of the co.'s position. Also, the Comrs.' contention that testator's shares would be most likely sold en bloc to a single purchaser, & that their value should be fixed accordingly, was unsustainable as the possibility of the shares being divided up among several purchasers, either members of testator's family or of the public, must be considered, for Finance Act, 1894 (c. 30), s. 7 (5), does not contemplate in the term "open market" not only a market which is hypothetical, but also only hypothetical purchasers wanting a block of shares.—SMYTH v. REVENUE COMRS., [1931] I. She died within three years of the date of the gifts. The value of the securities at the date of her death was £453,212:—Held: the value of the securities for the purpose of estate duty was the value at the date of the donor's death, & not that at the date of the gifts—STRATHCONA, LORD v. INLAND REVENUE COMRS., [1929] S. b i. —— Secured on home & foreign assets—Foreign assets alone sufficient security.]—The estate of a deceased person consisted of property in N. S. W. & of property outside the State. Amongst other debts there was one of £32,279 which was secured by mtge. or charge over a part of his home assets &, also, over certain of his foreign assets which were valued at £33,427:—Held: the case fell within Stamp Duties Act, 1920, s. 109 (3), & in assessing death duty on the estate no allowance should be made for the debt or any part thereof.—SOLLAS v. STAMP DUTIES COMR. 161a. —— ——.]—A rentcharge of £50,000 per annum charged on L. settled estates was limited to the use of deft., the fourth Viscount P., for life with remainder to the use of his eldest son during his life, to commence from their respective successions to the title & to be paid without any deduction except for death duties, & a similar rentcharge was limited in remainder, in the event of any other issue of the fourth Viscount succeeding to the title, to the use of the sons of such eldest son & other sons of the fourth Viscount in tail male. Subject to such rentcharge, the L. settled estates were limited to the use of pltf. for life with remainder to the use of his eldest son for life with remainders over. By a deed poll dated Oct. 15, 1913, provision was made for the abatement of the £50,000 rentcharge in certain events. The third Viscount, who was tenant for life of the estates in question, had died in 1923, while nine of the sixteen half-yearly instalments of estate duty payable in respect of the death of the second Viscount, who had died in 1919, remained unpaid. One of the questions for the decision of the ct. at the original hearing of the summons (Re Portman (Viscount), No. 249, post) was as to what proportion of the balance remaining unpaid at the death of the third Viscount of the estate duty, which became assessable on the death of the second Viscount in respect of the L. estates, should be borne by the yearly rentcharge of £50,000, & it was admitted in argument that there was no difference in principle in respect of that unpaid balance between that duty & that which was assessable upon the death of the third Viscount. After judgment had been delivered & before the minutes had been finally drawn up, leave was given to withdraw the admission made in argument as aforesaid, & it was directed that the question with regard to the liability of the rentcharge in respect of the unpaid instalments of estate duty assessable on the death of the second Viscount should be argued :—Held : the effect of 1894 Act, s. 14 (1), was to throw the incidence of the duty ratably & in proper proportions upon all persons becoming beneficially interested in the property upon which the duty was constituted a first charge by force of sect. 9 (1) of the Act ; the rentcharge, or the abated rentcharge, must be dealt with, as regards these unpaid instalments, in the manner indicated in the original judgment ; & the order would be in the terms of the minutes prepared in accordance with that judgment.—Re PORTMAN (VISCOUNT) (No. 2), [1925] Ch. 294 ; 94 L. 209c. —— Incorporation of Form 8 of Statutory Will Forms, 1925.]—Testator by his will, after making specific & pecuniary bequests, gave to his wife absolutely any freehold or leasehold house belonging to him & in which he should be residing at his death. He declared that all legacies thereby given should be free of all death duties & devised & bequeathed all his residuary real & personal estate to his trustees, & declared that (inter alia) Form 8 of the Statutory Will Forms, 1925, should be incorporated in his will so far as it was applicable to his residuary estate. The only real estate testator possessed at the time of his death was a freehold house in which he was then residing. Questions arose : (a) whether having regard to Form 8, clause 4 (c), of the Statutory Will Forms, 1925, the estate duty payable in respect of testator's freehold house on his death should be borne by the testator's widow or by the residuary estate, & (b) whether upon the true construction of the will, the estate & succession duties payable by reason of the testator's death in respect of the freehold house were payable out of the residuary estate :—Held : (1) although the exor. was by reason of the provisions of Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 16, now accountable for estate duty on realty, the incidence of the duty remained unchanged & was still charged by virtue of the Finance Act, 1894 (c. 30), s. 9 (1), on the realty in respect of which it was paid. Form 8, clause 4 (c), therefore, had no application, & apart from the question of construction the estate duty on the freehold house must be borne by the widow ; (2) on the true construction of the will testator had used the word "legacies" not in its strict sense, but as including the gift of the house in which he was residing at his death, although that house was of freehold tenure.

PART II. SECT. 9, SUB-SECT. 1.—B. a i. ——.]—By his will testator directed that all his debts & funeral & testamentary expenses should be paid as conveniently as might be after his decease, & thereafter proceeded by his will to devise & bequeath all his real & personal property not otherwise dis- of :—Held : (1) estate duty was under the direction payable actually out of the residuary estate ; (2) in the event of the residuary estate being insufficient to pay the estate duty, the life interests were not liable for a portion of the deficiency, but the annuitants & specific devisees of real estate should jointly contribute to the deficiency.—CALDWELL, ETC. v. FLEMING, [1927] N. 209e. —— ——.]—Notwithstanding the provisions of Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), which abolish tenancies in common of land & direct such land to be held by certain persons as trustees for sale upon statutory trusts, the death duty to be paid on freehold land which just before the commencement of Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), was held in undivided shares, & in respect of which there have been no dealings since the commencement of that Act, is, even where the duty only became payable after the commencement of that Act, deemed to be "duty due upon an account of real property" within Finance Act, 1894 (c. 30), s. 6 (8), & under that sub-sect. as amended by Finance Act, 1896 (c. 28), s. 18, & Finance Act, 1919 (c. 32), s. 30, the duty may be paid by instalments extending over a period of eight years with interest at 4 per cent. per annum as therein provided.—A.-G. v. PUBLIC TRUSTEE & TUCK, [1929] 2 K. 227a. —— ——.]—By his will a testator who died on Nov. 3, 1915, directed that all legacies & annuities thereby given should be paid & enjoyed free of death duties, & the question arose whether the exemption from duties was limited to duties payable on the death of testator or extended to those payable in future in respect of settled legacies:—Held: the duties, other than the legacy duties from which the legatees were relieved, were those payable on the death of testator & not those accruing in the future.—Re LAIDLAW, WILKINSON v. LYDE, [1930] 2 Ch. 392; 99 L. 227b. —— ——.]—Testator by his will dated Feb. 24, 1930, after giving several pecuniary & specific legacies, directed by clause 6 that all the pecuniary legacies & specific bequests & devises given by his will "shall be free from all death duties which (whether presently or presumptively or prospectively payable) shall be paid out of any general personal estate."

He then directed his exors. to invest a sum of £5,000 upon trust to pay the income to his daughter L. during her life with provision for forfeiture in certain events & after her death or forfeiture to hold the investments in trust for her daughter A. absolutely. He devised & bequeathed his residuary real & personal estate to his exors. upon trust for sale & conversion & out of the proceeds (inter alia) to pay his testamentary expenses (including all estate duty leviable at his death in respect of his residuary estates). Testator died on Dec. 6, 1931. Questions arose whether under the terms of the will the estate duty which would become payable on the death of the daughter & the legacy duty which might become payable in the event of the forfeiture of her life interest would be payable out of the residuary estate or out of the settled legacy:—Held: as the words used in clause 6 were found in precedent books published prior to the passing of Finance Act, 1914, they could not be held to apply exclusively to the future estate duties imposed by that Act, the words of the will showed that the mind of testator was directed to the duties payable at his death, & did not provide a context which would justify a more extended construction being imposed upon clause 6, & the estate duties which would become payable on the death of the tenant for life upon the settled legacy would not be payable out of the residuary estate, but the legacy duty would be so payable.—Re HICKS, BACH v. COCKBURN, [1933] Ch. 335; 102 L. The rate at which duty was assessed was 6¼ per cent., & if the value of the settled property had not been included in the final balance, the rate would have been 4½ per cent. Within three years prior to his death testator disposed of a certain su by way of gift to his wife, & after his death that sum had been assessed for State death duty:—Held: the death duty payable in respect of the gift inter vivos fell within the words "all probate & estate duties" in the declaration in the will.—ASHBY v. HAYDEN (1931), 31 S. The question having been raised whether the duties payable on the deaths of testator's daughters under Finance Act, 1914 (c. 10), s. 14, were charged under or by virtue of clause 7 of the will on the shares bequeathed by that clause:—Held: what testator contemplated by clause 7 was an immediate process under which the shares were to be sold & applied in paying duties which were presently payable, & under which, after those duties had been paid, the residue of the shares or the proceeds were to be handed over to G.—Re FENWICK, LLOYD'S BANK, LTD. v. FENWICK, [1922] 2 Ch. 775; 92 L. 265a. Bequests to several charities successively—Intention to exonerate earlier charities.]—By his will dated 1911 a testator devised & bequeathed his residuary real & personal estate to his exors., the Public Trustee & another, upon trust for sale & conversion &, after payment of his debts & funeral & testamentary expenses, he desired the balance (called his residuary trust fund) to be placed with the Public Trustee & the income paid to his wife for life. Testator then directed that after his wife's death four capital sums amounting to £10,000, free of estate duty & settlement estate duty but not free of legacy duty, should be set apart & the respective income paid to certain life tenants respectively. By clause 9 testator directed that on the cesser of the respective life tenancies the respective capital sums should be paid to thirteen charities thereinafter named "in the order of priority in which the names appear in this my will as far as the money will go, no. 1 being first paid; no. 2 next & so on, that is to say:" Testator then enumerated thirteen consecutive charities, giving nos. 1 to 10 £500 apiece; no. 11, £1,000; & nos. 12 & 13 £2,000 apiece, thereby exhausting the £10,000. The residue, after providing for the settled £10,000 was given to a daughter. Testator died on June 11, 1914, before Finance Act, 1914 (c. 10), s. 14, abolishing settlement estate duty & the relief thereby conferred, was passed. The estate was cleared & the residuary trust fund paid to the Public Trustee, who paid the income to the wife till her death on July 1, 1928, & then set apart the £10,000 settled legacies. One of these was immediately distributable, without further payment of estate duty, owing to the life tenant having predeceased the wife; but on the cesser of subsequent life tenancies estate duty would be payable, & the Public Trustee therefore issued a summons to determine how it was to be borne, as between the successive charities:—Held: clause 9 conferred an absolute priority as between the successive charities, & was sufficient as between the earlier & the later charities to exempt the former from their primâ facie statutory liability to contribute to the estate duty under Finance Act, 1894 (c. 30), s. 8 (4).—Re LOMER, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. VICTORIA HOSPITAL FOR CHILDREN, [1929] 1 Ch. 731; 98 L. 265b. Devise with option to sell to specified person—Purchaser to pay annuities & road charges—No reference to death duties.]—Testator, by his will, devised land to P. subject to the payment of certain annuities, of road-making charges for which testator was liable, & of estate & other death duties, & subject also to the proviso that if within twenty-years of testator's death P. should desire to sell the land, he was to give the Governors of the N. Grammar School the option of purchasing the land at the price of £300 an acre, such offer to be subject to the payment by the Governors of the said annuities & road charges, & acceptance to be notified within three months. The land, of about 22 acres in area, was in fact worth £670 an acre at the date of the testator's death. In accordance with the condition P. offered it to the School Governors at £300 an acre, & the offer was duly accepted & the land sold & conveyed to the Governors for £6,688. The value of the land for the purposes of death duties was assessed at £14,720. On a summons being taken out to determine whether the Governors were liable to pay a rateable proportion of the estate & succession duties levied upon the value of the property :—Held : that the Governors having acquired the land, not under any disposition by testator, but by the voluntary act of P. in selling instead of retaining the property, took no benefit under testator's will, & they acquired the land expressly subject to annuities & road-making charges, but impliedly free from any charge for death duties.—Re COCKERILL, MACKANESS v. PERCIVAL, [1929] 2 Ch. 131 ; 98 L. By various appointments the tenant for life appointed the sum of £160,000 between his two younger sons & the issue of one of them. The tenant for life died in 1929 & the question arose whether succession duty was payable on his death in respect of this sum at the rate of 5 per cent. as on a succession from the tenant in tail or at the rate of 1 per cent. as on a succession from the tenant for life :—Held : the tenant in tail's succession had to the extent of this sum of £160,000 become vested during the lifetime of the tenant for life by " alienation " within Succession Duty Act, 1853 (c. 51), s. 15 ; & succession duty was therefore payable by virtue of that sect. at the same rate as if there had been no alienation, with the result that duty was payable at the rate of 1 per cent. only as on a succession from the tenant for life.—A.-G. v. DE TRAFFORD, [1934] 1 K. 694a. Resettlement by party with defeasible estate & party with contingent interest subject thereto.]—By the combined effect of a settlement & a will, E. T. T. D. in 1915 became entitled to certain real property absolutely, should he survive the Great War, &, if he failed so to survive, such property went to G. P. T. D. absolutely, subject only to an annuity of £1,200 to the widow of E. T. T. D. In 1917, E. T. T. D., being in want of money, agreed with G. P. T. D. that certain of these hereditaments should be settled, subject to certain prior charges, upon E. T. T. D. for life, after his death to secure an annuity of £1,200 to the surviving wife of E. T. T. D., subject thereto to secure portions for the younger children of E. T. T D., subject thereto for the first & other sons of E. T. T. D. successively in tail male with remainder to G. P. T. D. for life & then to his sons successively in tail male. In consideration of the settlement, G. P. T. D. was to release his contingent interest in other hereditaments subject to the will. A settlement in pursuance of the agreement of 1917 was executed in 1921, the grantors being both E. T. T. D. & G. P. T. D., & upon the death of E. T. T. D. in 1933, without sons, the property passed to T. T. D., the eldest son of G. P. T. D., under the last limitation, subject to the annuity for the widow & portions for the daughter of E. T. T. D. The question then arose whether, for the purposes of the payment of succession duty, E. T. T. D. was the sole predecessor of the beneficiaries or whether E. T. T. D. & G. P. T. D. were joint predecessors :—Held : for the purposes of this case the settlement of 1921 must be treated as coming into operation in 1917. As T. T. D. then became entitled to a vested estate in tail male in remainder, & as that interest could be created only by E. T. T. D. & G. P. T. D. acting together, E. T. T. D. & G. P. T. n iii. —— ——.]—The Crown, in the right of the province of Quebec, by its action claimed the sum of $15,775.95, as representing succession duties alleged to be due by resp., as sole trustee & exor. of the estate of the late S. who died in New York in 1929 & was at the time of his death domiciled in the province of Ontario. Amongst the assets of his estate were certain bonds or debentures of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Co. & the Canadian National Railway Co., respectively, guaranteed by the Govt. of Canada. These bonds or debentures, registered in Montreal, were at the time of S.'s death in the possession of the latter in Toronto. Succession duties were paid to the Govt. of the province of Ontario; but the Govt. of the province of Quebec also claimed succession duties on the ground that these bonds or debentures were to be considered for succession duty purposes as property situate in the province of Quebec according to the definition of the word "property" in sect. 5 of Succession Duties Act, because the two cos. debtors had their head offices at Montreal & the bonds & debentures were registered & transferable on the cos.' registers in that city :—Held : those bonds or debentures had not, in the relevant sense, a local situation within the province of Quebec, &, therefore, were not subject to the payment of succession duties in that province. Debentures authorised by the Parliament of Canada & charged by statute upon the Consolidated Revenue Fund have the character of specialties. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Co. has statutory powers to create bonds having the character of specialties. The bonds in this case must, as respects the obligation of the railway co., be considered specialties, although the head office of the co. is fixed by statute in Quebec; &, in view of the statute law applicable to the case, it must be held such a specialty has its situs in Ontario. Neither, for the reasons fully stated in the judgment, have the bonds of the Canadian National Railway Co. in question in this case a situs in Quebec. —R. v. NATIONAL TRUST CO., [1933] S. C. n iv. —— ——.]—The vendor under an agreement for the sale of land in Sask. died domiciled in Alta. At his death there was a large amount still payable under the agreement. The agreement was made in Sask. & described the parties as both resident at S. in that province; & the purchaser continued to live there. It also provided that the money payments as well as the deliveries of grain thereunder were to be made in Sask. & that it should for all purposes be construed according to the laws of Sask. All the beneficiaries of the estate were domiciled elsewhere than in Alta. The agreement was executed in duplicate under seal. Upon the vendor's death his copy was found in his safety deposit box in Edmonton & was there reduced into the possession of the administrator of his estate; the purchaser's copy was then & had at all material times been in the possession of the purchaser within Sask. The province of Alta. contended that the debt due under the agreement was subject to succession duties under Succession Duty Act, 1934 (Alta.) :—Held : the rule that the situs of a specialty debt is the place where it is found in the creditor's possession at his death was not affected by the fact that the purchaser's copy of the duplicate agreement was in the latter's possession in Sask. Therefore, Alta. had the right to impose the tax. All the cases dealing with the situs of specialty debts in which the test put is where is the specialty "found," or where is it "conspicuous," or where does it happen "to be," relate as a matter of course to the specialty as the property of the creditor in his possession or in some place where he has placed it.—SCHMIDT v. ALBERTA PROVINCIAL TREASURER & A.-G. "until further notice," & which stated : "This receipt is negotiable." The receipt was found among B.'s possessions in Minneapolis upon his death there. Under Succession Duty Act (Que.), 1909, art. 1376, duty was imposed upon "property actually situate within the province, whether the transmission takes place within or without the province" :—Held : as the ownership of the shares could be effectively dealt with only in Nova Scotia, they were not property situate in Quebec, & the claim could not be maintained. —BRASSARD v. SMITH, [1925] A. He also devised & bequeathed the residue of his real & personal estate to his trustees upon trust, after payment of his debts, funeral & testamentary & trust expenses & legacy, succession & other duties, to divide the same into thirty-four equal parts, & to stand possessed of one of such equal parts in trust for each of thirty-four residuary legatees named therein. A question arose whether the succession duty payable on the death of S. would be payable out of the residuary estate or out of the property so devised & by the person or persons entitled thereto upon her death:—Held: upon the true construction of the will the words "free of all duties" applied only to the succession duty presently payable on the death of testator, & did not extend to the succession duty payable on the death of S.—Re TRIMBLE, WILSON v. TURTON, [1931] 1 Ch. 369; 100 L. This second action was dismissed in the District Ct. on the ground of res judicata, & against that decision the present applt. appealed. The Supreme Ct. of Ceylon allowed resp.'s appeal in the first action, & dismissed the present applt.'s appeal in the second action. Subsequently D. was advised by his solr. that a will which he knew his father had made, & which had been burned by his father's directions, was not legally revoked, & D. instituted an action to revoke the grant of letters of administration de bonis non to himself, & to prove the will in solemn form :—Held : being an originating summons by a next-of-kin for administration against D. as administrator, it was not open to D. to challenge in those proceedings the fact that he was an administrator, & D. was not estopped by the above orders.—DOOLEY v. DOOLEY, [1927] I. 222a. ——.]—In July & Aug. 1920, the shareholders of a co. carrying on the business of whiskey distilling passed resolutions for its voluntary winding up. With a view to selling the distillery as a going concern the liquidator continued distilling up to Mar. 31, 1921, but not after, & pending the sale of the business he sold the co.'s stocks of whiskey as opportunity offered. Such sales of whiskey extended over a period of more than two years. An assessment to income tax was made upon the co. for the year 1921–22 in respect of the profits of its business on the footing that the liquidator was carrying on the trade in that year. This assessment was discharged by the Special Comrs. on appeal on the ground that an assessment on the co. for the preceding year had been discharged by the recorder on appeal to him from the determination of the Special Comrs., & that they were bound to follow his decision:—Held: the Special Comrs. were not bound by the decision of the recorder regarding the 1920–21 appeal to discharge the 1921–22 assessment. — EDWARDS v. "OLD BUSHMILLS" DISTILLERY CO., LTD. 229a. Judgment in action on bond—Subsequent action on another bond of same series.]—Defts. issued on Aug. 1, 1884, 6,000 First Mtge. Gold Bonds of like amount, tenor & date. The bonds were secured by a mtge. trust deed & all became due on Aug. 1, 1934. The bonds stated that on that date defts. for value received promised "to pay to the bearer or registered holder thereof £100 sterling gold coin of Great Britain of the present standard of weight & fineness at its agency in London, England, with interest thereon" at 5 per cent. per annum payable in London or at the holder's option at deft.'s office in New Brunswick. The interest coupon stated that the co. would pay the bearer £2 10*s.* sterling at its agency in London, England, or at its office in New Brunswick on Aug. 1, 1934. Pltfs., a holder of 992 such bonds, claimed in respect of each bond the sum in sterling calculated on Aug. 1, 1934, then representing the gold value of £100 on Aug. 1, 1884:—Held: pltfs. were not entitled to be paid on such gold basis, but only £100 sterling; because upon the true construction of the bond, & the question was purely one of construction, the contract was not one for a payment of gold in specie, but one for the repayment of £100 sterling. The interest was similarly payable in sterling.

In an action between the same parties upon one of the said bonds pltfs. obtained judgment on Nov. 7, 1934, upon the gold basis now claimed, the present defts. not having put in any defence to that action. The statement of claim in that action did not allege that all the bonds were identical in their terms:—Held: there was no estoppel by record, because each bond was a distinct contract &, further, the record of the previous action did not show that all the bonds were in the same terms.—BRITISH & FRENCH TRUST CORPN. v. NEW BRUNSWICK RY. 253a. Judgment relating to right of set-off—Claim to set off contingent liability under guarantee—Subsequent application as to disposition of dividend—After payment under guarantee.]—F., having guaranteed advances by certain banks to the T. Assocn., in which he was interested, subsequently executed two deeds of arrangement in favour of his creditors. The Assocn. having gone into liquidation, the liquidator lodged a proof against F.'s estate in respect of sums due by F. to the Assocn. The trustee of F.'s estate rejected the proof

Assocn. for which F. had given his personal guarantee. At that time, although one or more of the banks had proved against F.'s estate under the guarantees, nothing had been paid to any of them. The Assocn. was admitted to prove against F.'s estate for a very large sum, & the trustee declared an interim dividend of 1*s.* in the pound. The banks were paid the dividend in respect of their admitted proofs, which also amounted in the aggregate to a considerable sum. The sums constituting the amount of the banks' proofs represented the amount of the Assocn.'s debt which had been guaranteed by F. The question arose whether the trustee of F.'s estate was under the circumstances entitled to pay to the liquidation of the Assocn. the sum representing the interim dividend declared in respect of the admitted proof. The matter came before the ct. by way of motion on behalf of the trustee, the question being whether this declared dividend was properly payable to the liquidator of the Assocn. or the trustee was entitled to withhold payment of all or any part thereof. On behalf of the Assocn. it was urged that the previous proceedings reported Re Fenton, [1931] 1 Ch. 85, had concluded the matter, that the question was now res judicata, & that, notwithstanding the payment to the banks of the amount of the dividend since that decision, the liquidator of the Assocn. was entitled to the full dividend in respect of the Assocn.'s admitted proof :—Held : the question raised by the motion had not been determined by the Ct. of Appeal in the previous proceedings. —Re FENTON (NO. 2), Ex p. FENTON TEXTILE ASSOCN., LTD., [1932] 1 Ch. 178; 146 L. In that action the patent had been held to be valid. It was contended by deft. that the ct. was bound by the prior decision only as to construction of the specification & not as to subject-matter, that the additional documents relied on showed features claimed in the specification not disclosed by G. or V., & that, owing to the issue of infringement not having been contested it had been unnecessary for the ct. to define the ambit of the claims :—Held : the ct. was not strictly bound by a prior decision as to anticipation, & it was open to deft. to prove anticipation by documents not before the ct. in the 296a. —— Action for arrears of maintenance—Agreement to release—Judgment by consent—No evidence that consent based on agreement.]—Pltf. & deft. were divorced in 1925, & an interim order for maintenance was made on Dec. 21, 1925, for payment to pltf. of £3 10*s.* a week. In Feb. 1927, an agreement was entered into whereby deft. was to continue to pay £182 per annum but the payments were to be quarterly. The agreement also provided inter alia, that each party should give to the other full discharge of all sums claimed & that all actions, claims, demands at law & otherwise were withdrawn by consent. Payment fell into arrears & pltf. brought an action in the Mayor's Ct. for the amount then owing. The defence was withdrawn & judgment consented to. Payments again fell into arrears & the present action was brought in respect of them. Deft. contended that, as the agreement provided for the payment of a sum which deft. was already liable to pay, it was void for want of consideration. Pltf. replied that deft. was estopped from relying on this defence by th proceedings in the Mayor's Ct. which arose out of a breach of the same agreement:—Held: (1) there was no estoppel inasmuch as there was no evidence that judgment in the Mayor's Ct. was based on the agreement. It might have been consented on because the money was in any event due under the maintenance order; (2) the settlement of all accounts & claims was good consideration for the agreement & pltf. was entitled to succeed.—MANN v. MANN, [1936] 1 All E. 296b. Admission.]—Under a will the annual income from an estate in Australia was divisible by the trustees between testator's daughters. The trustees objected to an assessment for the financial year 1918–1919 under Land Tax Assessment Act, 1910–1916, of Australia; they claimed under sect. 38 (7) of the Act a deduction of £5,000 in respect of the share of each daughter, & a case was stated for the opinion of the Full Ct. of the High Ct. upon the questions: (1) whether the shares of the joint owners, or of any & which of them, in the land were original shares within sect. 38; (2) how many deductions of £5,000 resp. should make. The Full Ct. answered these questions as follows: (1) the shares of the six children surviving at the date of the assessment; (2) six. Upon the assessment for 1919–1920 the comr. allowed only one deduction of £5,000, contending that the beneficiaries were not joint owners within the Act. Upon a case stated the Full Ct. upheld that view, & held that the comr. was not estopped by the previous decision:—Held: the comr. was estopped, since although in the previous litigation no express decision had been given whether the beneficiaries were joint owners, it being assumed & admitted that they were, the matter so admitted was fundamental to the decision then given.—HOYSTEAD v. TAXATION COMR., [1926] A. 315a. —— Fraud—Fraud alleged in letter to registrar in previous proceedings.]—Resp. co. took proceedings to recover certain instalments, amounting to about £6, due under a hire-purchase agreement. In the ordinary course, & under County Cts. (Amendment) Act, 1934 (c. 17), s. 19, the case came before the registrar. Resp. co. was represented & was admittedly a consenting party; applt. was not represented, but he wrote to the registrar alleging that the contract had been obtained by fraud. The registrar gave judgment for resp. co. Subsequently resp. co. started a second action to recover further amounts due under the same contract. Applt. counterclaimed for cancellation of the contract on the ground that it had been obtained by fraud. The county ct. judge found that the contract had been obtained by fraud, but he held that applt. was estopped from raising this defence, as the registrar had already decided this point against him. On appeal applt. contended that the registrar had had no jurisdiction to hear the case, as applt. had not applied to the registrar to hear the case:—Held: applt.'s letter to the registrar amounted to an application to the registrar to hear the case, & applt. could not therefore raise the question of fraud which was res judicata.—RENTIT, LTD. v. DUFFIELD, [1937] 3 All E. caustic soda, & before the assignment of the business to pltfs. the firm had bought from defts., who knew the purpose for which it was required, a supply of caustic soda sufficient to last for three years. This caustic soda turned out to be of inferior quality, & in consequence the firm, using it without knowledge of its defects, suffered a loss in their business before the date of the assignment to pltfs. After the assignment pltfs., not knowing that the loss had been caused by the fact that the caustic soda was defective, continued to use it in the business, & suffered further loss in consequence. Ultimately, when the loss had been traced to the caustic soda, pltfs. brought an action against defts. for damages in respect of the loss suffered by the firm before the assignment, & in that action obtained judgment for a sum of £292 10*s.* 3*d.* Subsequently they brought this action to recover damages from defts. in respect of the loss which they had themselves suffered by using the remainder of the caustic soda after they had taken over the business. As against her the matter is res judicata. But if it appear that she has transferred the moneys to a person with knowledge of the proceedings against her action will lie against the transferee as constructive trustee. Pltf. obtained against the first deft. a married woman judgment for payment out of her separate estate of the sum in dispute & costs. Evidence disclosed that the first deft. had parted with the whole of the sum, having transferred most of it to her sister, the second deft., who was not a party to the proceedings but knew of them at the time. Execution in respect of the judgment thus proving useless pltf. now brought this action alleging that the first deft. had paid the money to the second deft. in order to defeat any judgment for pltf., & that the second deft. received the money as constructive trustee :—Held : in regard to the first deft. the matter was res judicata, as pltf. had already obtained judgment against her separate estate & therefore could not now on the same facts obtain against her another form of judgment for payment of the moneys into ct.—GREEN v. WEATHERILL, [1929] 2 Ch. 213 ; 98 L. 585a. Nuisance—Unsatisfied judgment against one tortfeasor—Action against another tortfeasor.] —In 1931, the owners & occupiers of a farm on the banks of a river brought an action against a limited co. (hereinafter called the selling co.), manufacturers of artificial silk, for polluting the stream & causing damage & injury to the farm & to their business as farmers from 1925 to May, 1928. The selling co. in their defence pleaded that in Mar. 1928, they sold the goodwill of their business & all their property to a purchasing co. as from Feb. 1, 1928, & that it was agreed between them & the purchasing co. that the latter should satisfy & discharge all liabilities & obligations of the selling co. & indemnify them against all actions & claims in respect thereof; that in Sept. 1928, the same pltfs. had brought an action against the purchasing co. in respect of the same damage & injury from May, 1928, & that it was then agreed between pltfs. & the purchasing co. that, for the purpose of calculating the amount of damages suffered by pltfs., the damages caused by the selling co. should be added to those caused by the purchasing co.; that in Oct. 1929, pltfs. recovered judgment whereby an inquiry was directed what damages pltfs. had sustained through the pollution of the river by the purchasing co. or their predecessors in title, the selling co. that these damages were assessed at £265, & that the judgment remained in force. Sub sequently an order was made for the compulsory winding-up of the purchasing co. & the judgment was wholly unsatisfied :— Held : the facts pleaded in the defence

599a. —— —— —— What amounts to conviction.]—To an action for an assault deft. pleaded that, before action brought, pltf. caused deft. to be summoned before a magistrate to answer a complaint in respect of the assault, & that the magistrate " adjudged & determined the said complaint & charge, & then ordered deft. then to pay, & then convicted him, deft., in the costs as well of the said complaint & charge as of the hearing thereof, but did not further order or convict deft." The magistrate had decided only that deft. should enter into recognisances to keep the peace & pay the costs thereof, & such costs only had been paid. No record of a conviction was produced, but the magistrate's clerk stated that it was not the practice to draw up a formal conviction in such cases :—Held : the plea was no bar to the action within Offences Against the Person Act, 1861 (c. 100), s. 45, & taking it as it stood it was not proved.—HARTLEY v. HINDMARSH (1866), L. After the case had been at hearing before the judge of Assize for a short time, deft. admitted the assault & the reasonableness of the damages awarded, & raised a new defence which had not been available to him in the county ct. Deft. relied upon Offences Against the Person Act, 1861, c. 100, s. 43, & it was contended on his behalf that deft.'s conviction coupled with the payment of the penalty operated as a release from " all further or other proceedings," including the re-hearing of the civil bill on appeal :—Held : the appeal did not constitute " further or other proceedings " within Offences Against the Person Act, 1861, s. 45.—MAGEE v. STOREY, [1929] N. 813a. Existence of shares.]—By a deed of arantee for the repayment of a loan of £250,000 & interest, which recited that the lenders had at the request of the guarantors advanced to the borrowers £250,000 upon security of a charge on certain shares, the guarantors covenanted, in the event of the borrowers failing to make the repayments provided for, forthwith to repay to the lenders the said sum of £250,000 with interest at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum. The deed further provided that whatever the position between the lenders & the borrowers, the guarantors should be liable for all moneys due as principal debtors & they were not to be released from liability by reason of time being given by the lenders or by their taking no steps to protect their securities. The shares above mentioned were at no time secured & had not in fact been issued. Upon default in repayment of part of the loan the liquidator of the guarantors rejected the proof by the liquidators of the lenders, contending that the security of the charge on the shares was a condition precedent to the guarantee :—Held : (1) upon a proper construction of the deed of guarantee, the contention of the liquidator of the guarantors was correct, & the guarantors were not bound by the guarantee. The existence of the shares was the basis of the contract of guarantee & this was not affected by the clause making the guarantors liable as principal debtors ; (2) the guarantors were not bound by the recital in the deed & were not estopped from setting up the facts relating to the shares.—Re PARENT TRUST & FINANCE CO., LTD., [1936] 3 All E. Pltf., who had particular charge of the transaction, said that he had forgotten the matter. Deft. twice paid interest to M. on his mtge., they both thinking that it was in effect & that pltfs.' mtge. had been satisfied :—Held : pltfs. were not entitled to enforce their mtge., since they had put in the power of the wrongdoer to commit the wrong, & because they were estopped by the release & by their conduct from asserting that their mortgage had not been paid.—THOM & LAMONT v. WALKER, [1930] 3 W. 853 i. Operation of rule—Money paid to solicitor producing executed deed—No intention that money should be paid over to party to deed.]—A solr. obtained from pltf., his client, a cheque for $1,100, representing that he would invest it upon the security of a mtge. upon land which had been mortgaged to his sister, whose mtge. would be paid off by the $1,100. In the receipt given to pltf. by the solr. it was stated that the cheque was given to him "re mtge. 10 R. St.", which was a brief description of land upon which defts. had made a mtge. to the solr.'s father's exors. The solr. notified defts. that the exors. desired payment of this mtge., & that he had a client who would advance the money necessary to pay it off. A mtge. by defts. to pltf. upon this land was thereupon prepared by the solr. & executed by defts. in Mar. 1923. They made payments from time to time upon the mtge. by cheque to the solr., who paid off the mtge. held by the exors., & consequently did not obtain a discharge of it. The $1,100 was misappropriated by the solr., who absconded in 1926. It was intended that the mtge. moneys should be paid to the exors. & not to the mtgors., & this pltf. understood. This action was brought to enforce the mtge., & pltf. in her evidence at the trial stated that the solr. showed her the mtge. in Mar. 1923:—Held: the facts that the mtgor. delivered the mtge. to the solr. & that he showed it to pltf. did not amount to a representation that the moneys advanced by pltf. had been paid to the holders of the first mtge., & that it had been discharged, & it could not be said that the mtgors. were estopped from disputing the fact that the moneys had been advanced to them.—MURRAY v. CROSSLAND, [1929] 4 D. 1019 i. General rule.]—The reason for precluding a party from relying upon an actual state of affairs as the foundation of his rights lies in the injustice of permitting him to depart from some contrary assumption if another party has based his conduct upon it. The injustice of allowing him to disregard the assumption must arise from the circumstances attending its adoption by the other party. There are well recognised grounds for compelling adherence to such an assumption. One such ground is that the assumption has been made because a belief in its correctness has been induced by the representation or the conduct of the party seeking to depart from it. But what makes it unjust to permit the departure from an assumption so induced is that, were it permitted, the party so induced would through making the assumption find himself in a position occasioning material detriment to himself. Without this element there is no estoppel. It must appear that upon the faith of his belief by act or omission he has placed himself in a position which, if his belief proved incorrect, would be productive of loss.—NEWBON v. CITY MUTUAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY, LTD. 1054a. Construction of agreement.]—If a person authorises or permits another to make a representation intended to be acted upon & it is acted upon, that person cannot afterwards be heard to say that the representation is not true. This applies when the representation is as to the legal effect of a document if there is no qualification in the representation suggesting that the document & not its effect as represented is to govern the relations of the parties. In a prospectus issued by deft. co. there was a clause referring to an agreement with that co. & purporting to set out its effect. Resps. built a house & applt. received a bonus in respect of it. It was a statement of what the Improvement Trust was going to do with regard to the land, which was described to be on the boundary of the plots sold, & did not confer any title on the purchasers of the plots sold, either by express grant or by implication. of the alleged estoppel were that in an earlier suit in this ct. by the former husband of the woman for divorce from her on the ground of her adultery with the present petitioner, petitioner as co-resp. in that suit had expressly adopted a plea of the woman denying the validity of the Scotch marriage, & further that in certain proceedings then taken by the woman in the Scotch ct. seeking a declaration that she & petitioner were husband & wife & praying that the former husband of the woman should be " put to silence in respect of false & calumnious allegations by him that he was married " to the woman, the petitioner had not only been a party to those proceedings as " curator & administrator " of the woman & " for his own interest in the premises " but had also been a party to the settlement of them, resulting in the former husband of the woman admitting that there had been no legal marriage in Scotland between him & the woman & withdrawing his suit & subsequently marrying another woman in England :—Held : none of the requirements for an estoppel had been fulfilled. Although petitioner had adopted the plea by the woman denying the validity of the Scotch marriage he had not done so with intention to mislead the woman, whose knowledge of the facts was greater than his own. Both parties were simultaneously making the same statement for a common purpose, & neither could be estopped as against the other by the making of it. Finally, in the proceedings taken by her in the Scotch ct. the woman relied upon her own knowledge of the facts as to the alleged Scotch marriage in which the petitioner had no part, & if she had acted to her own detriment she did not do so on the faith of any statement by the petitioner.

They conveyed the land to pltfs.' predecessors by a deed which contained an exception & reservation of all mines & veins of coal in or under the land. Defts. & their predecessors worked the coal mines under the land & made an underground road which was not confined to the seams of coal, but was cut also through the adjacent strata. Along this road they carried coal obtained from mines beyond the limits of the land conveyed to pltfs.' predecessors. Defts. & their predecessors had for some years paid rent to do so under a licence from pltfs. :—Held : (1) by virtue of the exception, the property in the strata below the surface remained in defts. sufficiently to entitle them to construct roads therein & use them in any way they pleased ; (2) the payment being voluntary & made under a supposed legal liability created in law no obligation at all, & defts. were not thereby estopped from setting up their title under the conveyance.—BATTEN POOLL v. KENNEDY, [1907] 1 Ch. 256 ; 76 L. Deft. did not reply to the letter, & the railway was made across his land without further communication with him. A year or two afterwards pltf. & deft. had an interview, but did not agree as to the price to be paid for the land, & three or four years after the railway was made deft. brought his ejectment, whereupon pltf. filed his bill for an injunction, charging acquiescence. The ct., on motion, restrained the action, upon pltf. giving judgment in the ejectment, & paying a sum into ct. not less than the amount of the utmost valuation of the land.—POWELL v. THOMAS (1848), 6 Hare, 300; 67 E. An alternative claim for judgment against M. was dismissed. The exors. appealed :—Held : the evidence did not support the finding of estoppel, & since it had been properly found that there was no actual contract between the exors. & M. authorising him to act as their agent or manager of the hotel, the appeal must be allowed; & since there was no appeal or cross-appeal against the dismissal of the action as against M. the ct. could make no order respecting it.—WILSON v. WILLOUGHBY, [1934] 3 W. After some months the son arranged with a teller employed by the bank to honour cheques on his signature alone. Some time later this arrangement came to the notice of the applt., but he took no step to stop the practice & made no communication to the bank & in one instance indorsed negotiable instruments so drawn. The practice continued. 1472a. ——.]—In 1925, a certain piece of land, known as B. Lodge, was sold to J. & M. In the conveyance a quantity of timber trees, saplings, etc., was excepted out of the sale by the vendors, who reserved to themselves the right to cut & remove them before Oct. 11, 1927. In 1926 pltf. purchased the timber trees, etc., & proceeded to cut & remove them. A large amount of the cut timber was, however, left on the land after Oct. 11, 1927, & in these circumstances J. & M. stated that pltf. had lost his title thereto & forfeited his right to remove it, & they claimed it as their property. As the result of an action in 1930 against J. & M. it was held that the property in the timber remained in pltf. after Oct. 11, 1927, & a certain sum by way of damages for conversion against J. & M. was at the instance of the judge agreed between all parties to the proceedings & awarded pltf. In the meanwhile J & M. purported to sell the cut timber to the present defts.

Pltf., who had taken no steps to enforce the order which he had obtained against J. & M., gave notice on June 10, 1930, to defts. that the sale by J. & M. to them was ineffective, as J. & M. had no title to the timber, & requesting the return of the timber to him. Defts. having refused & repudiated liability, pltf. commenced an action, & by his statement of claim asked for a sum by way of damages for conversion; the conversion relied on being the refusal by deft. co. to return the timber in compliance with the notice of June 10, 1930 :—Held : no special circumstances existed sufficient to constitute any confirmation by pltf. of any title to the timber in J. & M., nor did pltf. by accepting judgment in the form he did against J. & M. confer any title on them or deft. co. by estoppel.—ELLIS v. STENNING (JOHN) & SON, [1932] 2 Ch. 81; 101 L. 1477a. Money paid on forged cheque—Failure to inform bank of forgery.]—Pltf. had an account with deft. bank, & his wife forged his signature on cheques & thereby drew out all the money left in the account, & she lent it to her sister. Pltf., on discovering the facts, did not at once inform the bank, but about nine months later, when his wife told him that she wanted more money for her sister, he stated his intention of going to the bank, & that night his wife committed suicide. Pltf. then went to the bank & told the manager about the forged cheques. In an action by pltf., claiming to be credited by deft. bank with the amount of the forged cheques, the bank pleaded (a) adoption & ratification, & (b) that pltf. was estopped by his silence from alleging that the signatures were forgeries. The tribunal of first instance found that the forged cheques were honoured through the carelessness of the bank officials. There was no evidence that pltf. had ever adopted the forged cheques as his own :—Held : ratification had no applicability to a forged signature, but pltf. was estopped from alleging the forgeries because his silence until after his wife's death had caused the bank to lose their right of action against the forger, & therefore the action failed.—GREENWOOD v. MARTINS BANK, LTD., [1933] A. 80a. Procedure by judgment summons.]—In an action by pltf. against an unincorporated body & seventeen named persons, described as its committee, in which pltf. claimed damages for libel, judgment was given in the High Ct. for deft. with costs. On a bkpcy. notice founded on that judgment not being complied with, defts. presented a petition in bkpcy.; but this petition was dismissed by the registrar as being wrong in form, on the ground (inter alia) that the petition was by an agent on behalf of an unincorporated assocn. & others, whereas such an assocn. cannot sue or be sued, either in its own name or by a purported agent. Subsequently, defts. took out a judgment summons in the county ct., & the county ct. judge ordered pltf. to pay by instalments the sum due under the judgment of the High Ct., together with the costs of the summons :—Held : (1) as procedure by judgment summons is a mode of enforcing a judgment & directly in connection with the action, as distinguished from a bkpcy. petition, which is not, the county ct. judge had jurisdiction to make the order :—Held : (2) the death of one of the successful defts. since the judgment did not render it necessary for the survivors to obtain the leave of the ct. before they could enforce the judgment.—BUNDY v. MOTOR CAB OWNER DRIVERS' ASSOCIATION (1930), 143 L. There is no doubt an inherent power in the ct. in exceptional cases to make an order nunc pro tunc, e.g., where an officer of the ct. has frustrated an application to renew. An execution, by statutory provision carried into the Rules, has force for a fixed period. At the end of that period, unless previously renewed, it is not in force, & however meritorious it may appear to overlook a slip or omission of pltf. in renewing within the time, there is no provision warranting that procedure.—JOHNSTON v. DIMOND, [1934] 3 W. 366a. Payment of irrevocable sum—Title of plaintiff not proved—Should not be ordered.]—Pltf. was the widow of a man employed by deft. co. as a derricker. The deceased had left the barge on which he was employed & volunteered to act temporarily as tipper on a second barge in order to relieve a fellow-workman. The fellow-workman was in fact a director of the co., but at the time he was acting merely as a foreman over the job, & was not there as representing the board of directors. While engaged as a tipper in these circumstances he stumbled & fell into the hold, sustaining minor injuries. He was removed to hospital & given an anæsthetic under which he collapsed & died. The post-mortem examination showed that he had a diseased heart, but neither the history of the man's activities nor the use of a stethoscope did or would have disclosed the man's condition. At the trial it was held that the death was due to the negligence of defts., who were ordered to pay to pltf. £785, of which sum £300 was not to be recoverable in any event. On appeal :—Held : (1) on the facts there was no negligence on the part of the defts. ; (2) the fact that the fellow-worker was a member of the board of directors did not in a case where he was in fact acting as a foreman bar the defence of common employment ; (3) on the work upon which the deceased was engaged at the time he was merely a volunteer & the defence of volenti non fit injuria applied ; (4) the administration of the anæsthetic was not a wrongful act intervening between the accident & the death, & could not be relied on as a case of novus actus intervenions ; (5) where there is an appealable matter, the ct. should not, as a condition of granting a stay of execution, order to be paid to pltf. & to be irrecoverable in any event any sum to which it is possible that it may ultimately be decided that pltf. has no title.—BLOOR v. LIVERPOOL DERRICKING & CARRYING CO., LTD., [1936] 3 All E. 1224a. Failure to remove goods—Liability to execution creditor—Measure of damages.]—Pltf. recovered judgment against C. for a certain sum, the order providing for payment by instalments & providing that, in the case of default in payment of any instalment, execution might issue for the whole debt & costs remaining unpaid. C. defaulted in the payment of one instalment & pltf. immediately caused an execution to be levied upon C.'s business premises. The bailiff, by an assistant, went into possession & seized certain furniture. C. paid the amount of an instalment into ct. & the amount then owing, together with certain fees, was £41 19*s.* 8*d.* C. urged the assistant bailiff not to remove the furniture, some of which C. had agreed to sell. L., a friend of C., said there was an application being made to the ct. to stay the execution & that he was ready to pay the money into ct. as a deposit pending the application. The assistant bailiff accepted this arrangement & gave a receipt for the £41 19*s.* 8*d.*, stated to be "received of C. on account of the debt, etc.," with a note at the foot "paid by L. as deposit pending application." Upon the application being made it was ordered that, upon C. undertaking to discharge the balance of the debt & costs by regular instalments & paying the costs of the execution, the warrant of execution should be set aside & the £41 19*s.* 8*d.* returned to L., but in default of the payment by C. of the costs of the execution the £41 19*s.* 8*d.* was to remain in ct. to attend the further order of the ct. Pltf. appealed to the Ct. of Appeal. The appeal was allowed & a new trial ordered to determine whether L. paid the money as agent for C. or otherwise. The county ct. judge's order was held to be irregular, for, if L. paid as such agent, the debt was discharged & the execution was at an end, & no further order could be made with regard to it, & if he was not an agent no order could be made in respect of the sum paid as a deposit, as L. was not a party to the action. Further, the county ct. judge had jurisdiction only to stay the execution & not to set it aside. L. was then joined as a party & at the new trial the judge held that the payment by L. gave pltf. no right to the money, & being satisfied that C. was unable to discharge the instalments due under the judgment he ordered the execution to be suspended upon the terms of a new order for payment by instalments. Pltf. was ordered to pay L.'s costs of that application, & C.'s costs of both applications, such costs to be set off against the costs payable by C. to pltf. under the order of the Ct. of Appeal. C. failed to make any payment under the new order for instalments & pltf. thereupon claimed from the bailiff, as damages suffered by reason of the assistant bailiff's breach of his duty to remove the furniture seized under the execution, the amount of his judgment debt, L.'s costs, C.'s costs, his own costs &

Subsequently the A. Co. recovered a judgment against S., & registered execution in usual form against his land. S., after such registration, assigned his whole equitable interest in such land to deft. T. The legal title during this time remained in pltf. In an action by pltf. under the contract, the A. Co. claimed a right to intervene as having an interest in the land under their writ of execution :—Held : having regard to the provisions of the Land Titles Act, it was evidently the intention of the Legislature that writs of execution should bind only the interests of registered owners of land, & the execution did not bind the equitable interest of deft. 2059a. Judgment by default—Against dissolved foreign corporation.]—Before the Bolshevik Revolution of Oct. 1917, in Russia the M. Bank in London owed a Russian Bank a large sum of money. At the same time the Russian Bank was largely indebted to L. Brothers, also bankers in London. Between Oct. 1917, & Aug. 3, 1921, numerous decrees of the Govt. of Russia & orders of various Departments thereof were made & published purporting to nationalise or liquidate all banking corpns. in Russia, including the Russian Bank above mentioned. In Oct. 1930, L. Brothers, having filed an affidavit stating that the Russian Bank was a co. registered & domiciled in Russia, obtained leave under R. S. C., Ord. 9, r. 2, to issue a writ against the Russian Bank & to serve notice of the writ by sending it by registered post to the former address of the Bank in Moscow. Having then signed judgment in default of appearance against the Russian Bank, L. Brothers obtained a garnishee order nisi against the M. Bank attaching all debts due from the M. Bank to the Russian Bank, & an issue was subsequently directed to be tried, whether the M. Bank was indebted to the Russian Bank to any & what extent. On the evidence of Russian lawyers who had practised in Russia since the Revolution :—Held : the Russian Bank had ceased to exist in & before Oct. 1930, & consequently the writ, the judgment & the garnishee proceedings, were null & void & must be set aside.—LAZARD BROS. & CO. v. MIDLAND BANK, LTD., [1933] A. Sect. 263 of County Courts Act, R. S. The judge refused to do so. Witnesses were then called for the defence. The jury disagreed. Subsequently an application was made to the judge to enter judgment for defts. upon the above ground & also upon the ground that upon all the evidence in the case the jury could not reasonably have found a verdict for pltf. The judge having refused to enter judgment for defts. :—Held : (1) a judge at the trial had power to enter judgment for deft. if upon the case as a whole the evidence of pltf. was so weak that a verdict in his favour would have been set aside as unreasonable.

(2) A judge who at the conclusion of pltf.'s case has ruled that there is some evidence for the jury, is entitled at the conclusion of the whole case to reconsider his ruling & to enter judgment for deft., if he is then of opinion that pltf.'s evidence fails to disclose any cause of action against deft.—SKEATE v. SLATERS, LTD., [1914] 2 K. Later a constable stated under cross-examination that he had taken the statement which was then called for, but the police magistrate ruled that it was privileged from production. On appeal on the ground of the wrongful rejection of evidence:—Held: even if the document were not privileged, it could not have been put in evidence, both because counsel for the defence had not laid the basis, by the cross-examination of the girl, for its admission as an inconsistent statement, & also because the girl not being the complainant, her statement was not admissible as between the parties, & that, therefore, there had been no wrongful rejection of evidence.—MCCLINTOCK v. NOFFKE, Ex p. NOFFKE, [1937] Q. 965 v. ——.]—Under sect. 32 (6) of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, as by the long established rule in England, in questions of pedigree the statements of deceased members of the family, made before the question in dispute was raised, are evidence to prove pedigree.—ABDUL GHAFUR v. HUSSAIN BIBI (1931), I. 965 vi. ——.]—The matter in controversy in resp.'s action involved the title to & ownership of 200 acres of wilderness or woodland. Resp. claimed title to the property through a conveyance dated May 3, 1920, from John & James F., the sons & heirs of one David F., deceased, who, in turn, was alleged to have been the only child of one Elizabeth F., the original grantee from the Crown. Applt. co. claimed a documentary title to the property through a series of five conveyances from the first deed in 1897 to the last in 1909, & also claimed a title by continuous, exclusive & adverse possession in itself & its predecessors in possession for a period of over twenty years. The trial judge, after having admitted as evidence, subject to objection by applt.'s counsel, the declarations made to witnesses by the two brothers, John & James F., concerning their own pedigree, excluded them in his judgment & dismissed resp.'s action, finding that applt. co. had established its title to the property. The Appeal Div. reversed the judgment :—Held : the trial judge was justified in excluding the declarations of the deceased grantors in the deed to resp., John & James F., as evidence that they were grandsons of Elizabeth F., the original grantee from the Crown & that he was also justified in re the conclusion that resp. had to establish his title.—PEJ PAPER CO. v. FARREN, [1933] S. The justices ought to have concluded from the wife's evidence that the marriage in Feb. 1930, was void. Fresh evidence, now admitted, showed that the wife & the previous husband were still living together as a married couple in 1925. He claimed that she was not really his wife as she had been previously married & it had not been established that the former husband, who was last heard of alive some six years before the second marriage, was dead at the time of that ceremony, which took place in 1910. The magistrates accepted evidence that fruitless inquiries had been made as to the former husband's whereabouts up to the second marriage, & made an order for maintenance on the basis that husband appealed on the grounds that there was no evidence admissible that the first marriage was not subsisting, & that the magistrates were wrong in law in holding that the burden of proof was on the applt. to prove that that marriage was subsisting:—Held: the issue before the magistrates was whether the wife was free to marry in 1910, & whether it could be inferred from the evidence that the former husband was then dead. 1453a. —— ——.]—In July, 1852, H. quitted England for America, & wrote home announcing his safe arrival at New York. There was evidence that he was in declining health when he quitted England, & that, from his character, education, & previous life, he would, if living, have communicated with his friends in England. Advertisements requesting information concerning him had been inserted in the principal American newspapers, but he was never heard of again. The father of H. died in Sept. 1853, intestate. Pltf., who was one of the next of kin of the father, supposing the son to have predeceased him, filed his bill for the administration of the father's estate:—Held: there was primâ facie evidence of the death of H. in his father's lifetime to entitle pltf. to have the personal estate secured in ct.—DANBY v. DANBY (1859), 5 Jur. 3122c. —— ——.]—During the course of the argument a question arose as to the nature of the relationship of the Crown to the territory of which the North Charterland Concession formed part, & in order to settle this question I submitted to His Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies for his decision under the Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1890 (c. 37), s. 4, two questions: "Was the territory now known as Northern Rhodesia on Mar. 22, 1928, under the protection of His Majesty?" or "Was it at that date part of His Majesty's Dominions?" The decision of His Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies, which by the provisions of the Act is conclusive, is that on Mar. 22, 1928, Northern Rhodesia was a territory under His Majesty's protection. 4085a. Return to Potato Marketing Board—Agricultural Marketing Act, 1931 (c. 42), s. 17 (2).]—Applt. brought an action against resp. to recover the price of certain potatoes sold & delivered to resp. Resp. counter-claimed damages, on the ground that applt. had agreed to grow 9½ acres of royal kidney potatoes, & to deliver the whole crop to resp. at a fixed price, but that, in breach of his contract, applt. had not delivered to resp. the whole product of the 9½ acres, but had wrongfully sold part thereof to other buyers, at a price higher than that at which he had contracted to sell to resp. For the purpose of proving that applt. had planted only 9½ acres with royal kidney potatoes, resp. subpœnaed the secretary of the Potato Marketing Board to produce the return made by applt. showing the total acreage of potatoes planted on his land. The county ct. judge refused to make an order for the production of the return, on the ground that it was a privileged document, which need not be produced, &, after hearing evidence, he gave judgment for applt. On appeal, his judgment was set aside by the Ct. of Appeal (by a majority), & a new trial ordered, for the reason that Agricultural Marketing Act, 1931 (c. 42), s. 17, did not expressly alter the common law whereby material evidence of this kind could not properly be excluded :—Held : (1) on a true construction of the whole of sect. 17 of the Act of 1931, the return in 6258 vii. ——.]—In order to justify the issue of a commission to take evidence abroad, it must be shown that the evidence is directly material to the issue raised.

Applt.'s statement of claim alleged that for the use of "trichlorethylene" for dry-cleaning applt. had installed special machinery & had been trading in New Zealand under the fancy name of "Tri-cleaning" & that resp. co. had been formed under its name "Tri-cleaning" Co. with a view to causing confusion to the public & so obtaining a portion of the goodwill that had been built up by applts., or, alternatively, that the name of resp. co. was calculated to deceive the public into believing that that co. was the applt. co. or a subsidiary thereof. Resps.' defence was a bare denial of the allegations in the statement of claim, from which it might possibly be inferred that the issue raised was whether "Tri-cleaning" was a fancy name. The evidence sought to be taken in Australia was sworn to be material because it was from persons familiar with the trade of dry-cleaning by trichlorethylene & the manner in which the same is described or referred to. national exchange transactions as "the purchase & sale of all kinds of currency & gold in any form & the bills of exchange, cheques, drafts, letters of credit, telegraphic orders, & document of any other nature requiring the transfer of funds from Chile or vice versa." Conflicting evidence by Chilean experts was given as to the meaning in Chile of first-class bills on London. The evidence accepted was that "payable in Chile in first-class bills on London" had a special mercantile meaning in Chile, namely, "bills drawn in Chile by one or other of a select list of bankers & mercantile houses in Chile upon one or other of a select list of bankers & mercantile houses in London" & these were known technically as F. L. bills came within the mischief of the Chilean legislation:—Held: (1) the conditions precedent to the admissibility of evidence as to the meaning in Chile of first-class bills on London had been fulfilled, namely, the evidence did not conflict with a statutory definition, was of a usage common to the place in question & expoinded without contradicting the terms of the contract; (2) though witnesses could be called to prove foreign law, the ct. was at liberty to look at a translation of the passages in question & to consider what was their proper meaning, but the ct. would have regard not only to its own view of the foreign law but to the interpretation put upon it by a competent foreign authority.—DE BEÉCHE v. SOUTH AMERICAN STORES (GATH & CHAVES), LTD., & CHILIAN STORES (GATH & CHAVES), LTD., [1935] A. 1463a. —— " Special circumstances."]—This was an application by two nominees for a grant of letters of administration of the estate of an intestate, whose next of kin were unable to agree on any one or more of them administering the estate. Being all sui juris, they signed an act of renunciation in which they consented to the appcts. taking the grant subject to the approval of the ct. It was submitted that though normally the ct. would make a grant only to kindred of an intestate, in " special circumstances " it would make a grant to a stranger. The ct. exercised that power under sect. 162 of the Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act, 1925 (c. 49), s. 162, as amended by Administration of Justice Act, 1928 (c. 26), s. 9 :—Held : in the " special circumstances " the order would be made as prayed.—Re MORGANS (W. 1464a. Nominee of plaintiff—Action against estate under Law Reform (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1934 (c. 41).]—In the absence of a personal representative of a deceased intestate, against whose estate a cause of action survived by virtue of Law Reform (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1934 (c. 41), s. 1, the ct. appointed as administrator of deceased the nominee of a party intending to prosecute the cause of action in order that proper parties to the action should be constituted. The machinery of Administration of Justice Act, 1928 (c. 26), s. 9, proviso (b), applied.—In the Estate of SIMPSON, In the Estate of GUNNING, [1936] P. 40 ; 105 L. J. P. 7 ; 154 L. 1675a. —— Death of foreigner domiciled abroad—Estate insolvent—No proof by executor.]—Deceased, a Peruvian, died in Peru on Feb. 6, 1932, leaving a will of which his son was the surviving exor. The estate was insolvent & consisted in part of English assets which formed the subject of pending proceedings in Chancery. The exor. had not been cited & had not renounced probate. There was evidence that the exor., who had been in this country since the death of deceased, had taken no steps to obtain probate & had withdrawn a retainer given to English solrs., intending to leave the country without taking probate. The ct., in the exercise of its general jurisdiction, passed over the exor., & made a grant of administration with the will annexed to English creditors of deceased.—In the Estate of LEGUIA, Ex p. ASHWORTH, Ex p. MEINERTZHAGEN, [1934] P. 80 ; 103 L. 1873a. Doubt as to capacity in which person entitled—Refusal to take grant in either capacity.]—An intestate was presumed to have died in or since 1905. Owing to the uncertainty of the date of his death it was not known whether he was survived by his father, who in that event would have been entitled to a grant of administration. The father died in 1909 leaving a will, & a brother of the presumed deceased was now entitled to a grant of administration of his estate whether as his next of kin or as the exor. of his father. The brother of the presumed deceased refused either to renounce his derivative right as exor. of his father or to take the grant in his original right as next of kin of his brother, & he had become bkpt. 1883a. —— During minority.]—Jud. (Consolidation) Act, 1925 (c. 49), s. 160 (1), directs that either a trust corpn., with or without an individual, or not less than two individuals, shall take a grant of administration in the case of an interest in the estate during minority of the party interested ; but this provision must be read subject to the modification of sect. 162 (1), namely, that the ct. in the case of insolvency is to have a discretion to grant administration to some person other than those interested in the residue. Under the latter sect. it is competent for the ct., even during a minority, to appoint a creditor to be a single administrator, as it could formerly have done under Ct. of Probate Act, 1857 (c. 77), s. 73.—Re HERBERT, [1926] P. 109 ; *sub nom.
